A Big Discussion
It Will Be Twins
He Came and Jumped Kemal Wins, Allah Loses

By Arthur Brisbane

THE BIG DISCUSSION of the moment concerns relief of Americans in need and how to go about it, if at all. There seems to be more hesitation about relieving Americans, by the way, than there was about relieving Armenians and other foreigners in a war that we did not start. We did start this depression war.

Senator Borah, in a savagely magnificent speech that might make him President some day if he is not careful, tells of a mother and her children eating "grass and sour meal that you would not give to a dog."

Not only would Borah have an extra session if necessary, but, says he: "Let us stay here until every starving child and woman has been taken care of by the government, whose duty it is to take care of its suffering citizens."

The fight is on between Borah and President Hoover and their respective adherents.

Yesterday the President issued a statement saying that the government should not do anything until charity, meaning the Red Cross, has failed.

The people should rely on mutual self help, says President Hoover, quoting the words of Grover Cleveland under similar circumstances: "It is for the people to support the government, the government should not support the people."

Senator Borah might and probably will reply, "That was not said to the hungry Armenians, or Russians, or the European nations that needed ten thousand millions of our money to continue murdering each other."

Senator Borah says the Red Cross is not strong enough to carry through the job. The government could certainly do it more cheaply, and efficiently, by employing men of the army and navy, as might be shown, by printing the payroll of the Red Cross, for the past year or so, showing how much of the money spent reaches salaried individuals, and not starving stomachs.

If Congress means to do anything for those in want and should hand the money directly to them, regardless of that terrible word "dole," the money would be spent in stores, would help pay clerks' wages, and start business going.

However, that is for the wise men at Washington to decide.

Mr. Cyrus H. K. Curtis' conservative paper prints this in big type: "Birth of twins expected by Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt." A few years ago, such a positive announcement would have been impossible, not to say in shocking taste. But now, the X-ray looks through intervening tissue, and reveals the two little skeletons, with cunning, crooked legs, tiny little hands that will never know hard work, and there is no doubt about its being twins.

These little children will be the direct descendants, in the sixth generation, of Commodore Vanderbilt, founder of the family, who was able to recognize a good new idea, and changed from rowing boats to getting hold of a railroad and some millions.

How quickly generations pass, especially in the case of the very rich and very poor. Both classes marry young, the poor to make life bearable, the rich, because so many offer to marry them.

A well-dressed young man got off in New York yesterday, at the Grand Central Station, took the elevator in the Biltmore Hotel close by, to the 14th floor and jumped. His wrist watch was marked "Jerry M. Nowan of Santa Fe, N. M." And he had written a telegram saying: "I have arrived at my final destination."

That telegram raises the interesting question: Do we reach a FINAL destination, when we jump from here?

It says in the Bible: "In my father's house are many mansions." Do we go to some one of them, and stay there forever, or do we travel from one to another, perhaps from one planet, or big star, to another, on through the series of millions and millions of universes as far as relativity will permit, with constant change and new experience and, perhaps, improvement all the way? That would be an attractive program.

Kemal Pasha, forceful Turk, disagrees violently with Orthodox Mohammedans. They said he was disobeying the prophet's orders erecting statues to himself and others taking the fez from men's heads veils from women's faces.

They were right. But in the fight with Mohammed, Kemal has won.

FOUR GUNMEN GET $12,000 'L' PAYROLL

Bandits Hold Up Employe in Sullivan Sq. Terminal; Flee in Auto

Four armed youths today held up a Boston Elevated paymaster at Sullivan sq. station, Charlestown, and escaped with a payroll of $12,000.

A first report said $1500 was the amount taken but a later checkup revealed the larger amount. Within a few minutes a statewide manhunt was in operation.

The paymaster, Charles Symonds of 71 Ossipee rd, Somerville, said two of the youths pressed guns into his stomach while the other pair stood by with drawn weapons.

They made their escape in an automobile that had been parked outside with motor running.

DISARMED BY THUGS.

Symonds told police he had just descended the stairs in the station from the superintendent's office when two of the youths confronted him on a balcony.

"The balcony connects the outbound and inbound platforms, and Symonds had descended four steps to the outbound side when robbed.

"Stick 'em up and fork over that bag," one of them muttered, he said.

The other seized a small bag and gave a sign for the others to follow him in flight.

Symonds rushed back to the office and telephoned police at the City sq. station, but a squad of officers searched the vicinity in vain. Symonds was unable to furnish

Gen. Edwards Is "About the Same"

At noon today the condition of Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards at Phillips House was reported unchanged. He took light nourishment, but not enough to satisfy physicians.

His failure to assimilate sufficient food to increase his vitality is a problem that has confronted physicians for days. His condition is far less favorable than it was last week. His only visitors are his sister, Mrs. Charles A. Otis of Cleveland, and Col. John W. Hyatt, his aide.

Duncan McRae, Old Stage Manager, Dies

London, Feb. 4 (AP)—Duncan McRae, former stage manager for the late Charles Frohman, died here today. For 30 years he had been producing plays in London and New York. His last production in America was the play, "Topaze."

Senate Orders Wages on U. S. Work Upheld

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Senate today passed a bill requiring contractors on government projects to maintain the existing wage scale of the community in which the project is located.

Garrett Jury Goes Back to Work After Breakfast

AFTER A NIGHT of discussion of the evidence in the Garrett case the jury was escorted to breakfast, and are shown here on their way back to the courthouse to resume their labors. They are marching along Tremont st., guarded by a court officer. Meanwhile Garrett, his wife, and Miss Lillian V. Hatch, whose fate was in the hands of the jury, were anxiously waiting for the verdict, and all were in court today when the jury reported. The jury foreman, Albert Fishel (smoking pipe), is walking directly behind the court officer. What a serious-minded group you are looking at.

BOSTON TAKES 2D TITLE GAME

Krynlea, Poland, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Boston, Mass., Hockey Club today won its second straight game in the international hockey tournament being contested here, defeating Austria, 2 to 1.

The Americans scored goals in the first period. Austria scored in the last period. Anderson, Elliot and Ramsay played the best for Boston.

Today's match counted in the final contests, which are to be contested among the United States, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Austria and Poland.

Musher Drops Dead in Snowshoe Derby

Three Rivers, Que., Feb. 4 (AP)—The hard grind of the 200-mile international snow shoe marathon from Quebec to Montreal took the life of J. P. Chouinard of Notre Dame du Nord today.

Chouinard had run about seven miles of today's 24-mile lap to Louiseville when he collapsed and died a few minutes later.

Tech Boxing Team Greeted by Hoover

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology boxing team was presented today to President Hoover by Representative Underhill of Massachusetts. The team engaged boxers of Catholic University here last night and go to Annapolis for bouts with the military academy team Saturday night.

Walsh World Court Move Is Blocked

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—A motion was made in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by Senator Walsh (D.), Montana, to reconsider the decision of postponing consideration of the World Court protocol until December. Action was blocked, however.

Wales Dedicates War Tower in Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Prince of Wales, here overnight on the way to South America, today dedicated a clock tower erected as a memorial to Jamaicans who died in the World War. The chief magistrate gave the heir a gold key as a souvenir.

Two More Parties in 1932, Says J. Hamilton Lewis

Los Angeles, Feb. 3 (AP)—J. Hamilton Lewis, U. S. Senator-elect from Illinois, today predicted the appearance of two new political parties at the next national election.

One of the parties, he said, will be out and out for prohibition. He said the prohibitionists are not satisfied with either the Republican or Democrat attitudes on the question.

The fourth party, he predicted, will be made up of those favoring public ownership of public utilities and any other business the government could own and operate. This party, he said, will be semi-Socialist, he said.

Lewis commented on the present debate over government aid for drouth victims.

"We are displaying to the world," he said, "that while millions of Americans are without work and thousands are starving, the Senate and the House look themselves in a wrestling match to decide from which pocket the people's money is to be taken to feed the hungry."

DO-X Sold to U. S. Firm, Admiral Says

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 4 (AP)—Reports from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, today quoted the Portuguese Admiral Gago Coutinho to the effect that an American aviation company had acquired the big German flying boat DO-X. The report said that the plane would be operated on a route between Florida and Havana.

Admiral Coutinho is a passenger on the DO-X, which is attempting a flight to Brazil.

Lindbergh to Spend Birthday at Desk

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh, business man, planned today to spend a typically American birthday. He expected to put in most of it at his desk in the office here. There were several conferences on his day's schedule. None of them of public interest. A family dinner was on the program for tonight with a cake—eligible to receive 29 candles—as the dessert.

Pomerene Upholds Blackmer Summons

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Tiles Pomerene, special government prosecutor, today told the District of Columbia Court of Appeals Congress acted constitutionally in passing the Walsh law under which Harry M. Blackmer was fined $50,000 for ignoring a summons to testify in a criminal case. Blackmer was in Paris.

Hoover Sends Aide for Drouth Facts

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Col. Campbell Hodges, military aide to President Hoover, was en route by airplane today to Little Rock, Ark., to co-operate in a survey of drouth conditions for the chief executive and the War Department.

Senator Norris declared in the Senate today that if the members of the House of Representatives chosen at the last election were now in office, the Senate's $25,000,000 relief proposal "would have carried the House by a 33 majority."

Tunneys in Sicily, Planning Expedition

Palermo, Sicily, Feb. 4 (INS)—Mr. and Mrs. James J. "Gene" Tunney, accompanied by John Oliver La Gorce, American editor and explorer, arrived today from New York. They plan to motor from Palermo to Syracuse before continuing their trip to Syria, where Tunney and La Gorce will carry out a geographical expedition.

BOYS 'CRUCIFY,' BURY CRIPPLE

Chicago, Feb. 4 (INS)—George Wiltbred, 34, a cripple, was alive today after being buried and "crucified" in St. Nicholas Cemetery. Seven young hoodlums were in custody charged with perpetrating the ghastly "joke."

Wiltbred related his harrowing experience to the police after being rescued early today by a farmer who found him imprisoned in a coffin rough box in a roadside ditch where his tormentors had left him.

Before being nailed inside the box, Wiltbred said, he was tied to a cross in the cemetery and whipped. Afterward, the hoodlums threw him into a grave and set fire to straw they piled over him.

One of the pranksters, brought to the police station, laughed at seeing Wiltbred ashen-faced and trembling, and said:

Aw, it was all in fun. Just a little joke we played on George."

U. S. Girl's Rajah Wins "Prison" Suit

Bombay, India, Feb. 4 (AP)—Sir Takoji Rao Holkar, former maharajah of Indore, whose wife was Nancy Miller of Seattle, today was absolved by the high court from liability for payment of $70,000 in damages to Madame Sowakabai Pandsinath Rajpurkar, a singer, who charged she and her daughter had been illegally imprisoned for 11 years at Mysore Fort.

Greenwich, Ct., Feb. 4 (AP)—Francis MacLennan, 31, concert soloist, and Marie C. Morningstar, 29, noted opera singer, both of Bronxville N. Y., were married by Justice of the Peace J. J. O'Brien here yesterday. MacLennan was divorced last year from Florence Easton, Metropolitan Opera Company soprano.

Duke Borea D'Olmo, 100, Seriously Ill

Rome, Feb. 4 (AP)—The Duke Borea D'Olmo, Europe's best known master of ceremonies who is 100 years old, is critically ill of influenza. The duke has been prefect of the palace of the King of Italy for 40 years and has served under four kings.

IN DOUBT ABOUT SIX DATES REFERRING TO PAYMENTS

Weary, and apparently deadlocked on certain issues, the Garrett jury carried its deliberations into the 24th hour at 2 p. m today.

At 11:30 a. m. it had requested and received from Judge Patrick M. Keating certain information regarding the dates of alleged payments of gratuities by John F. Sullivan to Oliver B. Garrett, the former police liquor raider, whose fate, with that of his wife and Miss Lillian V. Hatch, hangs in the balance.

Two hours previous it had reported that no verdict had been reached during a long night of deliberation.

The jury's second appearance in the court room from which it was dismissed at 7 p. m. yesterday followed a request for instructions regarding the date of the alleged payments made by the Hotel Rite proprietor to the ex-policeman.

DOUBT ABOUT TIME.

Foreman Albert Fishel informed the court that the subject had been raised that some of the 50 counts charging Garrett with accepting gratuities might be effected by the statute of limitations.

Judge Keating informed them that the statute would not be a bar to a verdict on the counts of the indictment. The second visit to the court lasted about an hour after which the jury resumed its arguments and at 1:30 o'clock took time out for lunch.

The jurors appeared tired. So, too, did the court officers on guard.

Garrett was in and out of the courtroom beginning at 9:30 a. m. after he was taken to court from Charles st. jail. His wife spent much time with him in the detention room outside the court and sat always beside him in the court.

Of the three defendants, Miss Hatch alone remained constantly in the courtroom. She displayed no emotion during the long wait for the verdict.

Garrett's father, George Garrett, and his stepmother, also remained in court. Few spectators were admitted. Outside the room a large crowd waited in the corridor discussing the case and the various reports and rumors.

REQUEST FROM JURY

At 10:30 the jury made a request of Judge Keating through Deputy Sheriff Pierce and Court Officer Henry Murphy.

The judge emerged from his chamber and took the bench and conferred for more than a half hour with Herbert F. Callahan and Daniel J. Gallagher of the defense and Asst. Dist. Attys. Doyle and Sullivan.

Callahan produced a transcript of evidence and the government did the same and a general conference continued with bits of the transcript being read. Miss Hatch was the only defendant in the court at the time.

At 11:30 court sent for the jurors who filed into the box where Gallagher had spent some time during the morning reading a newspaper.

GARRETT BROUGHT IN

Judge Keating arose to address them, noticed Garrett was not in the cage, and bade them be seated. Garrett was then brought in and

GREATER CITY NEEDED, IS PLEA

The time has come when a corporate body known as Greater Boston must be formed for better police and fire protection, for solution of traffic problems and to obtain recognition as one of the most populous metropolitan areas in the country, Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman told the Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Affairs today.

Silverman argued in favor of Mayor Curley's bill for such limited amalgamation and also urged on the committee a somewhat similar bill of Prof. Joseph H. Beale, of Harvard, which goes a great deal further than the Mayor's proposals.

OPPONENTS PRESENT

There were opponents of the bills present from some of the surrounding cities and towns, including a delegation from Cambridge.

The Mayor's bill provides for a governing body composed of the mayors and selectmen of the cities and towns in the metropolitan water, sewer and park districts, this body to meet for consideration of problems at least four times a year.

The most important part of the measure, Silverman said, is that which outlines the purposes — namely, to consider problems relating to crime, disease, fire, traffic, taxation and other matters jointly affecting the various municipalities with a view to solving these for the economic welfare of each locality.

"There is at present a feeling that the time has come when there ought to be a political entity, however limited in scope, known as Greater Boston," said Silverman.

"This has been done in the cases of other cities throughout the country, for example in Los

Flames Ruin Truck Loaded With Cotton

Spontaneous combustion ignited several bales of cotton in a truck, operated by Eugene Sullivan of 250 C st., South Boston, an employe of the New England Waste Company of Revere, in Tremont st., Roxbury Crossing early today. Sullivan narrowly escaped injury as he jumped when the truck caught fire. Firemen extinguished the flames. The damage was estimated at $2100.

Boy Flier Out for N. Y.-Havana Record

Westfield, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP)—Bo. Buck, 17-year-old holder of the junior transcontinental flying record, plans to fly to Havana Monday. He hopes to establish a junior speed record.

H. Intends to hop off from Westfield Airport at 3 a. m. Monday and to reach Havana before dusk.

JURY IN GARRETT CASE IN LONG DISPUTE OVER EX-RAIDER'S FATE

JUDGE TOLD MEMBERS THEY WERE CAPABLE OF DECIDING

Mrs. Garrett took her usual place beside the grilled pen.

The judge then read:

"The jury requested the six dates that Sullivan is alleged to have given money to Garrett as charged in the indictment, No. 102. Respectfully, Albert Fishel.'

"That indictment contains 50 counts and the first count alleges that on July 1, 1924, Oliver B. Garrett, being a police officer of the said city of Boston did corruptly request from one John F. Sullivan a gift and gratuity, to wit, money of the amount of and of the value in all of $50 under an agreement and with the understanding that he, said Oliver B. Garrett, would perform in a particular manner and abstain from performing certain acts coming within the course of his duty as such office and as a consideration for certain work and service in connection therewith.

"In other words, it is alleged that in that count and in every count in the indictment, in substance, that Sullivan gave money to Oliver B. Garrett. The date alleged in the second count is August 1, 1924, and in the third count September 1, 1924, and in the fourth count September 1, 1924, and so on in each count; it is alleged that in the months named in each count Sullivan gave money to Garrett.

"So much in the allegations in the counts as to the dates.

"There is evidence in the testimony that Sullivan made six payments to Oliver B. Garrett; that he made four of these payments to Oliver B. Garrett at 8 Blackwood st., and there is evidence that two of these payments were made at the Hotel Ritz.

JUDGE CAN SAY NO MORE

"There is testimony that Miss Hatch came to live at 8 Blackwood st., in May, 1924. There is testimony that on July 1, 1924, Sullivan gave $50 to Garrett. That is the date alleged in the first count of the indictment.

"There is testimony that Sullivan made all payments to Miss Hatch after she began work at the Hotel Ritz. There is testimony she began work at the Ritz in April, 1924.

"That, gentlemen, is as far as I ought to go in answering your request.

Foreman Fishel: "Your Honor, what the jury have in mind is at least on six different dates the testimony shows that Sullivan made payments to Garrett.

"The evidence as to those dates are what we seek. Members of the jury want dates of those alleged payments."

ONE OTHER POINT

Judge Keating: "In view of the instructions you have already received, I believe the jury has been informed.

Fishel: "There was one other point, Your Honor. Some of the counts in the indictments we have are outside the statute of limitations in regard to dates."

Judge Keating: "So far as the statute of limitations is concerned, if you find that any of the dates in that indictment as alleged in each count running July 1, 1924, and August 1, 1924, the statute of limitations would not be a bar.

"There were certain verdicts brought in by you as directed by the court that were eliminated by agreement of counsel."

Fishel—"We do not know which ones were stricken out. We thought we might have some of those eliminated with us."

MAY 1, 1924, THE LIMIT

Judge Keating—"None of the three indictments you have besides the conspiracy indictment are with you at present. As far as this indictment alleging conspiracy is concerned, if you found that the conspiracy indictment, as alleged, was prior to May 1, 1924, the statute of limitations would bar defendants from prosecution.

"By agreement of counsel the clerk (William Prendible) very kindly made out a list for those counts in the indictments that you gentlemen are called upon to decide."

Fishel: "Perhaps, Your Honor, I have not made myself entirely clear, but in the testimony in this case, as the jury got it, the members of the jury believe there were six dates that Sullivan alleged he made payments of money to Garrett. It is those dates we desire."

JUDGE REPEATS

Judge Keating: "I have already told you that Sullivan was alleged to have made four payments at 8 Blackwood ct. Miss Hatch lived at 9 Blackwood st., according to testimony in May, 1924. There was testimony that Miss Hatch started to work at the Hotel Ritz in 1925, and there is also testimony that Miss Hatch was employed at the Hotel Ritz in 1924. There is also testimony that Sullivan made payments to her for Garrett. Now, gentlemen, you may find conflicting evidence as to dates in the testimony as to these alleged payments. That is for you to decide."

Judge Keating started to return to his seat and Atty. Gallagher stood up and asked permission to speak before the jury returned. He was told to step to the bench.

Following his conference with Gallagher, Judge Keating told the jury:

4 INDICTMENTS OUTLAWED

"I ought to say to you gentlemen that at the outset of the trial there were seven indictments, but later it became necessary for you to consider only three of the indictments because the statute of limitations was a bar to the prosecution of the others."

Clerk Prendible then spoke with the judge and court informed the jury that the indictments dropped were not sent to the jury room because the jury already had returned a verdict on them.

Judge Keating asked whether it would aid the jury to have a list of the counts and Fishel said:

"We already have such a list. The subject raised that some of those counts were outlawed by the statute of limitations."

The jury then filed back to resume its discussion.

Judge Keating ordered that the jury be brought before him at 9:30 a. m., when, after opening the session, he was advised that no sealed verdict in the cases had been brought in.

The jury filed in from the chamber where, since 3 p. m. yesterday, it has been deliberating on the guilt or innocence of the trio accused of conspiracy to extort and other charges, and Clerk Prendible addressed Foreman Fishel:

"Mr. Foreman, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have not," said the foreman.

JUDGE ADDRESSES JURY

"The jury may be seated," said Judge Keating. He then proceeded to address them as follows:

"These cases have been on trial about four weeks and it is not probable that if it becomes necessary to try these cases again the jury empanelled to do so could try them more intelligently than you gentlemen can.

"I am going to ask you to give these cases further consideration and for that purpose I want to read to you the instructions from a learned justice of the superior court, instructions which he gave in an important case.

Judge Keating then read from the case of Commonwealth vs. Peter Tuey, September term, 1851, at Worcester, Justice Hoar:

CASE MUST BE DECIDED

"You should consider that the case must at some time be decided, that you are selected in the same manner and from the same source from which any future jury must be and there is no reason to suppose that the case will ever be submitted to men more intelligent, more impartial, more competent to decide it or that more or clearer evidence will be produced on the one side or the other. And with this view it is your duty to decide the case if you can conscientiously do so.

"In order to make a decision more practicable, the law imposes the burden of proof on one party or the other, in all cases. In the present case the burden of proof is on the Commonwealth to establish every part of it, beyond a reasonable doubt; and if, in any part of it, you are left in doubt, the defendant is entitled to the benefit of the doubt and must be acquitted.

"But, in conferring together, you ought to pay proper respect to each other's opinion, and listen, with the disposition to be convinced, to each other's arguments.

QUESTION OF DOUBT.

"And, on the one hand, if much the larger number of your panel are for a conviction, a dissenting juror should consider whether a doubt in his own mind is a reasonable one, which makes no impression upon the minds of so many men, equally honest, equally intelligent with himself, and who have heard the same evidence with the same attention, with an equal desire to arrive at the truth, and under the sanction of the same oath.

"And, on the other hand, if a majority are for acquittal, the minority ought seriously to ask themselves, whether they may not reasonably and ought not to doubt the correctness of a judgment which is not concurred in by most of those with whom they are associated, and distrust the weight or sufficiency of that evidence which fails to carry conviction to the minds of their fellows.

"You may now retire to give these cases further consideration, gentlemen," said the judge, and the jury filed out to the chamber again.

The payroll was to be distributed at the Harrison ave. division of the company to emergency car men and temporary help working on snow removal. Symonds was en route to an armored car on the lower level when the holdup was staged.

He was armed, but the bandits relieved him of his gun as they held him up.

Early morning commuters rushed for their cars and trains in the upper level unaware of the scene being enacted directly overhead.

ROADS ARE GUARDED

News of the robbery was flashed to police headquarters and Supt. Michael H. Crowley ordered a thorough search of the city for the quartet.

Such description as could be obtained from Symonds was flashed over the police teletype and traffic officers throughout the city were ordered to watch for the bandit car.

Outlets of the city were ordered carefully watched with police of Somerville, Cambridge, Chelsea and other northern suburbs especially on the alert against escape in that direction.

Heavy Winds Halt Campbell Speed Run

Indian Minister Quits Post in Protest

Peshawar, India, Feb. 4 (AP)—Reports received here today said Hazart Sher Agha, minister of justice, had resigned in protest against the method of execution of the rebel leader Ahmad Shah, who, it was charged, was blown from the mouth of a cannon by order of King Nahir Shah.

GREATER CITY PLEA HEARD

Angeles, Philadelphia and New York.

"I am going from here to a hearing the purpose of which is to prevent our port from being swallowed up by the ports of New York. Boston is fast becoming one of the small cities of the country because of our failure to pass a measure of this kind.

RECOGNITION NEEDED

"We are told by big corporations and officials that we ought not expect to receive the recognition other cities get because we are smaller. Yet you know as well as I that we are just as large as those other cities, that 800,000 is not the true expression of our size.

"We cannot get recognition of our real size unless our entire metropolitan district becomes a political entity, and this bill accomplishes this end. But no city or town will lose its name or identity under its provisions. I cannot see how any community can be fearful of losing local autonomy or any official his job.

"The benefits that could be cited are many. Most important perhaps are those of police and fire co-operation. In some cases, such as with Milton, Boston now has co-operation in fighting fires near the lines of both places, but there is a line on all sides where a Boston policeman must stop, where there is no agreement for joint action or investigation."

Prof. Beale, explaining his bill said that the various cities and towns have relinquished their metropolitan functions to state commission, and his measure would restore these functions to a council which the municipalities themselves would control.

"Boston is regarded as decadent," he said, "by the railroads and the Interstate Commerce Commission. That's because our demands have the forces of only 800,000 persons. With a metropolitan city we would have the force of 2,000,000 and we would be heard. Prosperity can come from such a union.'

NO FEAR FOR CAMBRIDGE.

As a resident of Cambridge, Prof Beale said he had no fears that city would ben wallowed up by Boston, but did fear it would be swallowed by decadence.

He agreed with another speaker, George R. Nutter, an attorney, that it would be well to have a referendum and to limit operation for ten years on trial. He said he thought the council he proposes should be unpaid, so as to attract public-spirited men of outstanding ability.

Kenneth Johnson, chairman of the selectmen of Milton, and a former student under Prof. Beale at Harvard, fired the first gun in opposition. He declared the mayor's bill was a camouflaged entering wedge for annexation and that "we are the jackasses who are supposed to carry the load."

BANKER TELLS HOUSE BOOM IS COMING

Head of American Association Fears Bonus Would Retard U. S. Progress

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Rome C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers Association, testified today that cashing veterans' service certificates would make hopes of gradual business recovery seem "ill-founded."

Before the House ways and means committee the banker reiterated his belief the "nation is now headed back toward economic recovery.

"However, he added, "if this bonus plan payment is to eventuate, it would seem that these hopes are ill-founded."

Stephenson termed the nation's present condition "one of the greatest business depressions of its history" and attributed it to "economic surprises."

Upholding Secretary Mellon's opposition to cash redemption of the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, he said he spoke "not primarily for the banks or for any particular interests, but essentially for the big greater welfare of all of our people."

Enactment of plans to pay cash for certificates now, he warned, might in the future hinder enactment of "other really deserving bills for the relief of the World War veterans."

"The nation has suffered enough economic adversity already," he declared.

DOT MACKAYE TO WED KELLY

New York, Feb. 4 (INS)—"Business first—after that we can think about marriage."

This is the answer given today by Dorothy MacKaye, the actress, when asked when she would marry Paul Kelly, actor, who was freed in California in connection with the killing of Ray Raymond as the result of a love triangle in Los Angeles nearly four years ago.

"Mr. Kelly and I do intend to marry," Miss Mackye said at the hotel here, where she is living as Mrs. Dorothy Raymond.

"But our plans are very indefinite. Mr. Kelly is rehearsing on a new play and I am looking for a play also. We are both too busy to take the time to set a definite date and prepare plans for our marriage."

"When Mr. Kelly's play gets under way and my affairs get settled—well, then perhaps we can say something about a definite date."

Kelly's freedom from parole leaves him free to marry Miss Mackaye, which he was unable to do during the year and a half he was required to report to the court.

Too Busy to Wed

AS SOON as they find time, Dorothy MacKaye, the actress, and Paul Kelly, the actor, paroled in the slaying of her husband, Ray Raymond, will be wed, she announced in New York.

HOOVER BALKS RELIEF BILL COMPROMISE

Party Leaders Unable to Change Views of President During Parley

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Compromise negotiations on the congressional relief deadlock slowed up today after President Hoover gave a cool reception to proposals for settlement by Senate Republican leaders.

Fears of an extra session were revived at the Capitol as Senators Watson of Indiana and McNary of Oregon, the Republican chieftains, returned from the White House empty-handed.

WATSON IS SILENT

Neither Watson nor McNary would discuss the talk after the White House breakfast parley.

They went to the President with the compromise suggested to the Senate yesterday by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, on the $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund which Mr. Hoover and the House Republicans have refused to accept.

The Harrison proposal was that a federal fund be made available to be spent only in the event that charitable organizations found it impossible to administer relief.

SEES HOPE OF BREAK

The Mississippian put it forward with the contention that the responsibility for the extra session would be upon the Republicans if the stand against any compromise was insisted upon.

Despite the gloom of Senators Watson and McNary as they left the White House, however, there were still signs of a break in the tense situation.

Depression Laid to Under-Consumption

Berlin, Feb. 4—Under-consumption was blamed for the world-wide trade depression today by Sir Henri Deterding, British oil magnate.

"International trading is doomed if every nation insists on creating her own independent industries," he said. "Russia is headed for industrial independence. 'Dumping' is a menace to the world. Those businesses and countries extending Russia credit will some day be sorry. Russia is seeking to destroy the economic structure of the world."

As the wind "bloweth where it listeth," so the earthquakes, and disasters following, strike where they please.

The city of Napier, in New Zealand, down on the other side of the earth, is leveled to the ground, with more than a hundred dead, thousands injured, and perhaps many more, fires destroying buildings, the earthquake having cut off the water supply.

This disaster, amounting in money to millions of dollars, is the worst that ever has befallen the island of New Zealand. Roads are broken, bridges destroyed, the entire business district of the important town of Napier wiped out.

When the big bridge over the Hudson is completed, New York city will have its first above ground connection with the rest of the American continent, and New York newspapers cannot agree on a name for the bridge. "Washington Memorial Bridge," which the Hearst papers recommended, is the official name thus far.

Mr. Mason, of the Post, wants to call it "Palisades Bridge," and Mr. Patterson, who has a newspaper, wants to call it the "Hudson Bridge." A wise compromise might call it the "Edison Bridge."

Edison brought light across the Hudson, from New Jersey to Manhattan, and spread it all over the world.

This writer back in the night of time saw him putting lights in "Harry Hill's," where John L. Sullivan fought. It would please a good many Americans to honor Edison, the greatest man this country has developed since Lincoln, and to do it while he is alive to know about it.

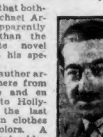
Michael Arlen Dazzles Gotham With Shoe Shines

New York, Feb. 4—The ultra in shoe shines is one of the mysteries of life that bothers Michael Arlen, apparently more than the intricate novel that is his specialty.



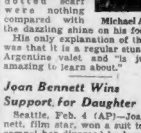
Michael Arlen

The author arrived here from Europe and en route to Hollywood, the last word in clothes and colors. A green hat, a blue pin-striped suit, a dark blue overcoat and a polka-dotted scarf were nothing compared with the dazzling shine on his footwear.

His only explanation of the gloss was that it is a regular stunt of an Argentine valet and "is just too amazing to learn about."

Joan Bennett Wins Support for Daughter

Seattle, Feb. 4 (AP)—Joan Bennett, film star, won a suit today to compel her divorced husband, John Marion Fox, Seattle broker, to pay $50 a month from his personal income for support of their three-year-old daughter, Adrienne.



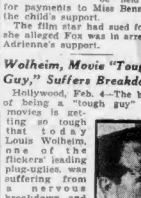
Joan Bennett

Superior Judge Malcolm Douglas decided, however, the marital community of Fox and his second wife, Polly Perkins Fox, daughter of a Seattle financier, cannot be held liable for payments to Miss Bennett for the child's support.

The film star had sued for $1200 she alleged Fox was in arrears for Adrienne's support.

Wolheim, Movie "Tough Guy," Suffers Breakdown

Hollywood, Feb. 4—The business of being a "tough guy" in the movies is getting too tough and that today Louis Wolheim, one of the flickers' leading plug-uglies, was suffering from a nervous breakdown and was under care of a physician.



Louis Wolheim

According to Dr. Roland Cummings, the movie star's condition is due to overwork in his tough guy parts.

Wolheim's illness has made it necessary for him to decline a role in a new film about to be made—and this picture will appear eventually with another's countenance in the place where Wolheim's famous and battered bulldog face would have been.

Briton Sees U. S. First to Recover from Slump

New York, Feb. 4 (INS)—The United States will be the first country to recover from the world-wide depression and the racy here will react in Europe, stirring up trade and commerce over the world, according to Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, British manufacturer, who is a visitor in New York today.

400 DEAD IN NEW ZEALAND QUAKE; PESTILENCE IS FEARED

Accused Bishop Crippled

GUARDED BY HIS SON and his attorney, Bishop Cannon is shown here hobbling along on crutches as he leaves the Mt. Vernon Methodist Church, Washington, where he is being tried on secret charges filed by four prominent Methodist clergymen. The hearings are being held behind locked doors. The trial board comprises 12 elders. The accused bishop has been ill several days. (International Newsreel photo.)

Bishop Cannon, on Trial, Is Extremely Weak, Kin Says

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Police stood guard again and witnesses withheld their names as the secret hearing of charges against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., proceeded today at the Mount Vernon Pl. Southern Methodist Church.

The accused prelate arrived on crutches. Members of his family said he was "extremely weak."

The officer guarding the locked doors allowed no one to enter unless he had been inspected and passed by Dr. W. A. Shelton, pastor of the church.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., who is presiding over the hearing, again refused to divulge charges against his fellow bishop.

Bishop Cannon planned to conduct his own defence, Bishop Ainsworth having ruled yesterday that he could cross-examine any witnesses.

During yesterday's hearing Cannon objected vigorously each time a specific charge was submitted by Dr. Forest J. Prettyman of Baltimore, Dr. I. P. Martin of Abington, Va., and Drs. Costen J. Harrell and J. T. Martin of Richmond, who filed the charges last September. Most of the objections were overruled.

STRIKE TIES UP CUBAN TRADE

Havana, Feb. 4 (AP)—Cuban labor groups felt short today of their goal of a general strike in protest against recent political developments, but members of 12 or 13 of the largest organizations answered the call and remained away from work.

It was uncertain how long the strike would last. Although called for only 24 hours, it appeared that some elements desired to prolong it. The issue has been further complicated by the arrest of several of the strike leaders.

Although the strike is not general, much of Cuba's commerce and industry is affected. The larger Havana papers did not publish today and other activities were curtailed. Some labor leaders predicted that with the end of this strike other walkouts would begin, affecting all lines of trade.

Eagle Designer May Have a Memorial

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—The man who designed the eagles on the $10 and $20 gold pieces will be honored by the Government, if the House foreign relations committee has its way. It has approved the Temple resolution to authorize a $4000 contribution by the United States to the erection of a monument in France to the memory of Augustus St. Gaudens, French sculptor.

The sculptor died in New Hampshire in 1907.

Electoral Bill Is Sent to Committee

London, Feb. 4 (AP)—The electoral reform bill, carried on its second reading in the House of Commons last night, today followed the trades disputes measure in the committee, where its enemies will attempt to alter it past recognition before it comes back for its third reading.

"Manless Dance" to Rebuke College Boys

Waynesburg, Pa., Feb. 4—Co-eds today snubbed college boys and prepared for a "girls' manless dance"—declared because the boys escorted non-college girls to a recent social event.

Some of the boys are going to attempt to "crash" the dance disguised as girls.

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—A vote on the Hoch resolution to exclude aliens from the count in reapportioning the House of Representatives is planned by the House Judiciary Committee next Tuesday.

HORRORS ARE REVEALED BY REFUGEES

Napier Is Left a Shambles by Tremors; Flames Still Add to Dangers

Wellington, N. Z., Feb. 4 (AP)—Preliminary estimates of the death toll at Napier and Hastings jumped to 400 today when surveys of the damage caused by yesterday's earthquake and fire had only begun.

Eye-witnesses reported it was impossible to give any accurate figure at present, but agreed there were at least 300 dead in Napier and 100 in Hastings.

Some feared the death toll may exceed 1000 when all reports are made.

The number of injured at Napier was estimated at 1000. No figure on injured at Hastings was reported, but the number was believed to run into the hundreds.

ORDERED FROM CITY

Late today a general order was issued for the evacuation of Napier within two days. The sewerage system has been destroyed and the authorities feared a serious outbreak of disease if the inhabitants were not compelled to leave.

Fears prompted by scattered reports from the stricken area were more than realized in information collected from refugees arriving here today.

Survivors said the quake wrecked nearly all the stone buildings in Napier and that the fire, fanned by a breeze coming in from the sea, swept inland, destroying everything in its path.

Napier was a shambles. Streets were filled with debris and buildings which did not collapse from the first shocks leaned at dangerous angles. A heavy pall of dust arose from the ruins and mingled with the smoke from burning buildings to create additional terror.

Today the commander of the naval sloop Veronica, which was in Hawkes Bay when the quake struck, radioed the naval base here asking that all available demolition stores be sent to him at once. The request indicated his intention to blow up some of the buildings in Napier in an effort to check the fire still raging there.

AID FOR REFUGEES

The town of Palmerston, north, is preparing to receive 5000 refugees for whom the government is providing blankets and other equipment.

Among the injured at Napier is the Very Rev. Joseph Brocklehurst, archdeacon of Hawkes Bay. His spine is dislocated.

Fear-stricken refugees from the devastated regions arrived here today with tales of the horror attending the tremors, which lasted for more than five hours.

The work of search and rescue is being organized as quickly as possible by the Red Cross and governmental agencies. They are facing enormous difficulties, however, owing to the wide scope of the ruin and suffering.

Police have drawn a cordon across the island at Dannevirke, 75 miles south of Napier, in order to prevent sightseers hindering the rescue operations.

How Bandit Gang Robbed 'L' Paymaster at Point of Drawn Guns

"STICK 'EM UP; FORK OVER THAT BAG!" commanded one of four gunmen as Charles Symonds, an "L" paymaster, was held up and robbed of $12,000 in the Sullivan square terminal today. Photo diagram shows how three members of the gang covered Symonds with levelled guns while their pal started away with the bag of stolen cash. The robbery was staged on the stairs of a balcony connecting the outbound and inbound platforms. The dotted line shows direction in which gunmen fled after the robbery. They escaped in an auto. 2 N. H. CHILDREN SHARE RICHES

San Jose, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP)—Two New Hampshire children will not have to worry about funds for their education if they refrain from the use of tobacco, narcotics and liquor.

They are Chandler L. and William H. Keith, four and six year-old sons of Levi M. Keith of Manchester, N. H. Under terms of the will of the late Dr. William E. Keith of San Jose, exceeding $100,000, a trust fund is created to finance the youngsters' education until they are 25 years old.

They will be examined twice yearly by the Franklin National Bank of Franklin, N. H., trustee, to determine if the restrictions are observed.

In the event either or both fail to keep the requirements the education fund will go to the Clarke School for the Deaf at Northampton, Mass., to which the principal will revert after the boys have become 25. The boys are sons of Dr. Keith's half-brother.

New U. S. Airship Will Use "Blau" Gas

Lakehurst, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP)—Naval officials said today that assembly of the world's largest non-rigid airship will begin at the air station here in a few weeks. It will be the first American ship to use "blau" gas as fuel, eased by the Graf Zeppelin. Helium will be the lifting medium.

Prince and Commoner Plight Troth Over Sick Bed

Stockholm, Feb. 4 (AP)—According to old Swedish custom, Prince Lennart, who will forego a coronet to marry a commoner, and his fiancee have exchanged betrothal rings as a symbol of their plighted troth.

The exchange took place last night in the sick room of the young woman, Fraulein Karin Nissvandt, and in the presence of her father, a prominent Swedish industrialist of Dutch descent. Prince Lennart placed his ring on the finger of the girl, who, 19, is two years his junior, and then held out his own left hand to receive hers.

Afterward, Prince Lennart attended the theatre with his father. Prince William, who is understood to approve the marriage, although regretting that his son must disavow his royal rights.

The romance between Lennart and the fraulein has caught the popular fancy, which approves heartily the forthcoming marriage despite the refusal of King Gustave to sanction it. The king's part is regarded as purely formal and there are few Swedes who do not believe Gustave at heart is intrigued by the love affair of his grandson and the pretty young commoner.

The condition of Fraulein Karin, who is suffering from influenza, is said to be improving.

New Drive to Block Reapportionment

Washington, Feb. 4 (INS)—With many states facing the necessity of electing all members of the house at large in 1932 final effort to postpone reapportionment of the House was launched today.

The bill of Rep. Knutson (R.) of Minnesota to postpone the effective date of reapportionment for two years is the measure behind which forces opposing reapportionment are rallying. Unless Congress takes action reapportionment becomes automatic for the next election.

$4,000,000 Jobless Fund

Paris, Feb. 4 (AP)—An appropriation of 100,000,000 francs ($4,000,000) would be provided for unemployment relief under the terms of a bill deposited in the Chamber of Deputies today by the Socialist group.

2 Bay State Fugitives Are Caught in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 4 (INS)—Two alleged fugitives from Massachusetts were picked up in a furnished apartment in Harlem today and brought to the lineup at police headquarters.

Nillo Luoma, 28, a native of Finland, will be sent back to face a robbery charge in Kingbridge, Mass. Martha Seaman, 28, a waitress, will be charged with attempting to murder Ida Kovonan, a witness scheduled to testify against Luoma, police said.

GEN. BUTLER IN SECRET PARLEY

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—A secret conference was held today between Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, awaiting court-martial, and his counsel, Maj. Henry Leonard, at the Metropolitan Club.

Informed by telephone that such a crowd had gathered outside his office that four policemen had been called to control it, Maj. Leonard laughed and Gen. Butler joined.

Conferences were frequent between Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general of the Navy, and Capt. William C. Watts, prosecuting counsel.

An open hearing of the charges against Gen. Butler was demanded by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, in the Senate today, "in the name of justice and fair play."

$3000 a Month Asked by Mrs. Dinehart

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Application for $3000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees was filed today by Mrs. Louise Dinehart, who is suing Allan Dinehart, actor and playwright, for divorce.

Mrs. Dinehart declared her husband possesses property worth more than $1,000,000.

The actor's wife charges that she found him in his apartment with a woman who said:

"Of course, I live here. I love him and am proud of it."

FLOOD MAROONS MAINE FAMILY

Caratunk, Me., Feb. 4 (AP)—Back-water of the Kenebec river checked by an ice jam, today had overspread the Quebec highway near here for more than a quarter of a mile, marooning one family and menacing others.

Caratunk was free from the overflow but around the town the water continued to creep farther inland toward isolated farm homes. In places the water stood four feet deep over the road.

Concern was expressed for the welfare of the family of Horace Williams, two miles above the town. The cellar of their home was flooded today and, while the family was able to leave by means of snowshoes, the members were loath to leave stock and cattle. Boats could not be utilized because of the huge cakes of ice brought down from above.

TUNNEL EDITOR BURIED UNDER HEAVY MAIL

These Tunnel coupons are coming so fast that the Tunnel Editor can't list them fast enough for publication—and if he did try to publish them all, there wouldn't be room in the paper.

If this new East Boston traffic tunnel doesn't get a name, somehow, it's a pretty poor tunnel—no kidding.

For convenience sake, the list of tabulations has been cut down today the leading 20—although there are many hundreds of single designations submitted by Name the Tunnel enthusiasts.

CURLEY STILL AHEAD

Mayor Curley and his family, in one way or another, are far ahead of the field, and in all a total of 286 votes have thus far been tabulated bearing some Curley designation or other.

And if you are curious, there have been just 73 different ways in which the word Curley has been used in a name for the new tunnel.

Well—anyway, here are the 20 leaders, so far as the tabulation has gone.

THE RESULTS:

Curley Tunnel	58
James M. Curley, Jr.	56
James M. Curley Tunnel	40

INDIA WILL BE FREE, GANDHI DECLARES

Allahabad, India, Feb. 4 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi addressed 100,000 natives here today declaring it was written in heaven that India's struggle for complete independence would end victoriously.

Squatting half nude on the open air platform, he offered thanks "for the great sacrifices of the people" during the nine months he spent in prison. The great throng of white robed men, women and children, stood reverently, straining to catch every word. The gathering was like a gigantic American revival meeting with the congregation shouting and the Indian equivalent for amen.

"Our women, who were considered absolutely ignorant, abandoned their seclusion at the nation's call," he said. "They even offered their children in the fight for liberty.

"In a fight with guns old men, women, boys and girls are exempt, but in our holy crusade everybody can participate. God is with us. It is written in heaven that victory is bound to come if we follow the path of truth and non-violence."

He urged his people to abandon drinking and gambling, "for if our government falls into hands polluted with misdeeds our country will be ruined."

The Congress party announced today that its president and members of its war council will publicly manufacture salt in the great Maidan Square tomorrow.

This is the offence for which Gandhi was imprisoned, and is certain to result in the arrest of all who engage in it.

Gandhi Followers in Anti-Toddy Drive

Bombay, Feb. 4 (AP)—Followers of Mahatma Gandhi, go to the woods in bands, cutting down palm trees from which the Indians obtain their toddy, an alcoholic drink.

In the Surat district a hundred men wearing white caps cut down all the trees in the vicinity, broke all the toddy pots in which the liquor is made, assaulted the keeper of a toddy booth and his wife, robbing him of his money and the wife of her silver anklets.

Then they went to the Kirwas district, here they felled 45 palm trees, burned number of toddy shops and terrorized all who attempted to sell the drink.

Van Sweringens Plan New Lines in East

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Providence, R. I., Feb. 4—A man of towering frame, with the shoulders of a heavyweight wrestler and the sharp features of a Yankee storekeeper, pleaded, debated and orated here last night in behalf of the Van Sweringen railroad interests' proposed invasion of New England.

The man was William H. Boyd, friend and personal counsel of the Cleveland brothers, who in the short space of 10 years have developed from local real estate operators into two of the most colorful and daring characters in the history of American railroading.

His audience was 500 business magnates, railroad moguls and the representatives of the New England Governors and civic enterprises, assembled under the auspices of the Providence Chamber of Commerce in the Biltmore Hotel.

BENEFITS OUTLINED

Boyd, a bespectacled man of 60, whose massive figure dwarfed even the slender Governor Norman Case, unfolded the Van Sweringen's challenge in resonant voice, at times persuading, at times truculent as he sensed an audience half friendly and half antagonistic.

He declared:

That the Van Sweringens want to come into New England by acquiring the Boston & Maine Railroad in its entirety, thus to give to New England a direct connection with their Chesapeake & Ohio-Nickel Plate, ramifying from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada and from the Atlantic and Pacific.

That the Van Sweringens realize the Pennsylvania Railroad has acquired a dominating influence in the Boston & Maine and New Haven railroads.

That such an influence assumes all the benefits but none of the obligations of outright ownership, and that the people of New England should not permit their principal railroads to be captured by a single, alien system like the Pennsylvania.

AID TO NEW ENGLAND

That once the Van Sweringens are permitted to enter they not only will give New England egress to the western sources of her raw materials, but they will construct such new lines as may be necessary to develop New England's own resources, presumably by construction of the abandoned Southern New England railroad from Palmer and Worcester to Providence.

That New England's local pride and provincialism ought not blind her to the fact that consolidation of the New England railroads will have their far-flung terminals, with only restricted openings to the West and South.

The western giant was especially formidable when he declared that the acquisition of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven by the holding corporations of the Pennsylvania might be disastrous to the welfare of New England.

Boyd's attack upon the Pennsylvania and his repudiation of the all-New England system motion were heard with mixed feelings by the distinguished assemblage.

AUDIENCE DIVIDED

He was applauded to the echo by the Rhode Islanders, now served by the New Haven alone and seeking the entrance of the Nickel Plate and the ultimate construction of the defunct Southern New England, an option upon which has been acquired by the Providence Chamber of Commerce.

But the other half of the audience was composed, it would seem, of officers of the New Haven and Boston & Maine, of interested shareholders and presumably of agents of the Pennsylvania and the other great systems involved.

Whether Boyd was engaging in shadow boxing or an actual war to the hilt was not easy to determine. The audience as a whole seemed to sense that he was flaying the idea of Pennsylvania ownership of the Boston & Maine and New Haven with the realization that a mighty struggle is unavoidable for supremacy in the New England field.

But some of the audience crossed its fingers, realizing that the Van Sweringens are largely financed by the Morgans and The Guaranty Trust of New York, while the Pennsylvania draws its financial sustenance in large proportions from the Morgan house. Rumors that bankers "in the know" have effected a condition by which they can announce a merger of the Boston & Maine and New Haven whenever they are so disposed, filtered into the meeting.

RECORD SOUGHT ON DEPRESSION

All employers in New England were asked today by the industrial committee of the New England Council to begin keeping accurate records of the effect of the present depression on hours of work and earnings of their employes.

State, regional and local associations of manufacturers are asked to encourage their members to comply with the request.

"The time has come to urge all employers to give attention to the long-term problems of unemployment," the committee states.

"The information which we ask, if accurately recorded, will serve as basic data for intelligent study of the great problem of recurring unemployment and might lead to its solution."

"If opportunity for gathering this data is allowed to go unheeded, business will be confronted with all kinds of proposals and panaceas that for lack of definite data cannot be effectively studied.

"Let us lay the factual foundation for research into the great problem of mitigating the effects of unemployment."

One New England industry, the committee asserts, kept records which enabled it not only to keep its working force intact, but to allot work in proportion to the needs of the employes having the most dependents.

$100,000 Loss in Fire in Fitchburg

Fitchburg, Mass., Feb. 4 (AP)—A fire which started in the boiler room of the Universal Motion Picture Theater early today damaged the playhouse and destroyed seven of the nine stores in the same business block. Loss was estimated at $100,000.

The scene of the blaze was Main st., near North.

Fr. Lord to Speak on the 'Crusades'

Rev. Robert Lord, former Harvard professor and now professor of history at St. John's Seminary, Brighton, will address the members of the Boston College historical club tomorrow on the "Crusades." Fr. Lord while at Harvard was for years professor of history and served as president of the American Catholic Historical Association. He also was a member of the commission that considered the establishment of Poland as a nation.

A few years ago, Fr. Lord retired from his position at Harvard to study for the priesthood.

Ash Can Champion Out With Challenge

Springfield, Feb. 4 (AP)—Carlo Tranghese is disappointed. TREADWAY AND 2 CHALLENGED BY CARAWAY

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, said today he had telephoned to Representative Cramton, Republican, Michigan, and challenged the House member to repeat to him personally his accusation on the floor yesterday that anyone who said he was seeking a federal job was "an unadulterated liar."

Caraway, relating the incident off the floor, said he had called the Michigan member and that Cramton had three times hung up the telephone.

The row, which has gone far beyond usual congressional controversies, was begun when Caraway, in the Senate, condemned Cramton for leading the fight against the Senate $25,000,000 Red Cross fund and acused him of fixing up a job for himself after his retirement from Congress with the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

Cramton, in the House, said he was forbidden by rules from mentioning Caraway.

Caraway today said he had extended a public invitation to two members of the House to repeat to him statements they made about him in the House yesterday.

Caraway telephoned as well to Representative Treadway, Republican, first district of Massachusetts, who also replied in the House to criticism by Caraway.

"I told Mr. Cramton," he Arkansan said off the floor, "that I would be glad to arrange for him to tell me to my face what he said yesterday.

"He replied he had made his statement on the floor and publicly, and had nothing more to say, and then hung up.

"I called him back twice and each time he hung up. I finally told him before he hung up the last time what I thought of him."

Einstein Chuckles Over Theft of Wine

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP)—Albert Einstein was chuckling over recent dispatches revealing his summer home in Caputh, Germany, had been looted by robbers who raided the wine cellar.

Frau Elsa looked at her husband, and sighed. She whispered in a confidential tone:

"We have not told him about the Japanese embroidery stolen. That was valuable, and he would not laugh."

$30,000 GIFT TO AID JOBLESS

A check for $30,000 to aid the unemployed of Boston was presented to Mayor Curley today, the gift of the employes and officials of the Sears, Roebuck Company of Boston.

The mayor turned the check over to Simon Hecht, chairman of the overseers of the public welfare.

The Boston employes of Sears, Roebuck Co. each contributed a day's pay a month for four months, totaling $7500. The officers contributed an equal amount, as did Julius Rosenwald, Chicago philanthropist and chairman of the board of the company, and Gen. R. E. Wood, the president.

Presentation of the check was made by Claude M. Henry, general manager in Boston, who was accompanied by Chauncey S. Williams, district manager of retail stores.

"The splendid example set by the Sears, Roebuck Co. is worthy of emulation by every big concern in Boston," said Mayor Curley, "and if all firms doing business in this city would contribute in like manner, the lot would be easier and the burden lighter for those who have for nearly a year been walking in the shadows of depression

BUICK STANDS PAT ON 1931 MODELS

The present line of 1931 Buick straight eights will not be replaced by new models this summer, according to an announcement recently made by E. T. Strong, president of the Buick Motor Co.

Mr. Strong said, "For many years it has been the custom of the Buick Motor Co. to make announcements in connection with new models, just previous to August 1 of every year. However, the 1931 Buick line of straight eights equipped with silent shift synero-mesh transmission has met with such spontaneous approval of the motoring public that we have decided to continue the present line beyond our usual announcement date.

"In planning the 1931 series of Buick straight eights we had very definitely in mind this plan of uniformity of announcement. This appears to meet with favor on the part of the public and our dealers and also is favorably considered by all manufacturers as evidenced by the suggestion advanced by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, of which the Buick Motor Co. is a member. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce plan is that all its members announce their cars during the last months of each calendar year."

As concrete evidence of the increasing popularity of these new Buick straight eights comes the report from C. S. Henshaw, manager of the Noyes Buick Sales Co., that this concern's new car business for the month just closed shows approximately a 72 per cent increase over January of last year.

WILLYS TREAD NOW WIDER

While wider than normal trends have been a practice for some time in th high priced models, the announcement that the entire 1931 Willys line includes among its constructional feature a tread increased to 58½ in. is claimed by Herbert Fitch, district manager for Willys-Overland as an advance in the low price classification.

Willys-Overland announcements state that it is the first car manufacturer to increase the tread to 58½ inches on low priced cars. This feature is now numbered among other advantages first introduced by Willys-Overland in the low priced field, such as four-wheel brakes, full force feed lubrication and low center of gravity.

In addition to the new tread providing roomier rear seats, the front seats on the Willys sixes and eights are also wider than formerly. The width across the windshield is three inches greater than in the previous models, and the shoulder width, which is the main dimension of comfort, is two and one-half inches wider.

THE FLYING CLOUD was one of the famous clipper ships built by Donald McKay of East Boston. When this picture was made, in 1851, the Flying Cloud was the longest and largest clipper ship in the world. She made a record in her first voyage "around the horn," to San Francisco, and as a speedster, reflected great credit on her builder and on Boston.

NO-NOX ETHYL AIDS STARTING

"The manufacturers of motor cars have found that the higher the compression the better the performance. To increase compression the motor builder reduces the size of the combustion chamber. The principle of high compression may be demonstrated with a rubber ball—the harder you throw it to the ground, the higher it bounces; or take the old fashion muzzle loading shot gun, the tighter the powder is tampd the greater the force of the shot. In the motor the tighter the piston squeezes or compresses the charge of fuel before firing, the greater will be the power from the explosion," says an official of the Gulf Refining Co.

"And here's where No-Nox Ethyl steps into the breach. The tendency of ordinary gasoline to knock limited the compression. By mixing Ethyl compound with No-Nox the knock is stopped," he said.

"Vibration in the motor is a deadly enemy to car performance—it is communicated to the frame and thence to the body with the resultant loosening of nuts and bolts. No-Nox Ethyl minimizes vibration and thereby reduces deterioration.

"Consistent users of No-Nox Ethyl over a period of a year or more will find the general condition of car and motor to be very satisfactory. Gulf Service stations are now dispensing No-Nox Ethyl.

"It might also say," he continued, "that starting is troublesome on cold winter mornings or even when the weather has a pleasant snap. A gasoline of low end point, like No-Nox Ethyl for instance, vaporizes more quickly and completely, making starting easy."

Socony to Pay Pensions to 45,000 of Its Employes

New York, Feb. 4—Standard Oil Co. of New York has insured its 45,000 employes against old age, it was revealed today by Herbert L. Pratt, chairman.

The plan, under which the oil company and employes will pay premiums of millions of dollars annually, provides for the retirement of men at 65 and women at 55. A person retiring after 25 years of service will receive an annuity of at least 70 per cent of his average pay.

The pension retired employes are to receive approximately 2 per cent of their total pay since joining the plan. While at work the employes are insured against death and disability.

CRIME REPORT READY SOON

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Torn apart by the controversy over prohibition, the law enforcement commission assembled today to continue surveying the whole field of crime.

Immediately before the members were two virtually completed reports, one dealing with criminal statistics and the other with the prosecution of crime. Unless disagreements develop over the material or form of these surveys it was held possible both might be in President Hoover's hands before the end of the month.

Preparation of the two reports was directed by Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard, the expert on statistics, and Monte Lemann of Louisiana, who specialized in prosecutions. In conjunction with this latter report will be a survey analysis of both prosecutions and courts conducted by Alfred Bettman of Cincinnati.

Honeymoon of Week Ended by Shooting

Salamanca, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—The honeymoon of less than a week of Wesley Dieter, 42, and Mrs. Vivian King Dieter, 30, was brought to a tragic end in a farmhouse nine miles west of this place last night. A charge of buckshot, fired through a window while the bride was sitting on the knee of her husband, critically wounded Mrs. Dieter, and another charge fired killed her husband.

Sheriff Frank A. Annis arrested Darwin King, 35, former husband of the Dieter woman.

King admitted the killing, the officials said.

"I'D GIVE a Million Dollars for a Good Night's Sleep!"

Another night of useless going to bed! Another night of tossing and turning and tossing and turning until you think you're going mad. No wonder you're more fit for a sanitarium than for a business office. No wonder you look old and worn. You're paying one of the heaviest prices of acidity—sleeplessness! Besides causing acid indigestion, excess acid forming in the stomach sets up poisons in the intestinal tracts which sap your strength and energy, irritate your nerves and make them so raw you can't work by day or sleep at night.

Acidity is stopped correctly today by a remarkable tablet called Pyrosan. Pyrosan consists of four simple, harmless, salt acid ingredients in scientifically balanced proportions which not only afford immediate relief from sour, acid stomach but remain for a longer time in the stomach to prevent recurring Acidity between meals. In other words, Pyrosan is intended not only to afford you prompt comfort but permanency of results, as well.

To see what a difference it makes when you are normal and not "acid," get a package of Pyrosan tablets today from any druggist and take for just one week as directed. If one week doesn't surprise you, your money will be refunded.

IT WILL When we say Pazo ointment will relieve any form of Piles we mean it. If you want to experience the comforting relief this thoroughly tested formula will give, try a few applications. Money back if it fails. Get the handy tube with pile pipe—75c, or in the tin box—60c, at any drug store.

Clash Over Estate

MRS. BEATRICE H. WHOLEAN

MRS. JOHN B. HENDERSON

CHARGING that her grandmother, Mrs. John B. Henderson, wealthy Washington society leader, had become infirm and weak due to illness and advanced age, Mrs. Beatrice H. Wholean, adopted granddaughter, has filed suit to prevent a gift of the Henderson mansion to the U. S., as a home for vice-presidents. (Int'l photo.)

WIDOW REVEALS KIN'S ADOPTION

Washington, Feb. 4 (US)—Mrs. John B. Henderson's offer to give the government a pretentious mansion as a home for the Vice-President resulted today in a family controversy which had capital society buzzing with gossip.

The 70-Year-old widow of the late senator from Missouri issued two startling assertions following the filing of a suit by her granddaughter, Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean, to prevent the gift.

Mrs. Henderson declared that Mrs. Wholean is not her real granddaughter. She further questioned a document showing that she had adopted her granddaughter on Dec. 20, 1924.

"I have no recollection of signing it," Mrs. Henderson said.

Today it was learned that a sealed record of adoption of "Beatrice Henderson" had been filed in the District Supreme Court, and signed by "Mary Henderson." Until today the record had never been made public.

The petition for adoption further stated that the child had been adopted by John B. Henderson, Jr., deceased, and that she had always been considered as the grandaughter of Mrs. Henderson.

Anita Stewart's Grandmother Dead

New York, Feb. 4 (AP) Mrs. Lucy Knox, grandmother of Anita Stewart, motion picture actress, died today at the home of her son, William H. Stewart, Anita's father. She was 94 and founder of the first school in the Sheepshead section of Brooklyn.

Mrs. Knox, known as "Aunt Lucy," played a prominent part in the escape of "Boss" William M. Tweed to Cuba in 1875 when authorities were scouring the country for him.

Clark Rum Ruling Ignored in Suit

Morristown, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP)—Federal Judge William A. Clark's decision that the Eighteenth Amendment is invalid was disregarded today. Judge Albert H. Holland held that George Snyder was not entitled to compensation for injuries received while working in a saloon because he was "engaged in an illegal enterprise, the sale of liquor." Snyder claimed he was entitled to compensation since, under Clark's decision, he was engaged in a lawful business.

10,000 Jobs in School Bill

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 4 (AP)—A bill to increase from 14 to 15 years the age at which a child could leave school to go to work, introduced in the Legislature today would, it was said, provide at least 10,000 more jobs.

Another set of famous historical pictures appear in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser in the "OLD GLORY" PICTURE CONTEST. $2500 in cash awards to winners. $250 each week. A new contest with separate prizes each week. You can start next week.

MARY NASH SCORES IN AMERICAN PREMIERE OF 'BARBARA' AT WILBUR

PLENTY OF DRAMA IN PLAY

The Cast

Paolo Vanni ..... Rollo Peters
Sandro ..... Donald Douglas
Lina ..... Genevieve Belasco
Lewis ..... Horace Sinclair
Don Carlos von Welgand ..... John Egerly
Barbara ..... Mary Nash
Gemma ..... Alberta Curtis
Riccardo Vanni ..... Herbert Braggiotti

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE NOVELTY of an American premiere in the spoken drama is enough to stir the dullest imagination. And to give further stimulus to the playgoer's natural interest, Jimmie Cooper, dauntless impressario, stretched a daring hand across the sea and brought from Italy a play called "Barbara." He turned it loose last night at the Wilbur.

• • •

AN INNOCENT title means little in the theater, as you discovered in the unfolding of this play's exotic narrative. Barbara herself might have been a nicer girl if the circumstances had been different. At any rate, with deft handling, Mary Nash took the character in charge and led her from one misadventure to another, played the artist's model with reckless abandon, jostled the morals of every male with whom she came in contact—and finally paid the price of her folly. Either in deception over his own and plight or because the demands of his profession led him into excesses, a brother model in the group of Vanni's studio strangled Barbara to death while the master weilded a pliant brush.

Nicolas Young

• • •

AND THAT, in its extremity, was the "Barbara" of Gennaro Mario Caprel, which in its adaptation by Jean Bart called all the faithful to the Wilbur to witness the first performance on the American stage. If the performance lacked humor, which you might easily suppose was not without engaging interest. As a story the play was frankly Continental in the tenor of the big moments. With considerably more conversation than the reception demanded, the women in regular turn cast amorous eyes toward the model called Barbara. Upon each of the prevailing suitors the girl bestowed a coy but inviting smile. Two other men, not already mentioned, stood alongside as willing and expectant victims.

• • •

THE OVERSTEPPING Barbara was played in fine fettle by Miss Nash. There was no sympathy for her as a character, but there was admiration for the manner in which the role was dressed. Sometimes in pajamas, sometimes in other frills, she plied her trade. Chiefly she was arrayed in lingeries of one sort or another. In some ways this gave you the most lasting impression of "Barbara." Among the perspiring toilers of the night were Rollo Peters, who wiped honest, genuine sweat from a fevered brow; Donald Douglas, whose principal diversion was to strangle the fickle lady at the last moment, and Herbert Braggiotti, whose responsibilities were mostly in the form of declamation.

• • •

THERE WAS NO fun in "Barbara," but there was plenty of drama adroitly hidden beneath its specious dialogue. Actors must talk as well as strut through showy scenes. And here they paraded.

Loew's State

"Dance, Fools, Dance," starring Joan Crawford, opens at Loew's State Friday. Lester Vail, a newcomer to the screen, who recently made his debut in "Beau Ideal," is Miss Crawford's leading man.

Screen shorts on the program include Our Gang in "Little Daddy," a Crazy Cat cartoon, "Taken for a Ride," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, "Rough and Tumble," and Hearst Metrotone News.

Screen Shorts

Charles Winninger, stage comedian, has been signed for an important role in "Gambling Daughters," the Booth Tarkington story which Hobart Henley is directing at Universal City. Winninger created the role of Cap'n Andy Hawks in the Ziegfeld stage production of "Show Boat." Others in the cast of "Gambling Daughters" are Conrad Nagel, Sidney Fox, Betty Davis, Emma Dunn, Humphrey Bogart, Bert Roach, Slim Summerville and David Durand.

• • •

William Wyler, has been assigned the direction of "The Behaviour of Mrs. Crane." Dale Van Every and Don Ryan are busy on the adaptation of this stage play. No cast has as yet been selected.

MARILYN MILLER RETURNS TO HOLLYWOOD IN APRIL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4—Marilyn Miller is due in Hollywood in April. The premiere danseuse of the stage will not become, however, the premiere danseuse of the screen for Warner Brothers have signed her with the idea she is to play comedy dramas.

If the play calls for a song or an incidental dance, fine and dandy, but there will be no more "Sallys" or "Sunnys" in her life. "Sally" was a success, but "Sunny" did not go as well on the screen as Warner Brothers had hoped. The fault was not Miss Miller's, nor yet Warner Brothers, but merely one of those things. The dear public had grown tired of musical comedy on the screen and as a wise merchant once said, "The customer is always right."

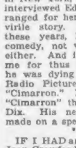
RICHARD DIX, who was stirred into action as an actor of consequence in "Cimarron," is to have another big chance. While in New York, William Le Baron interviewed Edna Ferber and arranged for her to write another virile story. Richard Dix, all these years, has been making comedy, not very good comedy either. And if you will pardon me for thus expressing myself, I was dying on his feet when Radio Pictures starred him in "Cimarron." He is so good in "Cimarron" that you see a new Dix. His next talkie will be made on a spectacular scale.

• • •

IF I HAD anything to say about Joan Crawford, I'd insist that she put on a few pounds. Joan has gotten very thin, almost too thin. She starves herself so that she will keep below weight. Now that she has established herself and is such a popular favorite throughout the country she needn't stay on a starvation diet. She is too pretty a girl to grow emaciated. Her next picture, "The Torch Song," will have Neil Hamilton playing opposite her in the role of Howard Palmer. Harry Beaumont directing. One of the pleasantest things in Hollywood is the way Neil Hamilton, after all these years, is being recognized.



Joan Crawford

BEBE DANIELS has rolled up her sleeves and gone to work for the Arkansas sufferers, and when Bebe goes to work it means something. She is collecting canned goods, flour, potatoes, old clothes and money. If you don't want to go and buy the aforementioned staples you can send money, for Bebe has made an arrangement whereby she can buy canned goods for the sufferers below wholesale. Warner Brothers are aiding her with their radio. In case you would like to do something for these poor people who have been so desperate through the drouth and in such dire need of help send your contributions to 223 North Western ave., to Miss Daniels' secretary.

WELL, LEW AYRES has decided to stay with Universal. A week or so ago Lew's representative was talking to any producer who was interested. The lad had a grievance against Universal and he didn't care who knew it. Now he is back on the lot, getting ready to be starred in "Mississippi." I was told that he was dissatisfied with his salary.

• • •

OVER MY COFFEE and grapefruit this morning I went into a huddle with Patsy Parsons to tell her that her father has a job. Jiggs being her parent, will play the title role in "Trader Airedale." How come they call a perfectly good Boston bull, "Trader Airedale?" Anyway, Zyd Myer and Jules White are making a dog burlesque on "Trader Horn" with Jiggs in the same role that Harry Carey created on the screen. Patsy told me she didn't think so much of the old man doing an African special because she said he never cared for lions, tigers and elephants.

MILLIONAIRES AS EXTRAS

Fifty-one millionaires appeared as "extras" in Radio Pictures' "Cimarron," epic picture which has its premiere at RKO Keith's at a midnight showing tomorrow night.

Chief Bacon Rind, 80-year-old Osage Indian, and 50 of his tribesmen journeyed to Hollywood to appear in the Edna Ferber epic to insure authentic Indian types. They are among the richest men in the United States, as the result of the oil fields developed on their lands in the Osage nation.

Louis Brave, full blooded Osage and university graduate, acted as interpreter for the Indians.

"Cimarron," a story dealing with early Indian Territory history and the Oklahoma land rush in 1889, was directed by Wesley Ruggles. Richard Dix is the star.

Loew's Orpheum

Greta Garbo will be seen at Loew's Orpheum Friday in her latest, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking triumph, "Inspiration."

America's girl jazz band, "Fourteen Bricktops," with Mlle Bobbie Grice, headlines the vaudeville. Another important artist on the bill is Oklahoma Bob Albright, famous Western humorist, assisted by Bevery Hirkes and Eleanor Hoffman. Also on the bill are George Lyons, Sim Moore and Pal and the McDonald Trio.

Mary Wigman

It is announced that Mary Wigman will visit Boston for a second recital before returning to Europe. The great dancer will appear in Symphony Hall on Saturday evening, March 7.

VERDI'S 'AIDA' FILLS OPERA HOUSE

By MOSES SMITH

THE Chicago Opera Company produced last evening at the Boston Opera House Verdi's "Aida," without which a two weeks' season would be incomplete. It was the opera itself rather than the able cast which attracted the audience that filled the house.

"Aida" is Verdi, often at the very summit of his powers, a masterpiece of opera of the old school, foreshadowing, as well, "Otello" and even "Falstaff." Let us proceed to last night's performance, which was more than competent.

The cast, with one exception, consisted of excellent singers. The two leading women, Claudia Muzio as Aida and Cyrena Van Gordon as Amneris, gave admirable portrayals of character and sang with admirable artistry.

• • •

MME. MUZIO'S voice, perhaps, is not cast in quite the heroic mould for which Verdi wrote. Yet so skilfully was the voice used that even in the ensembles the illusion of power—if not the actual thing—was attained. And, of course, Mme. Muzio sang with the wondrous expressiveness of which she is mistress in Italian song. Miss Van Gordon's magnificent organ had sufficient vent in the great role she was singing. And we cannot recall anything finer she has done in Boston than her singing in the last act last night.

Cesare Formichi's masterly singing of the character of Amonasro as well as the smooth-voiced Ramfis of Virgilio Lazzari and the capable King of Chase Baromeo were heard last year in this opera.

• • •

THE PERENNIAL Radames, in Chicagoan productions of "Aida," remains Charles Marshall. Not seeking to be flippant, one might ask, Why? For while he is the only tenor in the Italian wing of the company with the robust quality of tone long associated with the part, most of this tone is swallowed up before it leaves his throat. His other principal commodity in trade, so far as we have been able to discover, is a prolonged high note, inflexibly maintained while he strides pompously across stage. If this is great singing, "Aida" is a comic opera.

Since this operatic tragedy is also spectacle it is of importance to note that it was mounted with something approaching splendor in costume and scenery. The adequate stage-band and very good scenery. The ballets were competent if not imaginative. The stage direction seemed freshened, as in the operas of the past week.

Today's Operas

This afternoon — Massenet's "La Navarraise" with Miss Garden; Messrs. Mason, Cotreuil. Conductor Cooper. Followed by Massenet's "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame" with Miss Garden; Messrs. Formichi, Cotreuil, Ritch, Ringling, Nicolich and Defrere, Conductor Lauwers.

Tonight — Wagner's Tannhauser" with Mmes. Rodeli and Leider; Messrs. Strack, Bockelmann, Baromeo and Habich. Conductor Cooper.

YOUNG URGES STRONGER LAW ON BANKING

Washington, Feb. 4 (AP)—Amendment of the Constitution to protect the American people from a recurrence of present unstable banking conditions was held today by Owen D. Young, New York financier, to be the only resource if it is found the Federala Government "has no authority" to apply corrective measures.

Testifying before the Senate Banking Investigating Committee, Young said:

"We have seen thousands of bank failures and it is a great reflection on the American people if they can't get protection against this condition. And this is a period of prosperity, of disturbed economic conditions, true, but of prosperity."

A requirement that all commercial deposit banks be members of the Federal Reserve System was held by Young to be essential in the development of a more sound banking system.

"It will not prevent bank failures—no law or system can do that—but it will, in my judgment, minimize them greatly," he said.

Reviewing the stock speculative periods of 1927 and 1928, Young said it "now seems clear" that the action taken or not taken by the Reserve System "was at some point unwise or ineffective."

BRUNKER GANG TALK DISMISSED

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP)—The special grand jury has dismissed the recent testimony of Albert R. Brunker, chairman of the civic safety committee as "hearsay, general in character," and as evidence "incompetent" to its investigation of police affairs.

The grand jury called Brunker after Boston newspapers quoted him as making public charges that "Al Capone has 6000 officials on his payroll," that "80 per cent of Chicago judges are criminals" and that police were covering up the slayers of Alfred Lingle and seven Moran gangsters.

In a statement yesterday the body said Brunker had denied to it that he made the statements as published and had offered no evidence in support of the alleged charges or any "competent evidence whatsoever."

Nine Feared Lost in Seaplane Crash

Plymouth, England, Feb. 4 (AP)—Nine men in the crew of a Royal Air Force seaplane were feared lost today when the ship went into a dive while maneuvering over Plymouth Sound, struck the water with great force and was wrecked by an explosion.

Rescuers picked up two officers and one of the crew, all injured, but Commander Tucker, Flying Officer Wood and seven enlisted men were missing. Divers recovered one body this afternoon.

MARSHAL FOCH'S WAR MEMOIRS

FOE HURLS 200 DIVISIONS ON ALLIES' WEAKEST POINT

FOCH FORETOLD BITTER ATTACK AT SECRET LONDON PARLEY

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch described his efforts to solidify the Allied defense in Belgium, despite the fact that he had no written authority to command beyond his own post with the French Army. Lack of munitions and war material hampered the Allied operations, and with the diversified fighting forces it became more and more apparent to Foch that a unity of command was desirable. But this was not destined to be realized until the spring of 1918, when the great German offensive made such a step imperative. In today's instalment Marshal Foch tells of the crisis the Allies faced in March, 1918.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH
Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

The German artillery suddenly opened a violent bombardment along the whole of the front between the valleys of the Scarpe and the Oise at 4 a. m. on March 21, 1918. At 9 o'clock, under cover of a thick fog, the enemy's infantry reached the positions which the British armies had occupied since the spring of 1917—namely, on the north, the Third army (General Byng), between Arras and the region of Le Catelet, and on the south, the Fifth army (General Gough), from the Le Catelet region to Barisis-aux-Bois.

The Third army, covering a front of 25 miles, had 10 divisions in the front line and six in reserve. The Fifth army, on a front of 37 miles, had 11 divisions in the front line, with three infantry and three cavalry divisions in reserve.

Opposing these, the German attacking forces were grouped in three armies. On the North, in the Arras region, was the Seventeenth Army (Otto von Below) and in the centre between Cambrai and Le Catelet, the Second Army (Von der Marwitz). Both belonged to the group of Armies of the Crown Prince of Bavaria. To the South, resting on the valley of the Oise, was the Eighteenth Army (Von Hutier) forming part of the group of armies of the German Crown Prince.

Perfect Troops
German Forces Left Naught for Chiefs to Desire

At the time these armies made their assault on the British positions, the Allies were unaware of their exact strength, but they had an approximate idea. A study made three months previously at French General Headquarters, had shown that the Germans, now relieved of all menace from Russia, could have available on March 1, 1918, for the Western front, some two hundred divisions.

These could furnish an offensive mass of eighty divisions with one thousand heavy batteries. It was to be presumed that at least fifty of these divisions would be employed for the initial actions, thus giving the Germans in the zone chosen for attack a numerical superiority of two to one.

The ability of the generals who would direct these operations was unquestioned, but for it had been fully tested. General Von Below had gained a high and well deserved reputation in the course of the attacks made on the Italian front in October, 1917. General Von Hutier at about the same period had achieved important results at Riga on an attack which he had prepared with perfect secrecy and carried out suddenly and won with the utmost vigor.

The tool which Hindenburg and Ludendorff wielded in the spring of 1917 seemed, both from the viewpoint of material and troop training, to be of a condition and temper that left nothing to be desired.

Every German soldier was convinced that he was about to win the great campaign which would bring peace. Confident in this excellent instrument, the German Supreme Command proceeded to employ it against a strategic objective from which it hoped to obtain results not only swift but decisive.

To this end, the Germans selected one of the most sensitive parts of the Allied front, namely the junction between the British and French Armies. By aiming a well prepared and vigorously executed blow to put the direction of Amiens, it might be possible to separate these armies.

Then by exploiting the initial success and widening the breach, the British would be thrown back on the sea, the French on Paris; the two principal adversaries would thus be put out of action and the coalition broken before the American Army could effectively intervene. Such were the possibilities which presented themselves to the German High Command.

In the north of France, moreover, special facilities for this manoeuvre were already at hand due to the existence there of a dense and conveniently oriented railway net that led toward Amiens, one of the vital points of the Allied communications.

On the greater part of the front of attack indeed, the resistance would be in all probability, less firmly organized than anywhere else for the Allies had only been in possession of these positions for a year—that is, since they had been voluntarily abandoned by the Germans.

Behind them and stretching up to the Amiens, the ground was like a desert, having been devastated in the systematic destruction carried out by the enemy in the spring of 1917 or torn to pieces during the battle of the Somme in the summer of 1916.

The German High Command believed, therefore, that all the trumps were in their hands!

Parley in London
Foch and Haig in Perfect Accord

However, neither British nor French general headquarters was unaware of the enemy's intentions. Ever since February reports had indicated that the Germans had settled upon the region between the Oise and the Scarpe and the Champagne country lying on either side of Rheims, as their principal zones of attack.

But, whereas the British judged that the enemy's main blow would fall in Champagne, General Petain thought it would be directed against the British front north of theOise. In this latter case, the point of junction between the British and French forces seemed to him to be inevitably the point of least resistance and one where it would be more difficult to fight a battle than anywhere else.

The chief of the French general staff (General Foch) and the military representatives at Versailles had done their best during the winter to remedy this weakness, but their endeavors had been practically fruitless.

On March 13, 14 and 15, the allied governments had met in conference in London in order, more particularly, to decide the question of forming the Allied General Reserve, which fell to my charge as president of the Versailles Executive Committee.

At the meeting on the 14th, Marshal Haig, who took part in the conference, declared that he was unable to assure to the formation of this reserve the participation requested of him and furnish the number of divisions which it would require. In spite of my protest, the British Government supported him in his stand, and the French Government accepted without qualification the British view.

At the meeting on the 15th, since this solution on the part of the two governments was still causing me much anxiety, I asked to be heard and I pointed out the defects existing in the organization of the allied command at the very moment the coalition was about to engage in a decisive battle of the utmost importance and which all agreed could not be far off.

Experience justified me in saying what I did. From the begining of the war we had fought in numerous battles in which the various Allied armies had taken a share. In 1914, on the Marne and at Arras, French and British; on the Yser and at Ypres, French, British and Belgians; on the Piave in 1917, Italians, French and British.

None of these battles could have succeeded without a centralizing organ which made it possible to obtain concerted action amongst the various Allied forces. Without it, our efforts, instead of concording, would have been dispersed and the common cause would have suffered.

Under the circumstances now existing, this organ would have been the commanding officer of the Allied general reserve, had it been formed. In the absence, however, of this allied instrument, it was much to be feared that the French and British armies, on which the enemy's blows were about to fall, would each be governed by considerations of its own particular interests and dangers, and would each lose sight of the common weal, although that was more important than anything else. In a word, the Allied battle might be seriously compromised under existing conditions, because unity of view and of action would be lacking.

My remarks and predictions are contained in the minutes of the London Conference of March 15. They greatly impressed the head of one government, Mr. Lloyd George, though without causing the conference to modify the decision it had taken on the 14th. Six days later they were to receive ample justification on the field of battle.

Be that as it may, on the eve of the great German offensive, the Allied governments had decided to depend solely upon the understanding between Mars.-al Haig and General Petain for meeting a situation which loomed dark with peril. As a matter of fact, the two commanders-in-chief had taken special measures to meet the threatened danger.

Great Issue Up
Can Either Commander Keep Pledge of Aid?

These were on the part of General Petain by placing in reserve at Clermont the Third Army (General Humbert), composed of five infantry divisions, a cavalry corps and three regiments of artillery destined for the British zone, either between the Oise and the Sommec on the part of Marshal Haig, by engaging to send, in the event of an attack on the French front, an army of from six to eight divisions with four to six groups of field artillery and two groups of heavy artillery, on his understanding, however, that this force would not be forthcoming if an extensive German offensive were directed against the British front.

The arrangements, however excellent, they were, nevertheless presented grave imperfections and omissions if they were to meet the threat of an offensive capable of striking at several points and of following up a success in some one direction previously fixed upon.

The promises of mutual support by the two commanders-in-chief, moreover, were hedged around with reservations avowed by Field Marshal Haig, but equally present in the mind of General Petain. The latter, although taking the British front into consideration, contemplated "the ever-increasing possibility of a German offensive directed at one and the same time against our front in Champagne and against the British front."

Under these circumstances, where the thick and menacing fog of battle arose and spread across to a limitless horizon, which of the two commanders would dare to part with the reserves he had promised?

Of what value would be these engagements in the presence of those unforeseeable happenings which inevitably accompany, in their form or in their execution, the development of a great hostile operation, and which might exceed or modify the conditions which dictated the arrangements between the two Allied commanders?

Would either of them have the temerity to look beyond the limited field of action of his own army, when each was responsible to his government for the proper interests of his own country and regardful as he must be of the sacrifices entailed and the reinforcements he might be forced to call for?

When the time arrived to take vital decisions, would either be able to shake off this sense of responsibility in order to bring to his threatened neighbor succor that would be appropriate, rapid and sufficient, and which might have to be sent to a considerable distance?

Even if he should be willing to do all this—and it must be remembered that it was here a question of fighting a decisive battle whose violence was sure to be as great, as its extent was undetermined—would he be able to bring his reinforcements into action rapidly when staffs and line officers were still strangers to each other, ignorant each of the other's needs, means and methods, and whose intercourse was based on conventions and protocols, naturally rigid and inevitably slow?

For these reasons the agreement between the commanders-in-chief, when they were discussed in London, had seemed to me full of weaknesses and absolutely inadequate. Events were soon to prove it. The Allied governments assumed a heavy responsibility in so readily sheltering behind and risking their tranquility upon this simple agreement between two chiefs, each having his own interests to guard.

In tomorrow's instalment in the Boston Evening American, Marshal Foch tells of the serious crisis caused by the great German offensive in March, 1918.

Leaders in Germany's Last Great Push

GEN. LUDENDORFF MARSHAL VON HINDENBURG

IN THE HOPE of shattering the Allied lines along the western front Marshal von Hindenburg and Gen. Ludendorff both planned and headed the great offensive launched in March, 1918. It was this drive that led to the appointment of Marshal Foch as Supreme Commander of the Allied Armies after the foe had attacked on a 50-mile front.

Haverhill Legion Post Thanks Hearst Papers

Editor Boston American:

I wish to inform you of the following resolution adopted by Lorraine Post No. 29, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S.

"Whereas, Lorraine Post No. 29, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., in meeting duly assembled, January 28, 1931, voted unanimously to commend and laud the Boston Evening American and other Hearst publications for the splendid and valuable support given to the movement for the immediate cash payment of the Adjusted Service Certificate, otherwise known as the Soldiers' Bonus.

"Be it resolved: That Lorraine Post No. 29, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. of Haverhill, Mass., does hereby heartily thank and commend the Boston Evening American and other Hearst publications for the untiring support they have given to all veterans in this nation-wide movement for the immediate cash payment of the Adjusted Service Certificate or Soldiers' Bonus, and urging Congress to immediately pass the Hon. Wright Patman bill."

We, as individual veterans, and as a composite organization, appreciate what your great newspapers are doing for our cause and we are taking this opportunity to express our appreciation for your timely assistance in our greatest hour of need.

Yours truly,
ERNEST M. SWEENEY,
Post Adjutant, Lorraine Post, No. 29, V. F. W., Haverhill.

Bowing to Wealth in Court and Elsewhere

Editor Boston American:

This everlasting bowing down before wealth, as instanced in a recent trial at court, reminds me of a cripple. He lived for many years at the edge of a large city in this state. He sat all day in the sun and cold selling papers. He had hundreds of friends who would go out of their way to buy a paper from him. He was anything but rich.

He always said "good morning" to every one who approached him. Every one knew him in that section. He had not much, but he had plenty of encouragement and hopefulness to distribute among those who sought his advice. He was a good talker, and possessed a good mind.

He always wore a flower in his button hole, and kept a smile on his face. When not selling papers he was in a little shanty during the winter growing potted plants. In the summer time he carried his love of flowers to a little spot of land outside of his little window. He was rich everywhere. He was the only rich man I knew in the right sense of that term.

Play Game 50-50 To Live Together

Editor Boston American:

"The Art of Living Together" was well described in a humorous way the other evening at meeting of representative persons of all classes in Ford Hall. Dr. Samuel McC. Lindsay of Brookline, a native of Scotland, was the speaker. He threw out these hints and from what I read in your paper of a pending divorce suit. It struck me that it might be very helpful to spread his conclusion about this magic art of living together.

To boil down his conclusions they are as follows:

We must understand each other. We must seek to idealize each other. We must play the game of life on a 50-50 basis. We must cultivate a sense of humor. We must practice relaxation.

I offer these as an antidote to many divorce cases in Boston courts.

Reader Says Give Groundhog a Rest

Editor Boston American:

I do hope that there would be a let-up on that groundhog business, which seems to take up the interests of many people on Feb. 2, Candlemas Day. It is resurrected every year and it is getting to be a wornout chestnut.

Why not put some other meaning into Feb. 2, which is Candlemas Day, meaning on that day there was a candle procession to consecrate all the candles to be used in the churches during the year.

As nearly all churches of every denomination are using today candle light in some particular way, the old custom of renewing candles should be made prominent. Give us a rest on the groundhog business!

Raising School Age Presents a Problem

Editor Boston American:

There is an interesting discussion going on in this state with reference to raising the school age. The Department of Education calls for raising the age at which a child may leave school and enter industry from 14 to 15 and the grade requirement from the sixth to the seventh grade.

The bill of the Women's Trade Union raises the age at which a child may leave school from 14 to 16.

These are very interesting matters for parents and teachers. If it appeals to you, I would like to hear from others on these changes in ages—in your letter column.

East Milton Isolated After Midnight

Editor Boston American:

East Milton is the only section in Greater Boston entirely cut off from public transportation facilities after midnight. The only way to get in or out after that hour is to hire a taxi. East Milton has grown so rapidly of late that transportation authorities and public officials have failed to keep pace with its needs.

Because of motor and bus competition the New Haven road has clipped many trains from its schedules, and apparently would be happy to abandon this like Mattapan and other lines, if replaced by trolley service. There is a growing demand for extension of Boston Elevated high speed trolley service to East Milton, such as that now enjoyed by residents in the Mattapan end of Milton.

It is pointed out that a spur track or viaduct could be carried across the marshes to East Milton sq. from Milton station of the Elevated at no great expense. Ample land is available. Such a plan would solve the shortcomings of present transportation facilities. It would provide a terminal for Eastern Massachusetts buses which now run to Ashmont from Quincy and Braintree on schedules altogether too infrequent which account for long waits and overcrowded buses that are none too comfortable to sit in, not alone to attempt to stand in.

Why should East Milton be so isolated and penalized?

Visitor Finds Reno a Delightful Place

Editor Boston American:

I have just returned from Reno, Nev., the so-called Mecca of divorcees. But the place has much to commend it outside of that. I spent several days there attending a religious conference which was aglow with enthusiasm. There was nothing dry in these gatherings and they changed my conception of Reno.

While it has come tagged to it, it also has in contrast much in it that would make some people in Boston blink over its superiority in places as there are plenty of religious ideas on tap and much geniality in spreading them, with no overheated dignity.

Speakers on Russia Tell Different Stories

Editor Boston American:

What Boston speaker on Russia is right in his conclusions about conditions in Russia?

Four of them within a short time have been discussing on their experiences in the Soviet Republic. They are all different. Which is right? One of them quoted views from Hugh R. Cooper, an American engineer who has spent some time in that part of the world and gives a roseate tint to everything over there, contradicting much of that being said by two speakers in Boston.

What and whom are we to believe about conditions in Russia? This is the important question about Russia today in Boston.

Harvard Professor Finds Iron Cure for Anemia

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

New York, Feb. 4.—Iron, when given with predominantly acid foods or solutions, acts as an excellent remedy for anemia in certain forms.

While the use of iron as a treatment for anemia has been long since known, it is found that its real efficacy depends considerably upon the presence of acid rather than alkaline condition of the digestive tract is a new and important contribution.

The discovery of iron in assimilable form, imbibed in acid medium or food as an anemia therapy has been made, and announced, by Prof. George R. Minot, noted Harvard Medical College authority on anemia, and by a former colleague, Dr. Stacy R. Mettler, professor at the University of California Medical College.

Drs. Minot and Mettler treated 10 cases of secondary anemia, especially associated with prolonged defective diet or chronic loss of blood. The doctors report:

"All these patients responded rapidly and excellently to iron therapy."

This suggested to Drs. Minot and Mettled that anemia results when a person does not eat food containing enough iron or when iron in the food is not assimilated, due to lack of enough acid balance in the upper intestine region.

"Although I am only 22 years old I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. I had to lie down four or five times a day. After three bottles I could feel a great improvement. I still take the Vegetable Compound whenever I need it, for it gives me strength to be a good mother to my family. I will write to any woman about it."—Mrs. Vern L. Dennings.

From the early part of 1915, when he was recalled to the French War Office from active command in the field, until the spring of 1918, when he was chosen Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the Allies, Ferdinand Foch was a military adviser to the French government.

That he was kept away from the front has been attributed to politics. At any rate, he was not sufficiently popular with the powers of government to stay on the field of battle. Perhaps it was just as well that his talents were utilized behind the lines. After having been sent to Italy and having performed various advisory functions, he eventually emerged as the one man upon whom the Allies could agree as Commander-in-Chief.

In writing his memoirs, Marshal Foch decided not to deal with his services in the War Office, but to confine the narrative to his active commands. He was a sick man and probably realized that, with his time limited, he should devote his literary efforts only to the periods during which he directed the battle plans of the Allied armies. His manuscript skips 1918. His narrative today starts with the opening of the great German offensive of March of that year.

Debs Still Flock to Opera

Post-Debutantes Also Among Hundreds Who Hear Verdi's "Aida"

"AIDA," ONE OF THE most popular of all operas, was presented last evening at the Boston Opera House by the Chicago Civic Opera Co. in their second and last week in Boston. As has been the fact for each performance, every seat in the house was taken and from casual observation everyone has attended in evening dress even up into the topmost galleries. The box-holders have appeared at almost every performance and those who arranged to take seats in the orchestra have been seen time and again.

THE CAST WAS A FAVORITE last evening. Claudia Muzio, Opera Van Gordon and Charles Marshall, and they were called before the curtain many times. Miss Muzio was superb as the slave girl, Aida, and Miss Van Gordon as the king's daughter as Amneris. We liked Charles Marshall better than ever as Radames and his singing tones were thoroughly enjoyed, especially in Celeste Aida.

ALTHOUGH MANY OLDER people appear each night at the opera, it is surprising to see the younger set attending regularly and enthusiastically. At some performances, we have seen almost every debutante of the season and sometimes more than once, and post-debutantes in numbers. Last evening Alice Vose Burrage looked handsome in red tulle with white ermine evening wrap; Harriet Blake also looked well in red, attending with her father, Mr. Arthur Blake of Dedham; Rachel Warner was nonchalant as usual in black velvet with stunning green velvet cloak and Edith Milton and Katherine Brown made a lovely picture together in orchid satin beautifully cut, and turquoise crepe.

HELEN CURTIS, A REAL Titian beauty, was remarkably in green and gold lame, and in striking contrast was her friend Miss Constance Creighton, also brunette, in sea-green satin One of the most effective costumes was worn by Mrs. Edward Sturgis Mary Eustis, a bride of last summer, who wore peache satin with Chinese blue mandarin coat. Mary Hammond is always seen, her striking blonde features always attracting the glasses. Mrs. Edward Grew was escorted by her pretty daughter, Miss Helen Grew, and Miss Evelyn Royce arrived with her father, Mr. Frederick Royce, of Dedham.

MARJORIE MORRILL OF Tenacs fame looked very feminine in flowered lace and Priscilla Prince was effective in mustard yellow crepe with gold necklace of crystal and onyx Isabella Grandin, whom we have seen almost every evening, wore still another costume of black which set off her Spanish type. In her box was Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper in white satin, and Miss Helen Burnham, one of the older residents of Commonwealth ave., wore a handsome metal cloth cloak. Mrs. Lawrence Black was in black, and Mrs. Hall McAlister and her daughter, Mrs. Newell Perry, also were attired in the fashionable ebony. Wearing a very Frenchy combination was Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman in black and canary yellow, and Mrs. Gelston King, all in bronze in coloring her lovely hair, was noticeable in lace, very long and sweeping. Tomorrow, Mary Garden sings again and that always brings a smart crowd to see and hear

Society Dancer Will Present Stars

MISS MIRIAM WINSLOW, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Winslow, Jr., is presenting Ruth St. Denis, Ted Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers under the auspices of the Miriam Winslow School of the Dance on Friday evening, February 27, at the Boston Opera House. Miss Winslow, a Junior Leaguer, coached the dancing for their play.

Lecture On Indians Being Given Today In Baylies Home

MRS. WALTER C. BAYLIES is opening her home at 5 Commonwealth ave. this afternoon at 3:30 p. m. for a lecture by the distinguished sculptor, Mr. Cyrus Dallin, on his experiences among the American Indians. Mr. Dallin is the sculptor of the well-known statue, "The Appeal to the Great Spirit," which stands in front of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The lecture is for the benefit of the Sailors' Haven Woman's Aid.

ALSO THIS AFTERNOON in George W. Brown Hall, a concert by the McDowell Club will be given at which Miss Susanne Dabney and Mr. James Ferguson will be soloists. This is one of a series of ten concerts which are attracting much interest among prominent music lovers of Boston.

TOMORROW AT THE Museum of Fine Arts, a private view of Italian Primitives will be shown in the new gallery. In this new and permanent setting, the much-loved Madonna with Angels by Fra Angelico, Crivelli's Pieta, a small crucifixion and The Marriage of St. Catherine by Lippo Mammi and other famous paintings have been rehung. There are 45 paintings in the gallery, representing various schools and the changes which took place in Italian paintings in those centuries when it passed from the Byzantine tradition into the fully developed Italian style of the 15th century.

Hill Heiress Weds Again

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

Universal Service Society Editor

New York, Feb. 4—The late James J. Hill was a railroad pioneer, who won fame and fortune via his exploits in the then vast wilderness of the Northwest and who reached the pinnacle of his career when he became president of the Great Northern Railroad.

The equally departed Pierre Lorillard was a pioneer in the tobacco industry and gathered in down in the Southland, the millions that later enabled him to make the Lorillard name a cognomen of power and importance in the New York social world, to found the now super-exclusive Tuxedo Park and to establish the Rancocas stables, one of the finest groups of prize-winning steeds the racing world ever has known.

TWO FAMILIES UNITED

Yesterday a daughter of the late Mr. Hill became the bride of a son of the late Mr. Lorillard. Ceremony in Mrs. Anson McCook Beard and Pierre Lorillard, who were quietly married by the Rev. Fr. Finn of the Paulist Church.

The ceremony was solemnized in the flower bedecked drawing room of the bride's home, 47 E. 68th st. and was followed by an informal reception. Immediately after the reception Mr. Lorillard and his new wife started on a honeymoon trip.

Mr. Lorillard is somewhat the senior of his bride—he being slightly more than three score and ten, while she has yet to see a bit more than three score mark.

LIVED NEAR HIS SONS

Two decades ago Mr. Lorillard first wife, Caroline Jaffray Hamilton, died. She was the daughter of George Hamilton, a prominent clubfellow of his generation.

During the 20 years he remained a widower Mr. Lorillard took only a minor interest in the social activities and he has, for the most part, dwelled at Tuxedo, near his sons, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and Griswold Lorillard, who married Mary Victoria Green a member of the family that once conducted Green's Hotel, in the Quaker city.

Lourenz, Francis H. Cummings, Edward Chamberlain, Arvin F. Sortwell, Eliot Spalding, T. Russell Sullivan, Channing Wells.

Valentine Bridge Tea to Have a Live Valentine Present

Mrs. C. Theodore Ramsever is chairman for the Valentine bridge and tea to be given under the auspices of the Fathers' and Mothers' Club in the crystal room of the Hotel Kenmore, Friday, Feb. 13, at 2 o'clock. Little Miss Sylvia Renwick, costumed, will represent the spirit of St. Valentine, and will be assisted in her interpretation by Miss Lilla Logan.

Mrs. Cyrus Schirmer of Chestnut Hill will be one tea hostess for the social hour.

Mrs. Fogg to Give Radio Talk About Clubs as Educators

Mrs. Frederick S. Fogg, chairman of the division of education in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, will broadcast a short talk on "Women's Clubs as Educators," from Station WEZA, Thursday, Feb. 12, at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. M. H. Guleian, pianist-composer accompanied by the studio string quartet, will follow with a 10-minute entertainment.

Mrs. George F. Boutwell, New Hampshire press chairman, will be on the air at 1:50 with a broadcast on "Publicity, the Builder." This announcement comes from Mrs. Leon E. White, radio director of the Federation.

Drama Week Planned by Clubs

State Federation Chairman Urges Women to Encourage American Plays

By NANCY BREWSTER

Drama week starts next Sunday and Bay State clubwomen are urged to obey the drama impulse and observe the seven days appropriately.

Mrs. Marie Ware Laughton, chairman of the division of literature and drama in the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, sending out her monthly message, says it is the duty of every clubwoman to inspire and encourage the writing of fine American drama in the hope that some day the American spirit will be truly revealed in the written word.

"Give a play, see a play and read a play," Mrs. Laughton advises, in the observance of Drama Week. "Such plays as those which offer us entertainment and food for thought and discussion are good. Go to see them. Get your family and friends to go. Approval shown by attendance is the best way to encourage theatrical producers and managers to give us good plays. It is the best kind of censorship."

Daughters of Mass. Meeting to Feature Patriotic Program

The regular meeting of the Daughters of Massachusetts takes place a week from tomorrow, in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Kenmore, at 2 o'clock. Following the business session, a patriotic program appropriate for the day will be presented by Mrs. Mary Horton McDowell, a State director of the Children of the American Revolution and also a member of the Daughters of Massachusetts.

There are to be recitations by Ann Carrington, a young member of First Alarm, to which also belong the two small children of former Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen. Then, too, Marjorie Nichols, daughter of the former Mayor and Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, will entertain with a summer dance. Marjorie is a member of Signal and Western Society. Muriel Brady of the Hannah Watts Wesson Society will offer several dance solos. From the James Winthrop Society will come young women who will dance a minuet.

Following the program, Rev. John R. Dallinger, rector of Trinity Church, Canton, and son of Cong. Frederick Dallinger of Cambridge, will speak on Abraham Lincoln.

Mrs. James C. Otis, president of the association, will preside.

Plaids Go to Head of Modern Woman

By ANN ARDEN

Models from LAMSON & HUBBARD, American Staff Photos. ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

WITH NOTHING but chat of plaids here and there is it any wonder that the subject has quite gone to our heads? Plaids, absent from the fashion picture for some seasons, have returned to brighten late winter days, and those of early spring.

* * *

A LOUD blare of a bagpipe ought to herald this new trend, for not since the small black Scottish terriers became the dog of the moment has there been such a Scotch invasion! You simply can't walk a block without seeing a bit of Scotch plaid flying from a passing figure. The theory that only a clansman can wear the plaid of his name has been given a tremendous blow in the past few weeks; there couldn't be enough clans to supply the number of plaid patterns running about town.

* * *

THE NICEST part of plaids is the fact that you don't have to make a whole [illegible] if you do not wish it. You can have a scarf or a blouse, or the very new waistcoat, and best of all, you can have plaid trimming your spring hat.

* * *

UNQUESTIONABLY your first spring hat will be straw. Perhaps you will choose it to enliven your winter coat—perhaps you will wait to wear it the moment you can step forth in a suit.

* * *

THE REFRESHINGLY new hat pictured is in fine baku, its crown smartly shallow, its brim low in back, edged in plaid silk, and cut to sharp point center front. A twist of straw forms cuff at base of crown, and is faced in the plaid silk which ends in small bow at front. The plaid is in light and dark blue, gray and a touch of yellow, and this color combination has great chic.

* * *

THE OTHER hat pictured is a sport hat in brown felt, stitched in white, its brim edge cut in wide scallops; the band and many looped bow are of grosgrain ribbon in brown, underfaced in white. The felt hat is always a standby in every woman's wardrobe.

* * *

THE SLY FOX manages to poke his head at least part way into fashion every season. According to rumors that are rife, his style position is practically assured for spring. Blue fox, red fox, peach fox and white fox have, of course, been well represented in luxury fashions for resort wear. The luxurious silver fox has an unquestioned position as leader in beauty and chic.

Club Arranges for 'High School Day' at Codman School

An interesting event of considerable importance to mothers in Dorchester will take place tomorrow afternoon in the Codman sq. high school when the annual "High School Day" is observed by members of the Dorchester Fathers' and Homemakers' Club.

Miss Alice M. Twigg, headmaster of the school, will be chairman for the afternoon and has arranged a program, demonstrating the work of the school. All parents of the girls are invited to attend, thus profiting by an opportunity to meet the teachers whose chief business is the mental and physical moulding of the children.

"Poise ATTRACTS MEN MORE THAN Beauty"

SAYS ELINOR GLYN

ELINOR GLYN
world-famous writer

"GLADYS and HELEN write me that they're 'ugly ducklings.' How can they hope to win love?

"Girls, many of the most fascinating women of history have been plain. But they've had the charming self-confidence that utter femininity gives a woman. And men have been fascinated by it.

"Such POISE is far more potent than beauty. And it's a quality every girl can win.

"Clothes can help you. Clothes affect YOU even more than they affect those who see you. LINGERIE, especially, when it is colorful and exquisite, makes you feel utterly feminine and confident of charm. And self-confidence is contagious! That's why this little recipe is so helpful to poise—

1. Choose the daintiest lingerie you can.
2. Always keep it color-fresh and lovely.

"Don't think your budget won't include colorful underthings. If you wash them in Lux they will stay NEW so long every girl can afford them.

"Ordinary 'good' soaps often fade and wear out delicate fibres, but Lux is made to keep colors adorable, silks soft and new.

"AT HOME too:—Charming surroundings give you poise! You feel at ease when you know everything about you, from pretty draperies to colorful table linens, is fresh and new—as Lux alone keeps them."

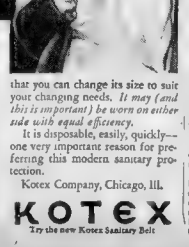
Feel Safe always

Specify Kotex when you buy sanitary pads



HOURS at the opera, hours in business, hours out-of-doors—always the feeling of perfect freedom when Kotex is your sanitary protection. Kotex is shaped to fit under any sort of gown. It is highly absorbent (5 times more by test than surgical cotton). It is guaranteed to give more protection, longer protection than any other sanitary pad.

Kotex deodorizes. It is soft—not merely a surface softness but a delicate, lasting softness. It is adjustable, because of the layer construction of its absorbent filler, so that you can change its size to suit your changing needs. It may (and this is important) be worn on either side with equal efficiency.

It is disposable, easily, quickly—one very important reason for preferring this modern sanitary protection.

MODERN automobile engines are vastly different from those of just a few years ago. Many of them have what is known as "high compression." This means more power, but you need an equally high-grade gasoline to get maximum benefit. With an inferior fuel, you hear a "ping" or knock, which is an indication that the gas is not igniting properly.

There are a number of ways of overcoming "knocking" in a gasoline. One is by careful selection of crudes. Another is by painstaking refining methods. Another by relentless tests of all gasoline produced, and the rejection of that below quality.

All of these and certain others are employed in the production of ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH. The result is a gasoline that has truly amazing "anti-knock" qualities. Naturally, the cost of making it is greater than that of an inferior gasoline. But the public acceptance of ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH has been so overwhelming, and the volume of sales so great, that we are able to offer this better motor fuel at regular-gas price.

Why not test ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH for yourself—in your own car? We sincerely believe you will convince yourself in short order that ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is the most powerful motor fuel you have ever known.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

Doris Bares One Weak Link in Alibi

By ANTHONY ABBOT

CHAPTER 16

Christmas Day Tour

BESIDE CHECKLES in the car, smiling a little wanly, and as pale as a moon at dawn, D. Maskell took his place. Then he looked back and in the rear seat, he saw a woman and a child. The mother, I recognized as Felise Morgan, and the little girl was Doris Morgan, the child companion of Dr. Maskell, his living alibi. She was quite pretty.

Later I learned that she was 10 years old. Her golden hair and large blue eyes and colorful dress and hat gave her a rather spoiled and stagey air—one would expect her to grow up into a cinema star, if cinema stars ever do grow up.

But what interested me most was the love and tenderness in Dr. Maskell's eyes when he looked at little Doris. I think the sight of her quite unmanned him. He caught her to him as she rose with a squeal of joy at sight of him, and she kissed him in lively, intimate and trusting fashion.

"Hellos, Doris! Hellos, Checkles," called the commissioner, taking his place beside the chibi and motioning me to a folding seat in front of him.

Checkles Funny

"Good mornings and good nights and good fellows and good gods," said Checkles, his head bent over the wheel of the car, and he pushed the horn button in the middle of the wheel with his long gnarled nose so that the car cried out as if in fright at his behavior.

Doris laughed.

"Isn't Checkles too funny for words?" she asked, with a grown-up glance at Thatcher Colt. "He always blows the horn with his nose."

The Commissioner nodded, as he drew a slip of paper from his pocket, read off the names and addresses of the patients of Doctor Maskell to whom, so the suspect declared, he and Doris and Checkles had delivered the presents.

"All correct," said Maskell.

Then we further delayed our start while the Commissioner called earnestly with Doris. He told her she was a very important person and that she could help the great City of New York and she must try to remember everything she could. She promised with the most grown-up and gracious smile imaginable.

"You were with the doctor every part of the time on Christmas Eve?" asked Commissioner Colt.

"Yes, sir, every part," said Doris Morgan firmly.

"Now," continued Thatcher Colt, "according to my memorandum, you went first to an address on Patchin place. Is that right?"

"Yes, certainly," replied the doctor in a hearse voice. Colt gave Checkles his orders and immediately we started zigzagging up and across town, in the direction of Greenwich Village.

"Doris," said Thatcher Colt, "do you remember, anything about your last visit there?"

"Oh, yes," said the child. "We brought a parcel, done in paper and ribbon, to an old lady who lives in that third house over there."

"Who delivered the package?"

"The doctor went to the door and rang the bell and the rick came to the little door and he sent me up to deliver it."

"How long did that take?"

"Oh, not more than a second or so. The doctor told me I mustn't loiter, because we had so many other places to go. I was awful tired by the time we got home."

As we started off again, Thatcher Colt began to question Mrs.

"You were an intimate friend of Geraldine Fowler?"

"Oh, no. Our apartment is over the doctor's office. Doris and Geraldine met in the halls. They became friendly. The doctor took a fancy to Doris and soon we all got to know each other."

We fully understood the weariness of little Doris before we had finished that twisting and traffic-tormented itinerary. In and out of the crowded New York streets we drove while Checkles pushed the horn with his nose and hesped maledictions on taxi drivers and pedestrians who tempted death under our wheels.

From house to house we drove, from a broker in East Twelfth Street, to an actor who lived at the Chelsea Hotel. Farther north we were slowly creeping on our

Doctor's Fancy

Whenever it was necessary to blow the horn, I noticed, with extreme distaste, that Checkles bent forward and pushed the round, black-button with his nose.

There was no conversation during that journey, until we reached the narrow impasse behind the Jefferson Market Court, where, among many ancient and poets have lived in the little red brick houses, rejoicing in the tiny trees, the narrow sidewalks, and the general air of another century that hovers over the place.

"Doris," said Thatcher Colt, "do you remember, anything about your last visit here?"

"Oh, yes," said the child. "We brought a parcel, done in paper and ribbon, to an old lady who lives in that third house over there."

N.E. EXPORT TRADE GOES THERE

Attorney Parker Cites Figures at I. C. C. Hearing to Prove Unfairness

Out of a total value of $778,761,400 in New England export products in 1928, less than $25,000,000 were shipped from Boston, while New York shipped approximately $116,000,000, it was brought out today at the rate differential hearing in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

George H. Parker, Washington attorney, who is testifying in support of Boston's contention that it is being discriminated against in favor of New York in rate differentials, supplies these and many other figures.

The figures, he told the Interstate Commerce Commissioners before whom the hearing is being conducted, were obtained from the Department of Commerce and are based on reports of 2000 New England firms which export regularly.

Boston, in 1928, he said, handled about $3,000,000 in hardware exports from New England manufacturers, while New York had $42,000,000 from the same source.

In industrial machinery, Boston shipped $1,000,000 worth, while New York shipped $10,000,000. In textile goods, Boston $1,700,000, New York $7,500,000; leather goods, Boston $2,000,000, New York, $4,000,000; rubber goods, Boston, $800,000, New York, $2,800,000; textile machinery, Boston, $700,000, New York, $2,800,000; woolen goods, Boston, $143,000, New York, $560,000.

Boys Perform as Parents Look On

MRS. WOODBURY — MR. HAGAR — MR. DOWNEY

DRILL SQUADS PERFORMED and fencing teams did their work as part of the program by the boys at the English high school yesterday. It was parents' visiting day. Here you see the squad Mrs. Willard D. Woodbury, manager of the Boston Home and School Association, was a speaker. She is standing with Warren A. Hagar, president of the 1931 class, and Walter F. Downey, headmaster of English high.

ENGLISH HIGH DEFENDED

Addressing about 700 parents of English high school boys at the assembly program featuring "the annual parents' visiting day exercises, late yesterday, Headmaster Walter F. Downey struck back at the recommendation of the special investigating committee of the Finance Commission, that pupils be required to attend their local high school.

Headmaster Downey declared that English high school has drawn pupils from all parts of the city for many years, showing that the institution attracts pupils not only because of its antiquity and tradition, but because of the thoroughness of the training offered.

The school, Mr. Downey said is one of the greatest preparatory schools for college in the country.

"It seems difficult to conceive of a board of Boston citizens that would consider seriously in any way limiting to the boys of Boston, the opportunities that are afforded to them in this school," he asserted.

He named, in a partial list of alumni, the late J. Pierpont Morgan, Admiral Selfridge, Albert H. Wiggin, Charles Hayden, the late Clarence Barron, Edwin P. Shaw, Gen. Charles H. Cole, Admiral John Halligan, U. S. N. the late Judge Lourie, Judges Samuel Collins, A. K. Cohen, Sheehan and Connolly, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, and many others prominent in the legal profession; the late William C. Prout, Arthur Duffey, world's record holder of the 100-yard dash, and Thomas Burke, who competed in the first Olympics.

He noted that the school is the oldest public high school in the United States, having been established in 1821, the year before Boston became a city.

ANIMAL LEAGUE HONORS HEROES

The heroism of four boys and four dogs was rewarded by the Animal Rescue League with Alice N. Lincoln medals at the annual meeting of the league, held yesterday at its Carver st. headquarters.

William Mullken, Jr., of Lexington received his award for rescuing his pet dog from a fire, and Norman Irwin 11, of Winchester, received a medal for rescuing a cow from a blazing barn. John Lenan, of Morris ave., Brighton was awarded a medal for rescuing a kitten from a sewer. Thomas Ames, of Belmont st., Wollaston, who saved a dog from deep in icy waters, was not present, and will receive his award through the mail.

The dogs honored were Danger a St. Bernard, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Urgin of South Lincoln, who made an heroic attempt to save two children from drowning; Brior, an Irish terrier, owned by Miss Margaret Starkey of Revere, hero of a fire; Toodles, a fox terrier who also awoke his Dorchester master to save him from flames; Hobe, a bulldog, who routed two armed robbers to save his mistress Miss Anna Kelley, from a holdup.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

BOARD PLANS TO ABOLISH ALL LEFT IN STATE

Action by Utilities Commission Follows Recent Public Hearings

Thirty-two grade crossings were listed for abolishment today by the State Department of Public Utilities, at the opening of a program to do away with remaining railroad grade crossings in Massachusetts.

The move by the Public Utilities Board follows recent hearings before the commission at the State House.

In its statement today the Public Utilities Board says:

"Sec. 63 of Chap. 139 of the General Laws, as amended by Sec. 1 of chap. 417 of the Acts of 1930, being an Act to expedite and regulate the abolition of grade crossings, requires the Department of Public Works to make an investigation of crossings where a public or private way and railroad cross each other at a grade.

"After due notice to the Department of Public Works, the counties and municipalities and the railroad corporations, the Department of Public Utilities has completed public hearings and designates a program of crossings, the abolition of which shall be considered, as follows:

"Newbury, State rd.; Lisbon, new state road; Waltham, Beaver Brook, Main st.; South Framingham; South Framingham Junction; Lincoln, Great rd.; Winchester, Main and Church sts.; Ayer, Main st.; Weymouth, Main st., Tewksbury, Main st.; Bridgewater, Bridgewater station; Reading, South Main st.; Shirley, near Shirley station; Taunton, Winthrop st., Somerset st. and Tremont st., these to be all one project.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IS SCORED AS 'LEGALIZED MURDER'

FAILS TO CURE CRIME, SAYS REP. PRATT

Darrow and Cardinal Hayes Quoted at a Hearing on Bill to End System

Charges that capital punishment was "legalized murder" were hurled today at a hearing before the joint legislative Judiciary Committee at the State House on bills for the abolishment of such a law.

Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, father of the bill, and James Clark Smith of Boston, both charged the present laws providing death were in that category.

Representative Pratt quoted Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, and Cardinal Hayes of New York city as exponents of a change in the law, and Prof. Z. Chafee, Jr., of Harvard cited the recent acquittal of Gangi Caro as an example of the dangers of capital punishment.

FAILS TO CURE CRIME

"The death penalty no more cures crime than charity cures poverty," Representative Pratt said.

"The certainty and not the severity of punishment is the real deterrent of crime. I quote eminent men who are against death penalties as Clarence Darrow, who said, 'We teach people to kill, that is, the State does, but we should respect life and stop these killings.'"

He quoted Cardinal Hayes' remarks on the subject that "youthful delinquency cannot be checked by the gallows."

"Taking life is a blot on the standards of our State," Pratt said, "Maybe not in our generation will the State revoke the death penalty but in days to come the State will wipe out legalized murder."

ASKS REFERENDUM

Wendell P. Thore of Squantum urged referendum to the people on the subject and said such a move would immediately show the trend of the people toward capital punishment.

Rev. Dr. Harold Marshall, Melrose minister and sponsor of a bill for an unpaid commission to investigate the death penalty, has presented the committee a petition signed by 1234 persons. He said the Massachusetts Bar Association and others were in favor of an investigation by an unpaid commission.

Prof. Chafee, in illustrating how juries might sometimes make mistakes, cited the Caro case as one that nearly became a "frightful miscarriage of justice."

"The jury found him guilty and neither the trial judge, the Supreme Court or the Governor could find any reason to alter the death sentence, and that man was within six hours of the electric chair. Another jury found him not guilty and freed him. Juries sometimes make mistakes."

DOOLEY HELD IN $5000 BONDS

Charged with manslaughter following the death of Geraldine Garvey, 22-year-old telephone operator, from revolver shots wounds, Philip Dooley, 26, married, of Hyde Park, was arraigned in the Roxbury municipal court today before Judge Hayden. Dooley pleaded not guilty and was released under bonds of $5000.

Miss Garvey was shot in the abdomen last Wednesday night in an apartment at 116 Riverway where she had been visiting with Dooley. Both Miss Garvey and Dooley declared the shooting accidental.

Dooley was arrested shortly after the shooting on a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and was held in $2000 bail.

Miss Garvey was a telephone operator at the Aspinwall telephone exchange and lived at 56 St. Alphonsus st., Roxbury.

Autoist Found Guilty as "Sun Alibi" Fails

Despite argument by former Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County, who said the sun was to blame and that it was a case for the civil courts, Arthur E. Haley of Bartlett ave., Arlington, was found guilty of dangerous driving in East Cambridge district court today. The case was placed on file.

"If he hit a pedestrian, would you still say the sun was to blame?" asked Judge Robert Walcott.

"That would be an entirely different matter," replied Bushnell.

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes you feel like a new person almost before you know it

Take two tablets

Better almost before you know it.

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL—to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

GEORGE WARREN DELANO, of 222 Clark rd., Brookline, has been endorsed by 100 Brookline citizens for the two year term as town assessor. (Notman photo.)

DELANO BACKED FOR ASSESSOR

One hundred leading citizens of Brookline have endorsed the candidacy of George Warren Delano of 222 Clark rd. for the two-year term as town assessor.

He was graduated from Brookline high school in 1903, attended Harvard and for 15 years was a member of the firm of O. B. Delano & Sons, carpenters and builders. Later he had charge of the construction and maintenance work of the Lamey Co. and at present is engaged in adjusting fire losses for insurance companies with offices at 141 Milk st.

His experience in these various fields eminently qualifies him for the board of assessors in the view of those who are appointing him. The Delano family has lived in Brookline for many years. Oliver Baker Delano, the candidate's grandfather, moved there from Duxbury in 1835 and established his building business there in 1847. George Warren Delano was connected with the engineering department of the town some years ago.

BAN ON ALIEN NURSES ASKED

Appearing before the legislative committee on public health, James F. Burns of Brighton declared that more than 20 per cent of the nurses given registration certificates by the state civil service department are born in Canada, or some other foreign land. He was urging passage of legislation to restrict registration to nurses of American citizenship.

He held that there is a large surplus of nurses in the state today and pointed out that one way to clear up the matter of a surplus would be to prohibit young women from other countries coming here and depriving American young women of jobs.

Burns also declared a large number of nurses in the state are here in violation of the immigration laws. He contended that the nurses do not return to their native land after securing their training.

Miss Sally Johnson, chairman of the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, opposed the bill. She said that alien nurses could still secure employment, even if the bill were enacted, because it would not bar "graduate" nurses as distinguished from "registered" nurses.

Berger Denies All of Girl's Charges

Col. John S. Berger, former managing director of the New England States Century of Progress Exposition, called off for the time being, declared in Montreal that there is nothing to the charges made against him by Miss Maude Bonney, Boston beauty shop employe.

Miss Bonney filed suit in Suffolk court, seeking $100,000 damages from Berger, charging he engaged her to pose as his wife and to aid him in obtaining contracts. She alleges he promised to pay her $25,000, then discharged her.

INFLUENZA ON THE DECREASE

A marked decrease in the number of new cases of influenza was reported by the Health Department today.

Deputy Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan announced that during the 24-hour period ending at noon today only nine new cases and one death from that disease had been reported to his office.

During the same period nine cases of lobar pneumonia with five deaths were reported.

Since Saturday noon 52 cases of influenza with four deaths have been reported. The average number of cases for the corresponding week during the past five years is 22 cases and two deaths.

A total of 29 cases of lobar pneumonia with 13 deaths have been reported since Saturday. The average number of cases reported for the corresponding week during the past five years is 53 cases with 17 deaths.

SEEK DENTIST IN DEATH CRASH

A warrant was issued in Southbridge court today for the arrest on a charge of negligent and dangerous driving of Dr. Morris Ginsburg, Cambridge dentist, alleged driver of the automobile which figured in a fatal crash with two buses Sunday, near Charlton.

Dr. Ginsburg's fiancee, Miss Helen Gerstein, 22 of Wauteck st. Dorchester, was killed in the accident and another woman is dying.

According to the Southbridge police the dentist disappeared after the crash saying he was going to a hospital. He has not made a report to any official authority and as a result Inspector William Burke of the motor registry asked for the warrant today and it was served for Cambridge to seek Dr. Ginsburg.

MACHINE AGE BLAMED BY HENRY I. HARRIMAN FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

TASK NOW TO FIND WORK, HE SAYS

Chamber of Commerce Head Speaks at Gas Meeting; Boston Man Elected

Failure of America to adjust her civilization and machine advance to the daily life of her people is causing thousands of men in this and every other civilized nation to turn to socialism.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce made this assertion today before 600 delegates to the fifth annual convention of the New England Gas Association at the Hotel Statler.

BOSTON MAN ELECTED

At the opening session of the two day convention which ends tomorrow night M B Webber of Boston was elected president of the organization Dave Haddock of Cambridge and Walter R Stetcell of New Haven were elected vice-presidents. Frank D. Cadwallader of Boston was named treasurer, and C. D. Williams of Boston was elected executive secretary.

The address of President Harriman was the feature of the session and in it he declared

"It is unthinkable that men and women who desire to work and who are able to work should not have the opportunity to work.

"Men are daily being thrown out of work," he said, "because the more efficient tools and machines now in use require the services of fewer and fewer men to produce the goods required. In short, our discovery of means to economize in the use of labor has outrun the pace at which we have been able to discover new uses for labor.

"It is the maladjustment, the combination of surplus and poverty, of capacity and want, that is causing thousands of men in this and every other civilized nation to turn to socialism and to cry more and more upon the state as a medium for the correction of the ills of humanity."

ADVOCATES SYSTEM

Harriman said he advocated adoption of a system in America under which the working life of its citizens would begin at the age of 20 and end at 60, in which period men and women would have a working week of 40 hours, gradually diminishing to 20 hours.

This would absorb the rapid rise in labor of those thrown out of work by advances in machines.

Ralph E. Forward, of the convention, Alexander Forward, managing director of the American Gas Association that the New England Gas Association depts a list of 10,000 customers in 1930 increased its gas cooking and appliance sales by three per cent each

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a stubborn cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready made medicine, yet is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

An oil painting by Stanley Vernet of Providence, R. I., won a first prize, William Livingstone was awarded first prize in the free hand drawing competitions, and Ethel S. Beckett of Revere, won first prize in the composition class.

The students' art work now on exhibition at the Boston University studios at 304 Bay State rd.

Ely Fails to Name Dorchester Judge

Gov. Ely failed today to fill the vacancy in the Dorchester Municipal Court by the reappointment Feb. 1 of the presiding justice, Joseph R. Churchill.

Former Dist. Atty. Thomas D. Lavelle, who was Governor Ely's campaign manager, has been prominently mentioned for the position, but it is understood there is a possibility now that Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and for many years a member of the Industrial Accident Board may be named as Judge Church's successor.

OIL TRAILERS BILL CALLS FOR DRIVE FOUGHT

Prohibition of trailers for carrying oil and gasoline on the highways as proposed in a bill sponsored by Senator Conde Bindbine of Revere, was scored as class legislation by Vernon Mason, representing the Jenney Manufacturing Co. at a hearing today before the legislative committee on Public Safety.

Mason said he has never known of such an accident attributable to these trailers. The trailers he said are equipped with air brakes, limited to 35 to 20 miles an hour, and are under complete control of the driver. Despite reports, he said, there is no danger to such trailers and the transportation of gasoline on the streets should be safeguarded.

Changing the name of the State Boxing Commission to the State Professional Sports Commission and extending its supervision to wrestling, football and baseball, was urged by Rep. Bernard Finkelstein of Boston at a hearing today before the Legislative Committee on Public Safety.

Finkelstein, speaking briefly on his bill, declared that such supervision would create a more healthy atmosphere around these sports.

"It would go a long way towards stopping a lot of stories you hear around Boston determined by these professional matches," he declared.

There was no opposition expressed to the bill.

Three Sentenced in Razor Blade Theft

Bernard Hillman of Blue Hill ave., Dorchester, Morris Reisman of Winthrop ave. and Joseph Burnett of Shirley ave., both Revere, were sentenced to a year each in the House of Correction in municipal court today on a charge of theft of $2700 worth of razor blades. All three had appeals filed in bonds of $500 each. The youths were arrested after police rounded up the blades.

Curley's Speaking Permit Plan Hit

Mayor Curley's policy in handling speaking permits on Boston Common was assailed at a hearing before the legislative committee on legal affairs on a bill to require municipalities to set apart portions of public parks for free speechmaking.

Atty. William G. Thompson assailed Curley for refusing without a hearing permits to speak on Boston Common. Lewis R. Sullivan of Dorchester and Edward D. Cahill, legislative agent defended the mayor.

Two in Liquor Case Held for Grand Jury

Dr. Mason Levenson, Brookline dentist and Simon Joner of Fallon ave., Dorchester, were held for the Federal grand jury today by U. S. Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney on charges of transportation of liquor. The two were arrested by dry agents on Beacon st., Brookline two weeks ago, as they carried a can of alleged alcohol into a house.

PROPOSED TAX ON BEVERAGES ASSAILED

Several Hundred at Hearing on Long's Plan Before Legislative Group

"It was a tax of this sort that caused your ancestors and mine to start a revolution," said Jay B. Dunning, former United States commissioner, before the joint legislative committee on taxation in opposing the recommendation of Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long for a tax of one cent a half pint on bottled beverages to finance the old age assistance act, effective in July.

When Dunning, who represented the Springfield Chamber of Commerce, had concluded his remarks at the hearing on Commissioner Long's bill he was heartily applauded by the several hundred persons in attendance as also were other speakers in opposition.

MANY OPPOSE BILL

Others who spoke in opposition included Thomas Hunt counsel for Canada Dry Chelmsford Co and The Boston Coca Stoughton Pub representing Cambridge Industrial Association Atty. E. M. Sullivan C. Reed Wright chairman of Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical Association Prof. W. P. Lockwood secretary of New England Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers; Michael J. Hines secretary of Bottlers and Dealers Union; A. E. Bauer of New England Cider and Vinegar Association, Wendell P. Thore and William M. Howard.

Mr. Hunt said the bill is unwise ill-advised and not in the public interest and that many small business concerns would be driven out of Massachusetts if the bill became law.

"Industry cannot absorb the tax and it would inevitably be passed on to the consumer."

STATE MAY LOSE BUSINESS

He said one of the concerns he represents will probably move one of its plants from Worcester to Connecticut and another from Chelmsford to Concord N. H. if the bill became law. He said no Massachusetts farmer would be taxed from $5 to $8 a barrel on cider under the law so that he could not compete with farmers in adjoining states.

"This bill is discriminatory and unworkable," Atty. Sullivan said. "The system of taxation in this state is all wrong. This pay as you go policy is about exploded. I say, build as you need and pay as you use. The pay as you go policy is not economic. The roads and buildings in this state should be paid for through a sinking fund or serial bond system. Let a lot of the gasoline tax go into the general fund and pay assistance expenses. Incidentally old age assistance, from it."

"This bill would create a nuisance tax," Mr. Wright said in opposition in the recommendation. "In the North End, where I come from, they would blame it on Hoover as sure as you live. If this tax was put on beverages."

Wright placed a copy of an editorial printed yesterday in the Boston Evening American with the committee. The editorial opposed a drink tax.

Hydrant and Water Missing; Official Is All at Sea

Perfect Slices for the Sunday Night Supper

Sunday evening—and the pick-up meal.

What's in the ice-box? That's the question and convenience is the object.

Tip-Top Sandwich Bread Sliced is ready in its most convenient form for pick up sandwiches it's just the thing—no fuss or bother—no need to hunt for the bread knife nor to trim slices. They are already square—just the shape for sandwiches.

Always fresh—each day all unsold bread is replaced with fresh loaves from the Ward ovens.

HARVARD TO CUT GRID SCHEDULE

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1931

WILL KINGFISH MAKE DREAMS COME TRUE?

KINGFISH LEVINSKY, who spells Jack Gagnon weight, height and reach in the Boston Garden, next Friday night, has punch, combativeness, color. He packs the kick of an Alabama mule. He comes blazing in, winging 'em a la Harry Greb. He does things that gets him talked about, written about. That's color. Even changing his nom de guerre from "King" to "Kingfish," stealing the handle of one of Amos and Andy's characters, attracted attention.

"The days of the million dollar attraction didn't depart with Dempsey's ring demise," said a wily manager during a recent pow-wow. "Give me a hard-hitting Jewish heavyweight and I'll pack 'em in as they never were packed before."

A great Jewish heavyweight is the pot of gold at the rainbow's end the finale gaudy have been dreaming of for a long, long time.

A great Jewish heavyweight is a million dollar asset to the manager fortunate enough to dig him up.

The Jew is the most rabid of all fight fans. He never misses seeing a champion of his own blood contest. Vest makers, buttonhole workers on New York's great East Side would go without meals for days in order to see Benny Leonard in action.

The Jew follows his own. The Irishman, Italian, goes to see the Jew whipped. That's the philosophy back of the old manager's assertion that a great Jewish heavyweight would pack 'em in as never before.

Does Kingfish Levinsky fill the bill? Will he eventually fill the bill? Will he become a great Jewish heavyweight?

It is too early yet to adjudge Levinsky rightly. Just now he is as good as was Dempsey at a corresponding stage of Jack's career. The Man Killer only was a rough and ready slugger early in his career. There have been many others just as good as was Dempsey, who were ruined in the making, petered out or otherwise did not fulfill promises.

Better wait until we see how Kingfish handles Maeu Gagnon before putting a label on him.

WRESTLING WAR GOES MERRILY ON

THE SANDOW-ROWSER army of the wrestling wrecking forces includes the New York bailiwick of the Curley-Fishiani gang next week. The New York matchmaker for Sandow Bowser & Co. is yelept Sam McQuade. Is that the Sam McQuade who works for Jimmy Johnston? Aha!

Primo Carnera broke the house record for the New York Hippodrome, playing to $33,000 at popular prices. If the Ambling Alp continues to improve as a fighter they will not need a grea' Jewish heavyweight to bring back the million dollar gates Latest rumor now is that Baltzore will get the Schmeling-Stribling thing.

BRUINS DOWN FALCONS BY 7 TO 2

Failure to appreciate that the Bruins staged one of the most perfect offensives of their career in the first half of the opening period last night, was responsible for thousands of hockey fans departing from the Garden, at the conclusion of the contest, thereby the idea that the Detroit Falcons were a weaker aggregation than Ottawa.

The Bruins won 7 to 2 . . . The Falcons, champions, were off their feet by the whirlwind attacks of the Bruins, the American champions. Five of the Bruins' goals from the opening faceoff and averaged better than a goal every two minutes for the first seven minutes and 24 seconds.

Beattie Scores 100th Goal for Bruins

Although the Bruins tallied seven times against Dutrisac, no player scored more than one goal. Red Beattie gathered three points with a goal and two assists. Beattie also had the honor of coming through with the 100th goal the Bruins have scored this season.

The Bruins will leave for Montreal Friday morning, as manager Art Ross is set upon defeating the Flying Frenchmen and feels that his players will be in better form if they spend the night in the Hotel Windsor rather than in a cold sleeper.

British Accept Defy of U. S. Golfers

London, Feb. 4 (AP)—The British Ladies Golf Union, governing body for the British Isles, today announced acceptance of a challenge from the United States for an international women's team match in 1932. The match will be played in England.

The union is negotiating for contests with Africa, Canada and France.

London, Feb. 4 (AP)—The British women's golf championship, to be held at Port Marnock, Ireland, the week of June 8, is to be competed on the basis of a qualifying round and match play, an innovation in British women's golf. Heretofore, the championships have been decided at match play only.

The qualifying round will be at 36 holes, an announcement today said, the lowest 64 scorers to qualify for the following match play, which will be at 18 holes in the early rounds and a 36-hole final, similar to championship competition in the United States.

Dawson to Coach Univ. of Virginia

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 4 (AP)—Selection of Fred Dawson as head football coach at the University of Virginia was announced tonight by James G. Diver, director of athletics.

Dawson, who will succeed Earl Abell, recently resigned, was for four years head coach and dean of men at the University of Nebraska.

More recruits he has been coming to Dawson at the University, he was chosen by the athletic council of the university and will come to Charlottesville in March to meet his squad.

Indoor Soccer at Garden Tomorrow

Boston Celtics and Providence will play an indoor soccer game tomorrow night at Boston Garden.

THE FIGHTING FISHERMAN

OL' KINGFISH LEVINSKY, himself, who left a fish peddler's cart in Chicago to become a nationally known ring celebrity. Two tough customers tried to debate the authenticity of Levinsky's scales and the fish peddler knocked them for a loop. A passing fight manager promptly recruited Kingfish into the brotherhood of the scrambled ear. Since then Levinsky has knocked a whole flock of fighters bowlegged, including Leo Lomski. He meets Jack Gagnon in the feature bout in the Boston Garden next Friday. Two hours after he arrived in Boston yesterday he was down on the Fish Pier trying his hand at his old trade.

LEVINSKY TO BATTLE GAGNON

By RINGSIDE

King Levinsky predicts he will knock out Jack Gagnon when they collide in a 10-round bout at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

"I saw Gagnon in his bouts with Tuffy Griffith, Otto von Porat and Larry Johnson in Chicago," said the colorful King, "and I feel I can stop him. I realize, of course, that Gagnon is quite a socker himself, and that I shall have to keep my chin out of the way of his driving right hand wallops.

"I have no particular plan of battle for my meeting with Gagnon. I shall fly and soar from the opening gong as I always do, throw as many punches as I can jam into a round. No matter how tough Gagnon is he will go down.

"Tommy Loughran is the only fellow who gave me real trouble. Tommy sure is smart in the ring. Loughran later told me that I'd have ruined him if I had connected with some of my swings.

"After I beat Gagnon, I'll be open to meet any heavyweight in New England. Let the promoters do the picking. I'll do the punching."

Lou Brouillard, promising Worcester welterweight, will oppose Sergt. Sammy Baker of New York in the semi-final of 10 rounds.

Lutze Is Favorite for Go With Sherry

Nick Lutze, Californian heavyweight wrestler, has been installed a favorite for his finish bout, best two falls out of three, with Jack Sherry of Ohio, which will be staged at the Arena tomorrow night under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Lutze displayed fine form in his recent winning bout with Pat McGirr.

Sherry is confident he will upset Lutze's plans. Jack is seeking a return bout with Gus Sonnenberg and believes that a victory over Lutze will enable him to reach his objective.

40 Bouts Expected at Arena Bouts Saturday

There will be 40 bouts at the diamond belt bouts at the Arena on Saturday night according to officials of the Irish-American A. C. There will be contests at 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The success scored by the international bouts at the Boston Garden on Monday night has stimulated interest in amateur boxing.

Roger Jenkins Is Recalled by Hawks

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP)—Roger Jenkins, 19-year-old right wing who was loaned by the Chicago Blackhawks to the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, was recalled today. He will play with the Hawks against Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Fights Last Night

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis—Phil Zwick, Cleveland knocked out Marty Fields, Chicago (10).
Portland, Me.—Sailor Jack Wolfe, San Antonio, Tex., outpointed Vincent Borgione, Philadelphia (10).
West Palm Beach, Fla.—Al Rowe, Philadelphia, outpointed Rene Hermon, Switzerland (10). Jackie Deasure, Sag Harbor, Mich., outpointed Mickey Genaro, Waterbury, Conn. (10).
Los Angeles—Pidel La Barba, Los Angeles, and Frankie Varner, Bakersfield, Cal., drew (10).

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

Mr. Boston found Paul Bowser singing the praises of Nick Lutze, California wrestler, to Joe Alvarez.

"I have seen a lot of wrestlers pop into the New England picture," said Bowser, "but none of them have created as much of a sensation as has Nick Lutze.

"When Farmer George McLeod told me he would be unable to meet Pat McGill on account of an injury, I sent out several wires seeking a suitable substitute, I finally secured Lutze who was in Chicago at the time. He hopped a train and arrived in town a few hours before the match.

"Nick stepped in and defeated McGill in one of the most exciting mat bouts of the season. I have Lutze paired with Jack Sherry for my feature bout at the Arena tomorrow night.

"Sherry gave Sonnenberg a couple of rugged battles and looks as if he will make things mighty interesting for Lutze.

"I have Bibber McCoy against Tony Rocco in the semi-final, while I'm going to toss Reuppo Kilroy, former Boston College football star, in with a trial horse in another bout. I don't know how well Kilroy can wrestle, but he'll get his chance to show.

Mr. Boston

Sonnenberg Laughs at Story of Retirement

"The Boston Evening American had the right dope in its story to the effect that Gus Sonnenberg won't retire from the mat until he has regained his world's heavyweight champion ship which he lost to Ed Gourgeous is back home, and he tells me he has not any intention of retiring. He is eager to battle his way back to another shot at the championship. He feels that if it had not been for illness that he would have won from George in their clash on the Coast."

Sammy Fuller Seeking Lightweight Honors

"When Sammy Fuller collides with Bruce Flowers in a ten-round bout at the Argonne A. A. show at the Arena on next Monday night, it will mark his first real step into the lightweight division," said Mr. Boston.

"Fuller blazed his way to the front as a featherweight. His colorful boxing and punching power made him one of the most talked of little fellows in the country. I always felt that if Sammy had boxed more as a featherweight that he might have won the championship.

Two More Records for Helene Madison

Seattle, Feb. 4 (AP)—Helene Madison of Seattle had two new world's swimming records and two new American marks to her credit today.

In one race here last night the high school girl shattered her own 440-yard and 400-meter records. Her time for 400-440 distances was 5m. 31s., compared with her former records of 5m. 39 4-5s. She also automatically broke the American short course figure of 5m. 46 4-5s. held by Martha Norelius for those distances.

Newport Horse Is Winner on Coast

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP)—Seaton Mischief, owned by Mrs. Vanderbilt Church of Newport, R. I., won the first in competition for gig horses at the Sixth Annual Oakland National Horse Show here last night.

SEVEN GAMES ARE LISTED FOR 1932

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Overemphasis has won the first round at Harvard.

In 1932 Harvard will play only seven football games.

President Lowell will then be only six games away from his ideal schedule—

One game a year, and that with Yale.

The roar of the over-emphasis guns has cut down Harvard resistance. Ten years from this date, Harvard will probably have Yale as its only opponent.

The significant thing about Harvard's schedule is this. President Lowell has never been in favor of a long grid schedule. Football observers see in this move on the part of Harvard a desire on the part of the first step toward a saner sport when its rival the ultimate "ideal" schedule of one game.

Impetus to the movement to cut down over-emphasis on football was given by the decision of the University of Pennsylvania to turn control of all athletics to the faculty.

Harvard Has Shortest Schedule in 50 Years

Harvard already has six of its games scheduled for the fall of 1932, with the first game, October 8, open. The nine already booked for that fall are, in order: Penn State (tentative), Bowdoin, Holy Cross and Yale at New Haven.

The fall of 1932 will mark the first season, in half a century barring, of course, the war years, that Harvard has not played at least an eight-game season.

Educators Interested in U. P. Ath'etic Plan

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Educators and athletic authorities at large over the country were keenly interested today in the plan for faculty control of sports to be put in effect this year at the University of Pennsylvania although many of them desired more time to study the plan, they were generally agreed that it has considerable merit.

There was, however, no indication of an effort to follow Pennsylvania's lead in a country-wide reform of athletic administration. Prof. Philip D. Bagnell, chairman of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said:

"The athletic reorganization announced by the University of Pennsylvania is both interesting and commendable in its scope. It is my opinion that each university or college must work out its own individual solution for its athletic problems. I see no general panacea or plan applicable to all institutions."

Princeton Favors Athletic Changes

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 4 (AP)—The drastic changes in the athletic program of the University of Pennsylvania were received with approval in administrative and athletic circles at Princeton University.

President John Grier Hibben and Dean Christian G. Fenger, taking a step as "courageous and thoroughgoing," and Head Football coach Albert Aptimer stated the new system has "salient features which Princeton has had in force for many years."

Roper Favors New Penn Plan

Philadelphia, Feb. 4 (AP)—Favorable sentiment was expressed here on President Gates' plan for faculty control of athletics at the University of Penn.

Bill Roper, ex-councilman and former football coach at Princeton, said:

"The report of President Thomas S. Gates to the sanest and most comprehensive on intercollegiate athletics that has been published. If they are adopted Pennsylvania will lead the way to lasting and permanent solution of athletic problems in the other universities of the East.

"Mr. Gates probably has in mind a participation in athletics by the entire student body rather than success of any particular team. Individual victories are not important to Mr. Gates' mind, but participation in health-building athletics by large groups of students subordinated by scholastic file apparently is his goal."

HOLD DRAW FOR CUP MATCHES

Paris, Feb. 4 (AP)—Surrounded by ambassadors and ministers to Paris, President Doumergue of France today drew from the great silver bowl known as the Davis Cup the pairings for the international tennis play.

The draw in the North American zone pits the United States against Mexico, the winner to play Canada in the zone finals.

In the first round European zone Great Britain meets Monaco; South Africa, Germany; Switzerland, Ireland, Austria, Greece, Czechoslovakia, Spain and Hungary meets Italy.

In the second round Japan meets Yugoslavia, Egypt, Finland and Belgium plays the winner of the Great Britain-Monaco match. In the lower half of the draw Holland matches strokes with the winner of the Hungary-Italy match, Denmark meets Rumania and Norway plays Poland.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Ebbie Goodfellow, who is the leading scorer of the American division, did not fatten his average here. Ebbie was not only held scoreless by the Bruins, but he did not even get an assist.

Dick Dunn and Jim Eustis, the new general manager and building superintendent of the Garden were the guests of the Detroit club at an informal dinner before last night's game. Dunn and Eustis were connected with the Detroit Olympia before coming here and were very popular with the players. As a token of their esteem, the Falcons presented Dunn and Eustis with onyx pens and pencils.

Cooney Weiland took exception to the pinwheel check Ebbie Goodfellow gave him in the third period and let fly a wild punch which landed flush on Ebbie's jaw. Cooney was let down with a minor penalty.

For the first time within the memory of the oldest hockey fan, the first period was played without a penalty. In fact the initial canto did not come until George Owen was sent off after 12 minutes of play, he said, to make it.

Jack Beattie contributed the most sensational rush of the game when he dashed the length of the rink in the third period and, unassisted, scored the 100th Bruin goal of the season.

Through their victory over Ottawa, the Americans picked up a full game on both Toronto and Marcons, who were defeated by Les Canadiens and Rangers, respectively.

the second period had lapsed.

Blaeholder Signs on Dotted Line

San Ana, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP)—Hig George Blaeholder, one of last season's most persistent holdouts, today signed a contract with a broad grin yesterday. He will pitch another year for the St. Louis Browns.

An unexpected pay boost was responsible for the grin. Last year Blaeholder won 14 games for the Browns and this season he will be traded.

Braves Will Open Season Here With Robins April 14

12 SUNDAY GAMES ON HOME CARD

By JOE CASHMAN

The time—April 14.

The place—Braves Field.

The rivals—Braves and the Robins.

That's the story of the local opening of the 1931 baseball season as told by the official National League schedule, released today.

The Tribe will play four games with Brooklyn, four more with the New York Giants and then make way for the Red Sox.

There will be an open date in the very first week of the campaign, the Lids with the Bobbies being listed for Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

With the Giants here for the first Sunday game as well as for two games on Patriots' Day, which will be observed on Monday, April 20, this year, the Braves should get off to a great start financially, if nothing else.

Braves Will Play 12 Sunday Games Here

The native National League entry will have 12 Saturdays, as many Sundays and two holidays at home, and 11 Sundays, 12 Saturdays and two holidays away from home.

The second holiday they will spend at the Wigwam will be July 4, when the Phillies will be in town to furnish the opposition. The Phils will also be here on four Sundays, which is not so good from a box office viewpoint.

New York will have two Sundays here and so will Chicago and St. Louis. Pittsburgh and Cincinnati will each play one Sabbath contest at the Tepee. Brooklyn hasn't a single Sunday contest listed in the Hub.

The McKechnie crew will invade Philadelphia on May 30 and perform in Brooklyn on Labor Day. They will play three Sunday games in New York, three in Brooklyn, two in Chicago, two in Cincinnati and one in St. Louis.

Both the Giants and Phils will require four series to complete their 11 local games. All the other rivals will be finished with the Tribe after three trips to town.

The Tribe will close as well as open the season locally, being down to play the final contest against the Phils on Sunday, Sept. 27.

Everything considered, the Braves' schedule could be better and it could be worse. That is, judging from present indications. Unexpected dustpans of strength or weakness on the part of various rivals may make it the best or the worst.

Brooklyn Gets Good Break in Schedule

There is one club in the circuit, however, that should not have any schedule worries no matter what happens and that is Brooklyn. The Robins will have 18 Sundays, 11 Saturdays and two holidays at home. And they will spend three of their four Sundays away in Chicago and St. Louis and their lone holiday out of town on the Polo Grounds.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson must have forgotten his managerial worries long enough to draw up this year's National League listings.

New Ball Adopted by National League

New York, Feb. 4 (CB)—A new ball—with raised stitches enabling moundsmen to get a firmer grasp on it—designed to curtail home run hitting was officially adopted by the National League at its regular mid-winter meeting here.

Adoption of the ball came as a surprise inasmuch as it had been previously rumored that the National League teams would use it as an experiment during the early training season.

It has been estimated that the ball will curb home runs as much as 20 per cent.

Ebbetts-Oster Clash Tonight

Chicago, Feb. 4 (INS)—Willie Oster, Boston lightweight, meets Herb Ebbetts of Brooklyn at the stadium tonight in the 10-round windup. The Oster-Ebbetts bout was substituted for the Canzoneri and Hess bout.

ASSAULT SUIT AGAINST MAX

New York, Feb. 3 (US) — Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion of the world, was threatened by Samuel Witte, lawyer, with a suit for assault and battery, and contesting statements flew faster than prize ring fists.

The action grows out of an imbroglio in the lobby of the Hotel Commodore Monday afternoon, when Schmeling is alleged to have thrown James Rahl, 19-year-old process server, employed by Witte, down a flight of marble stairs as the boy tried to serve him with a summons.

According to Witte, he was representing Charles Rose, sport promoter, in collecting certain sums due on Schmeling's European profits. According to Rose, Witte does not represent him and has not since last July. He says he has no unsettled claims against Schmeling or his manager, Joe Jacobs.

SET DATES FOR FRENCH STARS

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Seraphin Martin and Paul Keller, French track stars, plan to run at distance, ranging from 5/0 yards to one mile during their brief American campaign this month.

With their initial races only a few days off, the Frenchmen planned to get down to training today. Martin's first engagement is in the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. Keller's debut will be made at the Seton Hall College games at Newark, N. J., Monday night.

Here's the way their schedule has been arranged:

MARTIN

Feb. 7, Millrose, half mile.
Feb. 12, Meadowbrook Games, Philadelphia, 600 yards.
Feb. 16, New York A. C., half mile.
Feb. 20, National A. A. U. Championships, New York, 800 and 1000 yards.
Feb. 21, Seton Hall, Newark, 1000 yards.
Feb. 28, Boston A. A., 1000 yards or one mile.
Feb. 28, New Jersey A. A. U. Championships, 600 and 1000 yards.

KELLER

Feb. 9, Seton Hall, Newark, 1000 yards.
Feb. 14, Boston A. A., 1000 yards or one mile.
Feb. 19 New Jersey A. A. U. Championships, 600 and 1000 yards.
Feb. 28, National A. A. U. Championships, 600 and 1000 yards.

English Women Golf Stars Feted in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 4 (INS)—A luncheon today started a round of social functions to be given in New York for Miss Diana Fishwick and a party of notable English women golfers prior to their departure to play in southern tourneys. One of the hostesses at today's luncheon was Glenna Collett, five times United States woman's golf champion, who was defeated last year in the English final by Miss Fishwick.

Miss Fishwick, only 19, and her party were welcomed to America on their arrival by a large group of American players. They will play in the major tournaments in Florida.

Noted Jockey Hurt in Toss at Miami

Hialeah Park, Miami Fla., Feb. 4 (US)—"Sonny" Workman, leading Metropolitan rider and second in the 1930 American jockey list, broke his left ankle when he was thrown from W. S. Kilmer's two-year-old Suntica in the Fort Myers purse here.

The crack Whitney rider fell when his mount swerved sharply leaving the barrier and tossed him heavily to the sodden track.

B. C., H. C. MILE TEAMS RACE IN B. A. A. GAMES

By BILL CONNELL

Boston College and Holy Cross one-mile relay teams will fight at the B. A. A. games on February 14, with the B. C men favored for the first time in several years to give the Crusaders a close battle.

B. C. one-mile teams of late have not been up to the high standard of the fours at the Heights since Jack Ryder became coach.

This season, however, B. C. has its full strength in the one-mile relay available and the addition of Don Fleet to the team makes it a real threat.

And a race between anchor men of the type of McCafferty and Fleet should be one of the outstanding events of this indoor season.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

No better comparison of the golf club swing has ever been made than the one who likens it to swing a stone on the end of a string. This applied to golf, makes the club head a whip-like action, the only difference between actually swinging a club and a string being that in the case of the club you work with both hands and both arms. It is one reason, also, why a vogue for lighter woods has developed.

It is not the power of the blow but the zip of it; not the force or weight of the clubhead but the speed of it which moves the ball. Bob Sterburg of the Commonwealth Golf Club, using 12½ ounce clubs and being perhaps the first prominent professional to do so and openly proclaim the fact.

St. Alphonsus Club to Hold Tourney

Plans are under way for a golf tournament to be held at the St. Alphonsus' Association starting Feb. 23, 1931, entries closing Feb. 16, 1931. This tournament will be for members of the association only.

"The Word 'SPIT' ...Conveys the Meaning"

Says

DR. G. E. MURPHY

Health Officer, Olympia, Washington

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

THURSTON COUNTY
WASHINGTON

Olympia, Washington
September 9, 1930

The American Cigar Company
111 Fifth Avenue
New York, New York.

Gentlemen:

The commendable campaign against "spit-tipping" in the manufacture of cigars should receive the endorsement of all interested in the Public Health.

The word "spit" is forceful, easily understood, and conveys the meaning intended.

Permission is given The American Cigar Company to make use of this letter.

Yours very truly

City Health Officer
G E Murphy.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Murphy's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Murphy writes: "The... campaign against 'spit-tipping' in the manufacture of cigars should receive the endorsement of all interested in the Public health."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar free of the spit germ.

Seals and Signets

Engraved gems were used as such by the Egyptians, Jews, Assyrians and Greeks. Ahab's seal was used by Jezebel, 899 B. C. The Romans in the time of the Tarquins had gemmed rings, which they wore on occasions.

It Hurts Him to Be Just 'One of the Crowd'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer inclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy 19 years old and madly in love with a girl two years younger than I am. She says she loves me, but I have found out she goes out with other boys. I don't mind this so much, but why doesn't she tell me so? I have asked her about it. She denies she was ever out with any other boy but me. I have been going about with her now almost a year. What would you do?

"TROUBLED HEART"

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Troubled Heart: Probably the reason your friend does not tell you all she does is that she does not wish to hurt you, and still likes you too well to give you up entirely. You must follow the dictates of your own heart in the matter of giving her up. I think she intends to have a good time for a while, which is quite correct from her point of view, and if it hurts you too much to be just one of the crowd it might be better to break off now.

Unreasonably Jealous

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a married man of eight years. I have a wonderful little baby girl and a very good wife. I worship the very ground they walk on, but there is one thing in me that hurts. That is jealousy of my wife and child. I at times causes hard feelings. I do not ever feel that she would do wrong, as my love for her proves her honesty and good faith in my baby and myself. I at times say things that I very sorry for afterward. Please help me to stop this with a little advice. I myself am at fault, but somehow cannot seem to stop. Please give me some advice as to how I may keep her happy instead of at times hurting her feelings. UNHAPPY DAN.

Dear Unhappy Dan: There is no help for a mad habit, and unreasonably jealous but his own will power and understanding. I advise your honesty, and it is one step on the way to improvement, but there is nothing an outsider can do to help cure you. You believe in your wife, and love her, and still when the mood is on you, you say unjust things to hurt. The only cure is in your own mind and heart. I believe you are a good man. Why not take yourself seriously to task and try honestly to overcome this weakness?

Too Young for Love

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 15 years old and in love with my brother's chum. He comes to my home once in a while and talks to me and is very nice. He also is in my sophomore class. He seems to care for me at times. Would you please tell me how to win his love? My parents think I am too young to have a boy friend. ANXIOUS.

Dear Anxious—Your parents are right, of course, in saying that you are too young to consider love affairs seriously. You will very likely have many boy friends before you decide to marry. Why not continue to be good friends and not spoil everything by getting sentimental? As long as he continues to be friends with your brother your own relations toward him should be very satisfactory.

Can They Afford to Marry?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am bringing you a story as old as the ages. Here it is: I have a good position which may result in rapid promotion in a few years. There is a girl living in a small town and I love her very much, and she has declared it a love for me. I only see her about four times a year since the distance between us is so great. The real question I would you advise me to marry her on a $30 a week salary. She is 19 and I am 20? DICK.

Dear Dick: You haven't told me enough about the girl. Is she a good housekeeper, does she know how to cook, are her people thrifty? Twenty is terribly young for a boy to sign up for life.

Don't Neglect Disorders of Nerves in Child

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

"CHOREA," or "Saint Vitus' Dance," as it is commonly called, is a disease of the nervous system. It occurs in early school life, usually among girls between five and 15 years of age.

The exact cause of this disease is not known. It is usually associated with acute rheumatic fever and heart disease. Over-pressure at school work is often an important factor.

Anemia in children must be considered a factor because most of the cases show very distinct blood changes. Chorea may follow as a complication of any of the infectious diseases. This is particularly true of scarlet fever and typhoid fever.

The disease comes on slowly. Quite often the child is accused merely of being "nervous." If at school it is noticed that he is having difficulty in writing or drawing. At home, the child is continually dropping things, has difficulty in feeding or dressing himself. At times the gait is at fault, and there is stumbling, with frequent falls and difficulty in climbing stairs. In other cases the spasm is in the face. Unconsciously he makes grimaces, for which the poor child may be punished.

When the disease is fully developed the movements increase and the intensity of this ailment are unmistakable. There are irregular and jerky motions, varying from an occasional muscular twitching to almost constant agitation.

Excitement, fatigue and embarrassment, or any effort on the part of the child to control these movements increases them. During sleep the movements disappear.

Unfortunately, these children are brought to the physician's attention weeks after the onset of the disease. Upon the first sign of suspicion of chorea the child should be taken to a doctor. If neglected the condition back of this disease may injure the heart.

Children with chores should not be permitted to attend school. They should receive plenty of fresh air, nourishing foods and adequate rest. Such children should never be ridiculed or punished because of the movements they cannot help. They cannot control them and, as I have said, any effort on their part to do so increases the movements.

In several cases the rest treatment is imperative. This means placing the child in bed, where complete mental and physical rest may be obtained. This, perhaps, may be best accomplished in a hospital.

This disease has a tendency to recur, particularly in the spring months. Children who have had one attack should be watched carefully particularly after they have returned to school. They should not be forced to do too much school work; and should be given frequent vacations.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Lulu C. B. Q. What is the cause of ice cream tasting like copper? Green beans and chicken gravy taste like copper, too.

A—You probably have some intestinal disturbance, and it would be wise to correct your diet and avoid constipation.

* * *

VERY MUCH WORRIED Q—How long will it take to definitely clear up "common itch"? I still have the rash and itching, and have had the trouble about nine months?

A—The proper treatment and general care this trouble should be definitely cleared up within a reasonably short space of time. For full particulars send a self addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

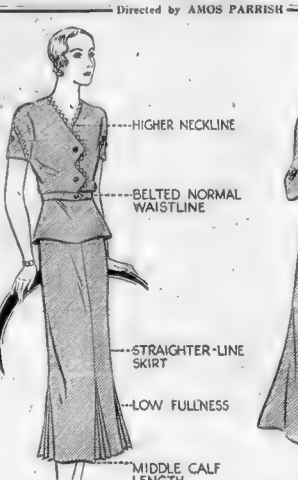
What's in Fashion?

The Spring Daytime Silhouette

Directed by AMOS PARRISH



NEW YORK, Feb. 3 What's the fashionable figure going to look like there coming spring days? Does it look as it did last spring? Or is it different?

Both! It's still a very feminine figure, as it was last Spring But there are things about the fashionable 1931 dress that make this feminine figure look different . . . and even better looking than it looked in 1930.

Last year at this time fashionable women were just discovering that they had waistlines—and that this waistline wasn't at the hipline as it had been for so long. But they weren't quite sure just where it was. Some put it just above the hips. Some just where nature intended the waistline to be. And some put it even higher than that.

This year there's no indecision about it. It's normal waistline—if it is becoming. And it is, to the big majority of women.

And this year fashion-knowing women are sure of where the waistline is, that they're definitely marking it with a belt—and a belt close fitting enough to indicate the line clearly. Last year, belts weren't the general rule they are now.

Straighter Skirts

Last year—Spring, 1930—fashionable skirts were full and easy to walk in after seasons of tight, knee binding ones. So they are this year. But they are straighter in silhouette. They haven't as much of a flare as Spring, 1930, skirts had.

Fullness in 1931 skirts is nearer the center of the front. Last year's skirt fullness came more to the side.

This years fullness doesn't start as high up. "Low-released" fullness, it's called. And it means that pleats are stitched down part way and allowed to fall free only near the bottom of the skirt. And this 1931 fullness is more apt to be pleats than godets.

Higher Necklines

Dress necklines are a little higher this year than they were last. And that's a logical change Because with the waistline more definitely indicated—and at the normal waistline, and therefore higher than it was last spring—the neckline simply had to come up in order to leave any blouse space at all! It's a simple matter of proportion—and the higher neckline makes a more pleasing proportion.

All these points you can see illustrated in the figure at the left above. And you can see how they differ from the figure at the right—an illustration of one of last spring's most-in-fashion dresses.

This 1931 dress, you'll notice, has short sleeves. And that's something many, many daytime dresses are going to have this coming season

Four Skirt Lengths

How long are skirts? Middle calf for daytime, as the sketch shows. Last year you'll remember, lots of women were still wearing their dresses shorter than middle calf

Now they're wearing them shorter only for sports events. And for formal afternoon, they're longer—lower calf. While in the evening ankle length is the fashionable one for spring

Should One Fold the Napkin?

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Should one fold the napkin at the end of a meal when dining at a private home?

2—Is it correct to have candles lighted on the table for lunch after bridge in the evening?

R. B.

1—This depends on the custom of the family with whom we are dining. And it is very important that we observe what is the custom in this family, and it is very important that we do with our napkins what they do. So we must watch the hostess and see if she folds her napkin.

A good thing to do about this when we are uncertain as to what we should do is to incline toward folding our napkin. It is really never incorrect for us to fold our napkin—we can fold it quite casually—but there are times when it is incorrect not to fold it.

2—Yes, this is very charming, and adds distinctly to the festive air of the occasion.

Addressing Postal Cards

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

First of all I must thank you for the wonderful advice I obtain by reading your columns.

Yesterday I read your article on the form of addressing postcards. You emphasized the fact that when addressing a card you should address it to both the husband and the wife, even though you only know the husband or wife.

Here is my problem: I do not know the husband's first name but I do know the wife's. How should I address the card? Could I address it as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Alice Brown,
470 Hemlock Street,
San Francisco

Please tell me what to do in regard to this matter?

A. G

Thank you, first, for your appreciative words . . . they were most kind.

Since you do not know the husband's first name it would be quite correct, if you have no way of finding out what his name is, to address the card without the first name. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Brown,
470 Hemlock Street,

Do not, in any case, address the card in the first name of the wife.

Evening Vanity Bag

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Please tell me if it is good taste for a young lady to carry her purse when she is attending a theater with her young man friend?

2—Should a young lady, in her own home, help her friend put on his overcoat?

B. L.

1—Yes. She needs it for all of those details that "we women" know are so essential, and so forth.

2—No. He won't like it, and you would best beware. A gentleman will resent this attention, for he will feel cheap and embarrassed at the thought that he needs help.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Leftovers Tempting to the Appetite

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEX

IT IS NEVER reading this problem of leftovers for there always seems to be some. It that should be remade and this "reconcocting" as my neighbor calls it, requires much thought but really it is well worth the time spent, for good, wholesome foods should never find their way into the incinerator

Martha Lee

The secret of using the leftover bits of food to advantage is to make the dinner thing new—something different, that is so attractive to the eye and palate that second helpings will be demanded

The bits of meat left from dinner the previous evening—"not enough to speak about," as my neighbor says, but plenty for four or six persons when extended with a half cup rice cooked in salted water, then cooled and combined with the meat which has been put through the food chopper, a teaspoonful of grated or chopped onion, salt and pepper to season, the leftover gravy to moisten the mixture or just enough white sauce to give the right consistency Then remove the leaves from a head of cabbage, blanch them well and place a few teaspoonfuls of the tasty mixture on one end of each leaf, fold the edges over and wrap the leaf around the stuffing.

Secure the loose end of each leaf with a toothpick. Place the rolls in a greased casserole, pour over a well seasoned, slightly thickened tomato sauce to just cover the rolls and bake uncovered in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve from the casserole.

INDIVIDUAL LAMB PIES

2 cups diced lamb or mutton
½ cup diced carrots
½ cup peas, cooked or canned
1 cup gravy or thickened stock.

Cut into small pieces any leftover lamb or mutton. Cook the carrots until they are soft, add them, together with the peas, to the meat and pour the gravy or thickened stock over all. Simmer gently for a few minutes. Line patty pans with a thin layer of baking powder biscuit dough, fill with the mixture and cover the top with another thin layer of the dough. Bake in a quick oven until the crust is baked.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

DATE SQUARES

1½ cups Quaker Oats
1½ cups flour
½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup butter
1 level tsp. soda

Crumble together. Put some on bottom of pan and rest on top. Sprinkle oats on top.

Filling

2 cups dates
½ cup white sugar
1 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
Salt

Cook until dates are soft. Bake in slow oven half an hour. Cut in squares. Mrs. Richard Swanson, 4 Pigeon Hill ct., Pigeon Cove, Mass.

OYSTER FLOAT.

¼ lb. or 2 tbsps. butter
1 cup flour
1 qt. oysters
Few grains cayenne
2 cups boiled milk
2 eggs, beaten and cooked oysters
2 cups milk
1 tsp. lemon juice

Melt butter, add flour, salt and cayenne, and mix well. Add milk gradually and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly to prevent burning). Add oysters cut in halves. Just before serving add the beaten egg yolks and lemon juice. Serve piping hot on hot buttered toast or biscuits, which have been warmed —Mrs. Grace McCallion, 198 E. Milton St., Readville, Suth 3

PINEAPPLE PIE

1 small can crushed pineapple
½ lb. graham crackers
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup butter

Strain juice of pineapple and mix well with sugar and cornstarch. Then boil mixture for five minutes. Add well-beaten egg. Turn mixture in bowl with pineapple. Go over graham crackers with rolling pin, then mix the butter into the cracker crumbs.

Place the crumbs on the bottom of the pie plate, then mix the pineapple mixture on top. Then add crumbs on the top of the pie. Bake this pie in a hot oven 400 deg F., about 25 minutes. Serves eight.—Mrs. R. Baker 16 Wolcott st. Malden

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

"If A proposed job is outlined to me and if the chances for success looked good I can do nothing but admit the truth" said Duke.

"Jo other words," Connie speculated, "you keep your clients from unsuccessful crime and guide them to victory?"

"If you prefer to be cynical—do it—yet you have no idea of how many crimes I have prevented. Of course, I deal with a relatively small group On the whole, I believe I do a great deal more good than harm. The police battle crime from the outside. I here from within."

Connie, studying him realized that these things so repellant to her, whose philosophy of life was entirely different, fascinated Duke Garson. He was playing with fire and dangerously close to being burned.

A strange silence fell between Duke and Connie as they sat on the rim of the lily pool. Disturbing thoughts a sense of danger was in her mind; a fate with crime and dishonesty Moral choice had brought her mysteriously into this dubious association with him.

Allied With Crime

From the beginning she had sensed a sinister something about him, and now it was definite His was, for better or worse, allied with crime and dish onesty. Moral ly, his endeavors rubbed her the wrong way; more her good taste was violated. Never before had she realized so clearly how precious was her heritage of conventional respectability. In her own set if there were those who dropped away from the code their failings were trivialities compared with this other ugly revelation of human wickedness

Crime, the harsh, cold brutality of it, filled her with repugnance —it was scarcely possible for her to remember herself even remotely connected with it as her friendship with Duke Garson implied.

He had confessed so much already that she wanted, before they finished, to know all about it.

"These crimes—do you profit from them? I mean, do you make a living out of such debased creatures?"

Garson smiled a little and shook his head slightly.

"The policeman, the prison keeper, the hangman are getting their bit for what they do to the criminal. Fortunately, I am better off. No, I don't make a penny on of crime. If I cared to I could probably make a very large income, but it is not necessary I have some resources of my own"

"Yet you associate with criminals from choice?"

"From choice, yes. I used to be respectable myself Apparently, I was as well thought of as your Mr Tracy, for in stance, by the time I died death."

He looked at her challengingly; before his eyes she was beautiful and somehow smug So far, she had revealed little of her real self to him; what he saw was her protective brown eyes with their golden glints her clear fresh skin and the chestnut-ap burn sheen of her hair If with it her lurked a crude vitality it was marked by an outer refinement of beauty, a facade of ultrafeed poise

"You don't approve of me, of course, and I don't know but that my presence here makes you uncomfortable," he said her frankly "I outrage your sense of respectability because I am so different from your friends A man with original ideas—or any idea at all—is rather a bull in a china shop, for most people. I fancy you are a bit regretful now that you invited me to stay over. Even Kitty, after she begins to take on the glow, will probably find me odd, at least. I won't be at all offended if it would make you more comfortable for me to go right on back to town without waiting for dinner. Now that you know something as to work kind of a person I am, please don't feel obligated to have me up here. I really am different, you know."

Her eyes flashed and she smiled down a little mockingly.

"Also, you're silly. Of course, I want you to stay. You're not going to corrupt me in the least. It does seem strange to me, though that a man of your intelligence should throw in his lot with—well, fenth ave. You haven't told me why you did it."

"I don't know, for certain, myself—idle natural inclination, I suppose," he remarked. "Are you sure you want me to stay?"

"Oh, positively!"

They rose and moved back toward the house and dinner. As they walked he was so close beside her that she seemed to feel virile radiations from his body, she could imagine him charged with electric energy, the vital emanations of a tiger. Yes that was what he reminded her of! A tiger a tame civilized tiger with all of his jungled energies pent up. There was a ruthless some thing about him a mental quality which in a weaker man might have been savagery

Across the Line

"Haven't you ever fell" she asked him, slowly, "that only a hair's breadth divided you from evil? Haven't you ever imprisoned yourself stepping across the line and doing a lot of things that you felt to that you have been taught is right and just?"

"Who hasn't?" he asked, coolly.

Connie's mother, at dinner was pleasantly impressed by Duke Garson. For her own part Connie was relieved to find that his underworld had left no visible social stamp upon her guest. Not only did he talk like a gentleman, but he achieved the even more difficult feat of dining like one.

Not that she cared a hoot herself—but her mother, with the lingering formality of another generation, was less tolerant of small matters.

When the meal was finished, Connie's mother went upstairs and for a few minutes. Connie was with her Returning down stairs, she did not encounter Garson and then looking into the dining room at random, she saw him sitting at a window in close conversation with Higgins, the butler.

Continued Tomorrow.

Ownership of Stocks Shows Huge Increase

Gain by 128 Corporations Is 74% in Two Years! Official Data

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Feb. 4—One hundred and twenty-eight leading American business enterprises which had fewer than 4,200,000 stockholders at the end of 1928 had more than 7,300,000 stockholders towards the end of last year.

B. C. Forbes

This phenomenal of 74 per cent increase emphasizes how widely diffused ownership of corporations is becoming.

As President Walter S. Gifford of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company remarked when I mentioned these figures to him:

"They indicate that a good deal of American business is getting to be so widely owned as to make management more and more of trusteeship."

* * *

The increase in stockholders recorded by these companies reached 52 per cent in 1929 over 1928, a record wholly without parallel. The jump that year was from 4,200,000 to 6,400,000. Last year's gain of 900,000 represented 15 per cent, this notwithstanding the whole country's apprehension concerning the outlook for corporations and for the stock market.

* * *

Annual reports show that it is now usual rather than unusual for the majority of stockholders in large companies to own less than 100 shares.

* * *

No fewer than 12 companies had over 100,000 stockholders each on their last dividend date in 1930.

Two companies actually have more than half a billion stockholders each: American Telephone has 540,000 and Cities Service Co. 502,420, totals never before approached by any other companies.

The 12 companies having more than 100,000 stockholders each are as follows:

Company	Stockholders 1930	% Gain 1930
Amer. Telephone	540,000	11 9
Cities Service	502 420	13 8

Dr. Daniel Starch, who obtained these and other statistics covering 128 companies, says:

"It is remarkable the extent to which the American public has placed its confidence in large business enterprises. The trend seems to be toward larger and larger systems under group management. More and more people today, instead of investing their money in a small business of their own, place their investments in the large companies, where they will receive the benefits of the excellent managerial skill under which these large groups operate. They themselves, in turn, may also be employed by one of these large organizations. It is an age of great business enterprises owned by the people.

"The 11 companies having the largest number of stockholders in their respective groups in 1930 were as follows:

Utilities—Asso. Gas & Elec tic	187 529
Transportation—Penn. R R	232 401

EMPLOYMENT OF ICE MEN IS STEADIED

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Charles C. Small, Maine-born president of the American Ice Co., who learned the business from the tail board of an ice wagon in the days when such vehicles were horse-drawn, tells me he has been able to stabilize employment in his industry to a large extent. This is despite the fact that the ice industry is seasonal to a large extent. Mr. Small's company is keeping 3000 men employed the year around which is within 1500 of the number required to "carry on" during the torrid season.

Charles C. Small

* * *

Boston Ice Co. is a subsidiary of American Ice. Five hundred workers are now on the local payrolls out of 800 required in the hot weather period. President Small, by the way, is a regular home comer, and never fails to spend his annual vacation down Kennebunkport way. He heads the world's largest company of its kind.

* * *

Within the memory of the mid- dleaged people of today, considerable ice harvesting would have been seen going on at this season of the year on the lakes and ponds of New England. Now more than 95 per cent of Boston's ice supply is frozen at plants within the city limits. Much of it is frozen from day to day in the summer as required.

* * *

Boston plant freezing does away with annoying "snow ice," makes the cakes of uniform size, more easily handled, and practically does away with the need of scales, although they are still a part of the motor-driven ice wagon's equipment.

* * *

General Chairman A. B. Hall tells us the Better Letters conference is under way today at the University Club. One way to make letters better for the recipients would be for all business and financial leaders to have their signatures typewritten as well as signed with pen and ink. It often happens that even the best executives do not write a readily deciphered signature. The hand-written letter, happily, has long since passed out of the business picture.

* * *

Pathfinder recently printed these lines:

"Let's hope they ne'er
Will get so rash
That in tin cans
They'll put up hash!"

Thousands of cans of hash from Government stores were sold in Boston after the World War, and a superior brand of canned hash, put up in Boston, has been on the market for years.

* * *

Speaking of canning, a Pacific coast firm is now packing sardines standing up in the cans instead of lying flat. It is explained that the sardines are now packed like the passengers in modern rapid transit.

* * *

Even packing the passengers as mentioned above, doesn't appear to put all tractions on a paying basis.

* * *

Secretary George A. Rich of the Boston Stock Exchange announces Lewis E. Waring has been admitted as a general partner of Clark, Childs & Co.

* * *

On recommendation of the Boston committee on stock list and with the approval of the governing committee, the number of shares of $5.50 dividend series preferred stock New England Gas & Electric Association has been reduced from 200,000 shares to 100,000 shares. These shares have been exchanged for 100,000 shares of $7 cumulative second preferred stock.

* * *

Boston Stock Exchange is advised that by vote of the stockholders of Schletter & Zander Co., Inc., the name of that corporation was changed to Signature Hosiery Company, Inc.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Both Anaconda and Kennecott sold higher today despite another cut in copper prices. Custom smelters today offered copper for domestic shipment to the end of May at 9¾ cents a pound, delivered, a reduction of one-quarter of a cent from their previous asking price. Earlier in the day trade circles reported that copper in speculative hands was being sold at 9¾ cents.

The reduction brought the price of the metal to the low level reached last October when copper sold at the lowest price in 35 years. The foreign prices remained unchanged.

National Bellas Has a Soft Tone

National Bellas Hess had a soft tone today, following announcement of passing of the preferred dividend. Pres. Albert S. Scott of National Bellas Hess Co., Inc., makes the following statement:

"Notwithstanding the fact that current cash position has actually improved over that existing Dec. 31, the directors of the National Bellas Hess Co., Inc., in a spirit of conservatism, have deemed it desirable to suspend payment of dividends on the preferred stock, effective with payment ordinarily due March 1, 1931, until such time as it is considered prudent to resume."

Allis Chalmers Fractionally Off

Allis Chalmers changed hands today only fractionally lower. Announcement came that unfilled orders of the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co. on Feb. 1 amounted to $12,136,000, a decrease of $866,000 from the total reported on Jan 1. The figure also compared with unfilled orders of $13,091,000 Feb. 1, 1930.

General Cigar Slightly Higher

General Cigar was sold slightly higher today. Earnings of General Cigar Co. for 1930 reflect the larger share of gross which overhead expenses demand when volume drops. Last year the company's sales declined between 10 and 12 per cent from sales in 1929. Net income however, declined 25 per cent to $3,203,521 from $4,295,960 in 1929. Earnings for 1930 were equal to $6.03 a share on 472,982 common shares, against $8.06 on 489,084 common shares in 1929.

The 1930 decline sales for General Cigar was about the same as the recession in total cigar output by the country. In 1929, however, General Cigar's increase in sales was 37 per cent greater than the country's total increase in cigar production. The company reached in that year the highest production ever attained by any cigar company in the United States.

During the year General Cigar cancelled 16,102 shares of common. The stock had been purchased for sale to employes, but because of the decline in price the company decided to retire the stock, and charged $1,071,272, cost of the shares canceled, to its capital surplus.

Worthington Lower With Pact Denied

Worthington Pump was recessional today, soon selling down over 2 points. This was partly a reflection of profit taking. Yesterday Worthington gained an additional four points, but its sponsorship was somewhat less aggressive and short covering was chiefly responsible for the day's strength. Attempt was made to link its upturn with a possible merger with Foster-Wheeler, but no basis exists for the report.

Foster Wheeler Slightly Lower

There was a little profit taking in Foster Wheeler today, but it held well, easing only a little over a point under early offerings. The stock this week continued strongly bought and achieved a new high on the present recovery. Although the stock is entitled to a rest for the purpose of consolidating its gain, strong demand is reported to exist on any reaction.

A sizeable short interest was built up in Foster by reason of arbitrating when the International Combustion deal was under way and the recent advance in Foster-Wheeler has forced a good deal of covering from this source.

Union Pacific in Exclusive Class

Union Pacific was again sold today in the exclusive $200-a-share class. When the big carrier this week crossed 200, its best price represented the highest level it has reached since it dipped to 166¼. Its firmness was in response to the road's December statement, showing that net operating income was somewhat closer to the 1929 figures than the average for last year.

Earnings for the full year 1930 are estimated at $15 to $16 a share. It is likely that investment buying of Union Pacific will now await a reaction, since the field above 200 is less than 5 per cent.

Paramount Publix Meets Predictions

Paramount Publix last year showed an increase over its earnings for 1929. This was in line with predictions from responsible quarters. Official estimates are that $5.90 a share would be recorded on the 3,113,028 shares outstanding, compared with $5.79 on the smaller capitalization at the end of 1929.

In the past two years the company has followed a conservative course. It has adhered to the policy of producing quality pictures without attempting expensive spectacles. With its wide distributive organization the company has been making a success of its average production.

Vanadium Rumors Are Related

According to rumors in Wall Street, two groups are operating in Vanadium again. One party is said to be the same as that which was depressing the stock recently, while those on the bull side are said to have attracted several additions to their ranks on the theory that there is a good-sized short interest in the stock against which a demonstration could be made if the general market improved.

Electric Auto-Lite Did Well in 1930

Electric Auto-Lite did comparatively well last year in the face of the substantial reduction in automobile production. Thus far in the current year it is reported that there has been considerable improvement in operations because of better demand for the company's products. Interests which have often been active in the stock, are credited as having been good buyers on a scale during all moderate reactions recently in anticipation of further betterment later in the year.

International Match Earnings Larger

Estimates are that earnings of International Match last year were in the neighborhood of $9 a share on the combined preference and common stocks. This would compare with $8.77 a share in preceding year. Such a showing would be considered encouraging in view of the reports issued by many other industrial concerns reflecting the business recession.

U. S. Gypsum Is Newcomer

U. S. Gypsum is a newcomer on the Stock Exchange, having been listed last week. The company is dominant in handling gypsum and has been active for the past 30 years. Deposits of this mineral are definitely known and are limited. Gypsum has an important place in building construction.

Last year the company increased its common stock by about 102,000 shares in order to acquire various new properties. The results in earnings from these acquisitions should be felt this year. Earnings for 1930 are estimated to have been close to the $3.98 a share reported for the preceding 12 months.

Utility Executives Planning Vacations

Profit taking in utility stocks recently is attributed to the knowledge that the leading executives of several of the large public utility corporations plan to take an extended vacation shortly. This would indicate that these officials are not inclined to anticipate any major developments in the public utility industry during the next few months.

U. S. Alcohol Net Income Disappointing

Earnings of U. S. Industrial Alcohol during 1930 are expected to make an unfavorable showing. Interests in close touch with the affairs of the company estimate that earnings during 1930 will only cover approximately half of the $6 dividend requirements. Consequently considerable concern is felt over the maintenance of the present dividend. In quarters usually well informed regarding the affairs of the company, it is stated that several of the officials are in favor of a reduction in the present $6 rate, but that there is some difference of opinion as to whether or not it is advisable to reduce the dividend at the present time. In this respect, it is said much depends on business during the immediate future.

Long-Pull Buying in Missouri Pacific

Recent absorption in Missouri Pacific common is attributed to interests who are favorably impressed with the "long pull" prospects of the common. Preliminary reports for 1930 indicate that the company earned approximately $4.77 a share on the common stock. On this basis, the common is selling on a rather conservative ratio to earnings.

In addition, the company increased its operating efficiency last year with the result that an improvement in the volume of traffic carried by the road should have a favorable effect upon the future earnings.

Increased activity in General Motors is attributed to a prominent Chicago group which has recently become associated with the market destinies of "Motors."

Johns Manville Is Bull Favorite

Action of Johns Mansville confirms the belief that this stock is one of the favorites of a strong "bull clique" which is operating in the market. Mansville [illegible] bought on reactions, although as yet this demand shows little inclination to follow the rallies aggressively.

Interests conversant with the operations of the group sponsoring Johns Mansville indicate that the "long term" prospects of the company are brighter than they have been for some time, due to the outlook for an improvement in residential building. Thus far however, business has shown only a slight improvement, but interests close to the company are optimistic regarding the prospects for the balance of the year.

Rubber Is Quiet

New York, Feb. 4—Rubber futures today were quiet. March 7.80; May, 7.90; July, 8.10. New contracts—March, 7.90; May, 8.06; July, 8.26.

CURB MARKET ADVANCES SLOWLY

New York, Feb. 4—A moderate rise in volume attended a slow upward movement of prices in the curb market today.

The leisurely rally grew out of early irregularity and a stubborn resistance to selling. Recent declines have been narrow, bringing out little or no liquidation, so that some professional traders regard the market as sold out, at least temporarily, and are curtailing their short lines.

Utilities mustered up a fair degree of activity and there were small but general advances in that group. Oils paid little attention to the dividend cut by Standard of Nebraska.

Vacuum whose directors have authorized the regular quarterly payment gained a point and Standard of Indiana improved slightly. International Petroleum was rather easy. Cumberland Pipe rallied a couple of points.

Trading in the specialties was quiet and there were few wide changes in price. Insurance Company of North America strengthened with Dresser "B," Ford Limited, Libby McNeil, Tung Sol, Canadian Marconi and General Aviation following the upward trend.

Shenandoah pfd. rose a point and moderate improvement appeared in Public Utility Holding.

Car Loadings Show Increased Buying

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Feb. 4—Seasonal factors will tend to operate against any clear-cut economic recovery for another six weeks, and then the promise of outdoor work will accelerate the forces of recuperation.

M. S. Rukeyser

Meantime, sensitive indices for general business continue somewhat above the December low level.

The most effective influence for economic revival is the steady habit of consumption, which has been gradually depleting stocks on hand and creating shortages. In a quiet, cautious way there has been some disposition on the part of merchants to build up inventories, and this is reflected statistically in an increase in merchandise freight car loadings. That change, and a forward movement in the barometric steel industry, whose rate of rising activity has lately been checked somewhat, are the chief early harbingers which indicate that perhaps the dead center of the depression has been passed.

But, as reasonable observers expected, gains are distinctly slight and highly irregular.

Somewhat more cheerful sentiment depends more on what important financiers believe they see ahead than on immediate tangible developments.

Are we overequipped industrially? Not in normal times if the standard of living is to be maintained.

Even equipment is perpetually wearing out or growing old fashioned. Thus there is nothing in the superstition that there isn't enough potential work to go around.

For example, a survey into machine tools, conducted by the American Machinist, reveals that 48 per cent of the machine tools in metal-working plants is more than ten years old, and is obsolete, and could be profitably replaced by the radically improved designs developed in the last decade.

The process of scrapping and rebuilding will go on as confidence is restored, and will be encouraged by cheap interest rates and a good absorptive bond market, which appears to be developing, despite the recent flurry over the bonus.

In connection with the ruthless and inconsiderate discharge of employes of brokers during the slump, it is noteworthy that the leading banking house in the country has not pursued this policy. Though it has abstained from taking on new employes, it kept at least 150 minor employes on the payroll who could have been dispensed with — from a narrowly selfish standpoint.

What did the depression in 1930 do to corporate profits? Although a few score of exceptional companies moved forward, 252 companies, which have reported thus far, showed an aggregate decline in earnings for the year of 39 per cent. The combined net incomes reached $470,288,000, compared with $779,706,000 reported for the same group in 1929. Industrials fared worse than public utilities. According to this preliminary survey, industrials declined 39 per cent, public utilities only 5 per cent, and railroads 33 per cent.

Attempts to beat the market by scalping dividends do not pay. A statistician has studied the results over a period of years of buying stocks just before they go ex-dividend and reselling them within a few days, and he found that the practice yields losses, not profits.

$8,714,801 Profit for Caterpillar

Caterpillar Tractor Company reports for the year 1930 net earnings, after provision for federal taxes, of $8,714,801, equivalent to $4.63 a share on the capital stock, as compared with $11,600,445, or $6.16 a share, in 1929. Net earnings after federal taxes in the final quarter of 1930 were equivalent to $1.37 a share.

Board of directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share and an extra dividend of 25 cents a share, both payable on or before February 28 to stockholders of record, February 14.

STOCK PRICES ARE MIXED IN BOSTON

Stock prices were mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Exchange. Changes ranged from fractions to 5 points or more Boston & Maine issues were active with the A stamped issue gaining 2 points and the B stamped dropping 3. The prior preferred shares recovered an early loss of a point.

Eastern Steamship shares were strong, the common gaining 1¾, while the second preferred was a point higher. Edison gained 1½.

Waltham Watch preferred slumped nearly 6 points. Fractional losses were recorded for Union Twist Drill, United Fruit, Gillette, Boston Elevated first preferred, American Woolen preferred and American Telephone.

Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred dropped a point and the prior preferred added 1¼. Minor gains were shown for Stone & Webster, Massachusetts Utilities Anaconda and Boston Elevated preferred.

At annual meeting of Chain & General Equities, Inc., 13,158 shares of the 6½ per cent cumulative preferred, purchased at a discount, were retired.

Philip L. Garret, president of Economic Research, Inc.; Louis J. Hunter, vice-president Shawmut National Bank of Boston, and W. Everit Burnet, senior partner of W. E. Burnet & Co., were elected directors, succeeding Hugh Knowlton, David McAlpin and Donald C. Watson.

Worcester awarded $1,000,000 notes, dated February 5 and due November 12, to Bankers Trust Co. of New York at 1.98 per cent discount.

Other bidders were Shawmut Corp. 2.02 per cent plus $7; Salomon Bros. & Hutzler 2.04 per cent plus $5; Blake Brothers .18 per cent; Worcester County National Bank 2.24 per cent, and Guaranty Co. of New York 2.36 plus $5.

BOND MARKET AGAIN STEADY

New York, Feb. 3—There were further signs of steadying influences at work in the bond market today, resulting in maintenance of the upward trend which developed yesterday.

Gains made by United States Governments were extended by large fractions and the course of corporate investments straightened out to eliminate most of the irregularity. Advances were fractional, but the appearance of the list reflected a firm tendency.

The unexpected reduction in bill rates, back to the lowest levels in the history of the American Acceptance market, eliminating the rise that followed the disturbance in U. S. governments, was a reassuring development to the bond market.

It was taken as an indication that an effort will be exerted to maintain money rates at the lowest possible levels despite the threat seen by some bankers in agitation over the soldiers' bonus.

February's Bond Calls Below 1930

Bonds called for redemption in advance of maturity this month aggregate $23,293,900, against $57,369,100 for January and $81,563,200 a year ago.

Of the current total $17,996,700 have been called in entirety and the balance to satisfy sinking funds.

For two months of 1931 bond redemptions total $80,662,000, against $100,558,500 in the corresponding 1930 period and the record sum of $281,218,970 in 1928.

N. Y. Standard Is Insuring Employes

Standard Oil Co. of New York adopts industrial insurance and pension plan for 45,000 employes, to be administered by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. This is largest transaction of its kind ever undertaken by private corporation. Under plan, which is retroactive to January 1, 1931, men are to be retired at 65 and women at 55, on pensions that roughly equal 2 per cent of their average previous salary multiplied by number of years employe has spent in company's service. It also provides for death and disability benefits.

Edison Company's Earnings Increase

Chicago, Feb. 4—Commonwealth Edison Co. reports for 1930 net income available for dividends of $16,402,588, equivalent to $11.51 a share on 1,425,100 shares outstanding on December 31, and $11.86 a share on the 1,383,034 average number of shares outstanding during the year. This compares with net income in 1929 of $16,322,789.

STORE SHARES LEAD IN NEW YORK MARKET

New York, Feb. 4—In trading on the New York Stock Exchange today the merchandising shares made conspicuous headway, partly in response to Woolworth's January sales report, showing a gain of 4¼ per cent over the like period 1930.

Woolworth, Sears, Montgomery Ward and Best made gains of around a point, and Macy sold up more than 2 points.

A few issues were pushed up 2 to 3, including American Tobacco B, International Business Machines, Johns Manville and Case.

UTILITIES HIGHER

Several of the utilities rose a point or so, including American Water Works, American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light, Consolidated Gas and Stone & Webster.

Miscellaneous issues rising a point or so included Eastman, Loew's, Air Reduction, Freeport Texas, American Can and Continental Can. Rails were inclined to ease, particularly the Rock Island issues, reflecting delay in common dividend action.

The mid-week business statistics as a whole failed to provide impetus to the advance, but were perhaps a little more favorable than otherwise.

The bond market maintained its better tone of the previous session, and while the prospect of soldier bonus legislation still clouded the security outlook, the nervousness of the past week seemed largely to have subsided.

STEEL NEWS CHEERS

Weekly steel trade reviews had been expected to show little change, and their indicating a gain in ingot output from 47 to 48 per cent of capacity, were favorably received.

"Steel" said operations in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown areas were about unchanged, and a little quieter at Birmingham, but this was more than offset by gains in the Chicago and Eastern Pennsylvania mills.

"Iron Age" pointed out that 102 blast furnaces were active as of Feb. 1, a gain of 7 during January, but still the lowest since 1922. Aggregate demand for steel products seems to be broadening a little, but automotive takings are showing scant improvement.

The weekly freight car loadings statement, covering the third week of January, showed a drop of 10,248 cars from the previous week. Loadings usually fall off in that week, but the decline was a little larger than the average.

Electric power production, as reported for the last week of January, was off 6.3 per cent from 1930, and 1.6 per cent from 1929, the widest declines thus far reported in the new year.

MONEY RATE CUT

An unexpected development in the money market was the cancellation of the recent advance of ⅛ of 1 per cent in bankers' acceptance rates, restoring the shorter maturities to 1⅛-1¼ per cent. 2Other credit rates were stationery.

The month-end settlements appear to have exerted virtually no influence. A factor in the sag in acceptance rates is the small volume of acceptances in the market, reflecting the seasonal decline at this time of year.

The weekly petroleum statistics showed the gratifying drop of 24,650 barrels in daily crude output, and only a small gain in gasoline stocks on hand. Standard of Nebraska reduced its dividend, the third Standard unit to take such action. Also Ohio Oil was sold, apparently in apprehension of unfavorable dividend action.

The National Bellas Hess issues, which recently had a spurt in response to its January sales report, fell back on omission of the preferred dividend.

Woolworth's Sales Have Marked Gain

Pres Parsons of F. W. Woolworth Co. said the record for January, 1930, sales over January, 1929 showed a gain of $747,969 or 4.24 per cent, and the old stores gained $66,489 or 38-100 per cent of 1 per cent.

He pointed out that from the 1931 figures old stores have made an increase for January of $424,000 over their increase in 1930, which indicates a marked improvement in trend of business as over 50 per cent of the increase in January was made in the old stores running under the same conditions as a year ago.

Larger Sales for Hudson and Essex

Detroit, Feb 4—Final tabulation of sales of Hudson and Essex cars at New York, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Boston and Cleveland auto shows strongly indicates that business is on the upgrade, increases of from 16 per cent to 60 per cent over the previous years shows being reported, according to Pres W. J. McAneeny of Hudson Motor Car Co.

Coal Production in Week Is Lowered

Washington, Feb. 4—Production of soft coal in week ended January 24 is estimated at 8,859,000 net tons by Bureau of Mines. Compared with preceding week this shows a decrease of 336,000 tons, or 3.7 per cent. Production a year before was 11,703,000 tons.

Results of Boston Auctions Are Mixed

Sales at the Boston stock auctions today resulted in irregular price changes. Merrimack Hat common, selling for the first time since last April, showed a loss of 39 at 20. Among Boston bank stocks First was run up ¼ at 79¼ and Second ¼ at 142¼.

EARNINGS LOWER

E. N., Cambridge—A friend suggested that I buy International Telephone & Telegraph. What do you think of it? I have $5000 in a savings bank, am married, and cannot afford to take chances.

Ans.—Because 1930 earnings were adversely affected by the worldwide business depression, the present status of International Telephone & Telegraph is speculative. Earnings for several previous years were good and covered dividends with something to spare. Net income for nine months ended, September 30, 1930, amounted to $1.56 a share, against dividends of $1.50 for that period. Unofficial forecast for 1930 is just about $2. How much of your fund do you want to spend? We think you ought to buy sound bonds.

SHOULD DIVERSIFY

W. R., Quincy—Shall I average in National Dairy Products? I bought fifty shares at 63 and could buy fifty more.

Ans.—We could not advise on "averaging," the successful outcome of which depends entirely on market appreciation. We think you have put enough money into one stock unless you are wealthy. Based on latest earnings statement National Dairy Products can pay the current $2.60 dividend. Net income for six months ended June 30, 1930, amounted to $2.16 a share. Unofficial estimate for full year is $4 a share. In 1929 earnings were $4.18 a share. The present company has paid dividends, with extras, from 1924. For diversification, you ought to buy something else with any additional funds.

FIVE BONDS

M. B., Brighton—A friend, in whom I have the utmost confidence, told me to buy $5,000 Interborough Rapid Transit 7s, 1932. I am middle-aged and have saved $7000.

Ans.—The bonds your friend has suggested are speculative. In our opinion you should be conservative. A better and more diversified plan would be to buy $1,000 each Baltimore & Ohio refunding and general "B" 6s, 1995; Duke-Price Power first "A" 6s 1966; Illinois Bell Telephone first and refunding "A" 5s 1956; National Dairy Products debenture 5¼s, 1948, and Standard Oil of New Jersey debenture 5s 1946. These bonds, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, yield from 4.5 to 5.7 per cent. The savings bank is the place for the other $2000.

UNDER 5 PER CENT

D. F., Arlington—I want to invest some money at 6 per cent. How about American Telephone & Telegraph?

Ans.—American Telephone & Telegraph ranks as investment. Were you to buy it at current levels, you would not get 6 per cent. The yield is under 5 per cent. Current $9 dividend was covered in 1930 by earnings of $10.40 a share; in 1929, $12.68; in 1928, 12.11. Dividends in varying amounts have been paid for more than forty-six years; current rate from third quarter of 1921. During the past twelve years stockholders have received "rights" for the purchase of additional stock at an attractive figure, which has tended to increase the average yield. How much money have you?

Selling by "Unwilling Investor" Big Factor

By W. S. COUSINS.

New York, Feb. 4—One of the most important factors in the steady and persistent drop in prices of industrial stocks and specialties last year was the huge volume of selling by the so-called "unwilling investor" according to a theory just propounded by John E. Rovensky, one of Wall Street's brilliant bankers.

This class of investor included the chauffeurs, cooks, miners, dentists, school teachers and small business men throughout the country who bought stocks—each but a few shares, paying for them outright because no credit facilities were open to them. They were expecting to hold their stocks for a considerable rise before disposing of them.

When the severe break of October, 1929, came along many of these investors, who had tied up a larger proportion of their funds than they had originally intended became panic-stricken and sold. Others, with a high estimate of their skill and knowledge of "stock market fundamentals" determined to wait for the inevitable recovery.

When the recovery failed to materialize, in the spring of 1930 they began to sell their stocks. The collective holdings of this class must have been tremendous. When the selling move gained momentum, their stocks came back to the market in torrents.

* * *

This theory differs considerably from that of many other bankers, to whom the source of most of the heavy selling in the second quarter of 1930 was the banking institutions and investment trusts.

The small banks which had loaned tremendously against stocks at peak prices of the recent movement had no choice but to sell them when their value fell below that of an adequate protection for the loans. The official reports of the investment trusts now coming to hand bear out this theory, since they show that thousands of shares of stocks held in their portfolios at the close of 1929 have disappeared.

Within the last week or two a number of new problems have been injected to make the stock market's course a little more difficult. Most of these factors, by the way, originate at the source of legislation in Washington rather than in business, industrial or financial circles.

* * *

The proposed cashing of soldiers' bonus certificates with the proceeds of a new government bond issue has been condemned in financial circles as a factor which is sure to prolong the business depression. The bonus will thus be a major market factor as long as it hangs fire in Washington and, if discussion of it so delays the regular work of Congress that a special session will be needed, bankers and business men predict unpleasant consequences for the whole country.

It is also gratifying that progress has been made toward a satisfactory adjustment of the drouth relief measures on a basis which will be most helpful to those needing government aid.

* * *

For over a year the grain markets have exerted an important effect upon stocks. The sharp decline in prices of wheat and corn, as well as cotton and other agricultural products, severely curtailing the purchasing power of the farming district, constitutes one of the big factors in the present depressed state of business generally.

Buying of wheat by the Federal Farm Loan Board has been helpful or hurtful, according to whatever viewpoint is emphasized in attempting to figure out the net results of this important process. Up to the present time leaders of the administration at Washington felt that the results have more than justified the expenditure of a few hundred million dollars of federal funds, though it has been found impossible to halt the course of the downward movement in values of farm products.

The real test will come in May when trading is concluded in the wheat option which has been most directly supported by the Farm Loan Board. Perhaps if other governments had supported the products of their country as strongly as Uncle Sam has supported grain and cotton, there would not have been the falling off in values that we have witnessed in the last fifteen months.

At any rate, there are increasing signs that important industries have turned the corner and are once more headed in the right direction. Just how much progress they will make in the next year or two will be better told by the historian than by the forecaster.

Chevrolet Motor Co. January Sales Gain

New York, Feb. 4—Chevrolet Motor Co. produced 69,035 cars and trucks in January, as against 64,018 in December and 80,950 in January, 1930.

Schedule for February with three less working days in the month, has been set at 67,429 cars and trucks.

IRON OUTPUT UP FIRST TIME IN MONTHS

The Iron Age says: January brought the first gain in pig iron production since April, 1930. Output was 1,714,266 tons or 55,299 a day, against 1,665,690 or 53,732 daily in December, an increase of 3 per cent. All the expansion was in production of steel-making iron, which rose 12 per cent. Merchant pig iron output suffered a further sharp decline, dropping to 9416 tons daily in January from an average of 12,780 the previous month.

Blast furnaces operating Feb. 1 numbered 102 against 95 Jan. 1, the first gain in active capacity since March of last year. While output for month is noteworthy for bringing a protracted decline to a halt, it is the smallest for any January since 1922.

Steel demand has lost momentum and is increasingly uneven, with some market centers reporting improvement has been definitely arrested. But specifications in the aggregate continue to show slight expansion, with tin plate, rails, track accessories and line pipe giving production the best support.

Tin mill operations have risen to 65 per cent of capacity, with further gains in prospect. Rail mills continue to a 50 per cent rate at Chicago, and are expected to speed up somewhat by the middle of the month.

Raw steel output, which reflects the composite requirements of all finishing mills, has registered further gains at Buffalo, Chicago and Birmingham, and is at least holding its own in other producing districts. Ingot production for the country at large below averages fully 48 per cent, against 47 per cent a week ago.

Reinstatement for Allyn Is Ordered

John C. Hull, director of sale of securities division of the Department of Public Utilities, has ordered that effective Monday, Feb. 2, the 30-day suspension of registration of A. C. Allyn & Co., brokers, which began Jan. 19, be revoked.

Guest Artists, New Programs and Feature Broadcasts Crowd the Ether

Guests stars, new programs and feature broadcasts swell the air waves tonight. On the Camel hour, heard over WBZA at 9:30, Carson Robinson and Bud Billings, hill-billy tunesters, and the Lopa Hawaiian Ensemble will be heard as guest artists. From WNAC at 10:30 Kathryn Meisle, prima donna of the Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco opera companies, will be heard in recital during the Columbia concert. The third program which features guest artists is the Mobiloil program on WEEI at 8:30. Gladys Rice, soprano, and James Melton, tenor, will be heard at this time in an all-request program.

A "love story" series will be inaugurated over WEEI tonight at 7:30 with Marjorie Dunn, New England Conservatory student, playing the leading role. An orchestra led by Oscar Elgart, and vocal selections by Ray Simonds will surround the plot. WEEI also lists another new program tonight, the "Goof Club," heard at 11:15 p. m. This comedy program will feature Brian Jewett in the role of president of the club which invites all listeners to become members.

The featured speaker on the WNAC educational series, heard at 7 p. m. tonight is Franklin H. Wentworth, director of the National Fire Protection Association. He will speak on "The Economics of Fire Waste."

With Mary Garden the featured artist in both productions, the Chicago Civic Opera Company will present two operas tomorrow afternoon at the Boston Opera House and WNAC will broadcast thepresentations in their entirety from 1:45 to 5 p. m. The operas that will be heard are "La Navarraise" and "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," both by Massenet. Joseph Lopez will describe the operas which have in the casts leading performers of the company.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

journey, which was confined largly to the West Side, but by the time we had stopped in front of the Sherman Square Hotel, Doctor Maskell reminded us that it was just three o'clock on Christmas Eve afternoon that he had been there before.

He knew by the fact that he had inquired the time of the doorman, wondering if he would be able to complete the rest of his trips before it was time for Doris to be back in her home.

The doorman knew the doctor, who often called to visit one patient, a retired merchant tailor who lived on the eighth floor of the hotel. When questioned the doorman perfectly recalled Doctor Maskell asking the time and he further recollected that it was three o'clock.

As we drove past the barren Shakespeare Garden in Central Park, I had to tell myself that so far the doctor's alibi had been consistently sustained. Then, at the next place we stopped, a small hotel apartment house near Central Park, we came upon a surprising piece of information. The patient to whom Doctor Maskell had delivered a present there was a Mrs. Westock. She told the Commissioner that, on Christmas Eve, before the doctor reached her house someone called on her telephone and asked for the physican.

"It was a woman's voice," said Mrs. Westock. "She seemed to be very anxious for me to get word to him. The message she left was: 'Please come to Peddler's Road. Something terrible has happened.'"

"She did not leave any name?"

"No, sir. Nor her telephone number."

"Did you give the doctor the message?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did he say?"

"He looked surprised, but all he said was 'Thanks.'"

This conversation took place in the Westock apartment, and naturally Dr. Maskell did not hear it, for he remained in the car with Detective Burke guarding the whole party. Thatcher Colt did not tell the doctor about Mrs. Westock's story. Soon the car had crossed 5th ave., continuing east until Park ave., where finally we stopped in front of a large apartment house.

"Oh," exclaimed Doris, "here is where I had the ice cream."

Thatcher Colt had his hand on the door, but at this remark he settled back and looked gravely down at Doris. Watching Maskell, I saw that he did seem concerned.

"Where did you have ice cream Doris?" asked the commissioner, casually.

"Checkles and I had ice cream while Dr. Maskell delivered some presents by himself," answered Doris.

"Where?"

"Right there!"

The child pointed out of the car window to a confectioner's on the opposite corner.

"Did you have more than one plate of ice cream?" asked Thatcher Colt.

"Three! I had three!" cried Checkles gloatingly, as he turned and looked at us over his shoulder. "But Doris is a lady and took only one. She had to wait for me, though—I had three."

Thatcher Colt closed his eyes. I could almost follow the rapid calculations he was making in the isolation of blindness that he loved to impose upon his vision when he was thinking quickly. Perhaps Checkles and the child had been left in the place long enough. I could see the dangerous implications of this disclosure. When Thatcher Colt opened his eyes, I could also see that he had his finger on the first weak link in the chain of Dr. Maskell's perfect alibi.

"What were you doing, doctor, when they were in the confectioner's?" he asked point-blank.

"I distributed seven presents in the neighborhood," replied the doctor promptly.

"That's right," said Doris innocently. "He wasn't here when we were finished eating—we had to wait for a long, long time."

Again Thatcher Colt closed his eyes and considered the importance of this anachronism. "We had to wait for him a long, long time."—I could almost see the lightning of calculation, suspicion leaping and flashing across the story sky of the commissioner's thoughts.

For what reason we did not as yet know Geraldine had gone to the house on Peddler's rd. From there she might have telephoned Mrs. Westock. This seemed all the more credible because only Geraldine would know all the places the doctor was planning to visit, and how to reach him.

In answer to her summons he might have left Checles and Doris in the confectioner's and rushed off to kill her and get back. It was close figuring, but it could have been done. Such at least was the theory inevitably suggested by this startling gap just disclosed in the doctor's itinerary.

And still the doctor smiled, as if, telepathically he knew what was passing in the commissioner's mind and mine smiling as if he exulted and rejoiced because he knew there was still something missing, before they could bind him to the crime.

"There are only seven more addresses on your list," remarked Thatcher Colt. "Were the seven presents you told us about the last?"

"Yes," said Doctor Maskell. "From here we went home."

"Can any one identify you as having delivered these seven presents?"

"No. By that time I was late. I was hurried. I merely dropped them on hall tables. I saw no one."

"Yet you took an hour to deliver them?"

"I do not know how much time I took."

"Well, you must know this blows your alibi to smithereens."

Without another word, Thatcher Colt then sent Mrs. Morgan and Doris home in a taxicab. Burke went with them, agreeing to meet the commissioner at police headquarters later in the afternoon.

"No, Checkles," said the commissioner, "drive us up to the house on Peddler's Road."

Checkles laughed, a low-pitched chortle of laughter, as he punched the auto siren with his nose and pulled the lever into gear.

"Peddler's Road!" he chuckled. "Whew!"

I have seen a suspected man look down upon the scene of a crime, and remain quite unmoved; not by the quiver of a muscle or the flicker of a lash did he betray emotion. Yet that man was guilty. But I have also seen a suspected, really innocent man go into hysterics at the sight of a butchered body. The hysterical man was innocent, although he actually confessed to the crime.

This may make the whole process of "confrontation and return" seem a waste of time, but in a sufficient number of instances, a criminal cannot endure to look again upon his work. Often enough to make it worth while, he shrieks out his guilt at the top of his voice and gives all the needed confirming details.

It was not, as Thatcher Colt explained to me later, with any hope of unnerving the doctor by horror, that we were taking him back to Peddler's Road. Instead, my chief had the idea that some sentimental remembrance might unexpectedly upset the poise of Maskell another onslaught on human nature, through emotion.

All the paths approaching Peddler's Road had been roped off and put under guard, and crowds of baffled and morbidly curious persons strained against the ropes around the base of the hill. Inside, reporters were buzzing and snooping for clues, and it seemed to me as if there were plainclothes men and patrolmen behind every tree. The search for clues was still going forward relentlessly.

Silk Rosebuds

Avoiding the crowds by approaching from the rear, we climbed the hill and as we approached the house, Thatcher Colt said to Maskell:

"You know, Doctor, when we found the body, it had a pillow case over the head, as if the murderer could not bear to look upon the dead face, after what he had done."

"Yes, certainly?" said Doctor Maskell, in a tone of inquiry.

"It was a pillow case with silken rosebuds embroidered on it. I could not find its mate in your bungalow. Do you happen to know what happened to the other one?"

"I know nothing of that," replied Doctor Maskell disdainfully.

"Ah, well," said Thatcher Colt, "eventually we will find out about that pillow case. Come in!"

The doctor removed his hat as he entered the door of his own little house. One glance at his face showed me that he was profoundly moved.

He looked at the disorder, and at the detectives still searching in the house—they had been there all night and they were still there, ferreting everywhere the same area gone over three times by three different men—Colt was resolved that nothing should be lost. Maskell held his hat before his heart and looked miserably upon the wreckage, the carnage the red stains

"You can see, Doctor," said Thatcher Colt quietly, "that a great deal of blood was spilled. It spilled through the open trapdoor to the fireplace floor, and pooled in a hollow by the kitchen door. Isn't it extraordinary how much blood there really is in a human body, Doctor Maskell? Your dissection practice partly prepared you for that, of course—but when you start to let it run out of a living person, there's a lot of it isn't there, doctor—like a red Niagara coming from sweet young veins and arteries."

Maskell was about to light a cigarette, but Thatcher Colt, with his hand on his shoulder commanded his attention, and his eyes required an answer.

"Thatcher Colt," said Doctor Maskell "I shall have to listen to you, but my mind cannot be shocked into a breakdown, or fake confession of anything else."

"No," agreed Colt. "The forthright, downright outright methods of a simple policeman like myself may seem very crude to your preconceived notions of how this thing should be done. But I do know one thing—that reason is the certain method that can appeal to you, Doctor."

"Right!" agreed Maskell.

"You know there is a perfect case against you."

"I have been told that."

"Opportunity."

"No. I had no opportunity to do all this."

"Where were you, then, when Checkles and Doris were eating their ice cream?"

"I told you."

"You told me a cock-and-bull story. Do you expect any jury to believe that?"

Instead of replying the doctor was looking mournfully around the room.

"I can't believe it!" he murmured.

"Neither will the jury," snapped Colt, accepting the non-sequitur as a reply.

"Ah, haven't we talked enough? Do as you please—only let me have some sleep now," cried Maskell with a shudder.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Ninety-nine per cent is the impressive record for adherence to time schedule in arrival at the port of Boston of the modern ocean freighters of the American Hawaiian Steamship Co., according to statistics made public in the port by John N. Levins, Boston district manager.

This is deemed important by port officials, due to the fact that this line has two arrivals and two sailings at Boston weekly in which 20 steamers and two motorships operate from the Pacific Coast to Boston.

"It is interesting to note the precision with which modern ocean freighters adhere to schedule," Levine commented. "In the sailing days a vessel was obliged to depend on the elements for propulsion power. An abundance of fair weather meant speed; becalmed, the sailor was forced to wait until a favorable wind arose. It was not uncommon for a vessel to drift for days and even weeks. Adherence to schedule was impossible. There is no basis of comparison possible between the modern ocean freighter and the sailing vessel," he stated.

During 1930, 105 American-Hawaiian vessels arrived at Boston from Pacific Coast ports. The record shows 104 were on time. Of these, 29 were on schedule, 75 ahead of time and one late.

WHEAT EXPORT

For the first time this year a full cargo of wheat will go out of this port when the S. S. Isidora, Greek steamer, will be loaded at Hoosac Docks and East Boston elevator with 212,000 bushels of Manitoba No. 1 wheat for Piraeus, a Greek port. Port officials point this out as significant of the upward trend in the wheat business from Boston.

FIERY GRAVE

Fire, which swept the three-masted schooner Mina Nadeau to the surface of the sea, destroyed one of the best known ocean traders between Boston and the Maritime Provinces. She went to a watery tomb off Spencer's Island, near Truro, N. S. Her skipper and crew escaped injury. Well known in the port of Boston, she was one of the famous "johnny boats" which made runs here with lumber and returned with fertilizer and other cargo.

SOUTH AFRICA

Bringing wool, hides and miscellaneous merchandise, the S. S. Chincha, American South African Line, made this port safely coming here from Port Elizabeth and Takoradi, South Africa. She was berthed at Commonwealth Pier.

DIVE FOR ANCHOR

En route to this port with a cargo of 4,200,000 gallons of Oklahoma City crude oil, from Arkansas Pass, Tex., the tanker, Cities Service Petrol, while anchored at quarantine before proceeding to her Braintree discharging berth, lost one of her anchors. With a diver and a lighter, the Tug Sadie Ross went down to search for the lost mudhook. When it is found it will be returned to the tanker.

Legal Notices

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS

In Department of Public Utilities

Boston, January 29, 1931.

On the petition of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company for approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of $6,500,000 to pay for additions, extensions and permanent improvements to its property, the Commission of the Department of Public Utilities will give a public hearing to all parties interested at its hearing-room, 164 State House, Boston, on Thursday, the twelfth day of February, 1931, at ten-thirty o'clock in the forenoon.

And the petitioner is required to give notice of said hearing by serving a copy hereof upon the respective mayors of Boston, Chelsea, Newton, Quincy, Waltham and Somerville, and the respective chairmen of the selectmen of Brookline, Milton, Watertown, Wellesley and Weston, ten days at least prior to the date of said hearing, to publish a copy hereof in the Boston American, Boston Post, Boston Globe, Boston Herald, Boston Transcript, Christian Science Monitor, Newton Graphic, Quincy Patriot Ledger, Waltham News Tribune, Watertown Sun and Wellesley Townsman, in each of said papers once at least prior to the date of said hearing, and to make return of service and publication at the time of hearing.

By order of the Department.
(Signed) ANDREW A. HIGHLANDS, Secretary.

Lifting Trade Blockade

The battle against business depression has been weakened by lack of clear perception as to the nature of the enemy.

The real foe is the ogre of unconscionably high retail distribution costs.

Since the beginning of the twentieth century, American factories increased the average output per man by more than 50 per cent.

Purchasing power, however, did not expand as rapidly.

Paul H. Douglas, in his volume on real wages in the United States, points out that in the 25 years during which output per worker increased 54 per cent, the real earnings, or purchasing power of workers, rose only 30 per cent.

Accordingly, a lack of balance between supply and demand developed.

This unsound situation was hidden from public view for several years.

It was concealed in two ways. First, through enormous loans to foreign countries we artificially stimulated export demand for the surplus products of American factories. Secondly, by the development of instalment selling at home we anticipated domestic purchasing power nearly a year.

By June, 1929, these temporary corrective influences had spent their force.

Business was confronted with an actual shortage of buyers.

The remedy now is not in wage cutting. On the contrary, it lies in increasing the purchasing power of wages and, as soon as prosperity permits, increasing wages.

One fruitful way to increase purchasing power would be by a further significant reduction in retail prices.

Despite the lag between the decline in wholesale quotations and retail prices, merchants are not making exorbitant profits.

As a matter of fact, many retailers have experienced a genuine slump in earnings.

The truth is that the cost of distributing merchandise is inordinately high.

Buying power is sapped by expensive merchandising.

The economies of scientific mass production are frittered away by costly distribution.

In order to lay a sound foundation for the next prosperity phase, it is essential that the American business genius, which eliminated waste in production, reduce inefficiency and waste in distribution.

The problem constitutes a challenge not only to merchants and dealers, but also to consumers.

We have all been paying for the wasteful habits of slothful shoppers.

The unnecessary return of merchandise adds to retail operating costs, and the merchant necessarily passes these on to the public. One solution would be to make a service charge covering the cost of the return privilege.

Delivery service is also abused. Careless shoppers will insist on having a spool of thread delivered. One possibility would be to charge for delivery service, so that the thrifty would no longer be penalized by the extravagant.

The business equilibrium will be restored when distribution becomes as cheap and as efficient as production.

Then the channels of trade will no longer be blockaded.

Pay on Public Works

Cowardly and Unsound to Cut Wage Scales

The State Employment Commission of Minnesota has adopted a resolution to provide that all persons employed on the State's building and highway construction program shall be guaranteed the same wages paid under normal conditions.

The purpose of the resolution is "to preclude the possibility of any undue advantage being taken of the unemployment situation."

Fifty of the foremost private business organizations in this country have recently signed an agreement that they will not use the business depression, with its surplus of labor, to deflate the wages of the workers.

On the other hand we hear Colonel Arthur Woods protesting that contractors receiving fat fees for the construction of national highways are attempting to slaughter the wage scale.

And in this State we hear Representatives Kelley and Warren asserting that some contractors are hiring alien employes on the State highways and are paying less than the normal, average scale of wages.

To take advantage of the workers at a time like this is both cowardly and unsound. It is cowardly because large groups of our people are obliged to accept any work at any wages available in order to keep the wolf away from the door of the family home. It is unsound because high wages are synonymous with prosperity.

America has the greatest domestic market in all the world and when that market is impaired by reduced spending power of all the consumers the backbone of prosperity and business dependability is wounded.

We have ample law in this State to compel the contractors on State jobs to pay the average, going rate of wages. Perhaps the State Board of Labor and Industries can be aroused from its mental lethargy long enough to enforce the law.

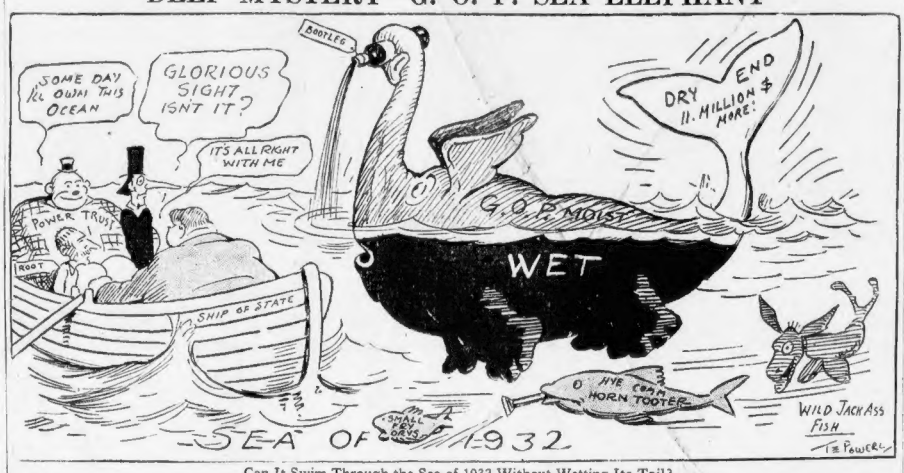
LET GEORGE DO IT!

Uncle Sam would not have had to apologize to Benito Mussolini and General Smedley Butler would not now be facing a court-martial if the Stormy Petrel of the Devil Dogs had Wickersham—ed his remarks about the Italian Premier.

Butler could have talked for months, used up 80,000 words, as the Wickershamers did on Prohibition, and then could have defied anyone to discover whether he had said "yes," "no," "maybe," or anything at all.

It might be, as Mr. Opper suggests, a practical safety-first idea for Uncle Sam to insist that all speeches about foreign potentates be Wickersham—ed in the future.

DEEP MYSTERY—G. O. P. SEA ELEPHANT



Can It Swim Through the Sea of 1932 Without Wetting Its Tail?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love Pikers of Today

THE MID-VICTORIAN girl lived in the fear of losing her reputation. The modern girl lives in the fear of losing her heart.

* * *

She will gamble with fate, risk death, jail or broken bones in a wildly speeding car. Risk scandal by doing all sorts of foolish and daring things. Risk drowning in summer; risk her limbs on the skiis in winter, and risk pneumonia all the year round in backless gowns invisible hose and flimsy clothes.

* * *

She will fearlessly fly a plane and flirt with eternity in the clouds. She will take parachute leaps take plunges in Wall Street, swim dangerous channels and wreck her health in dancing contests.

* * *

But she WON'T gamble on love! She won't take an emotional risk. She won't risk having her feelings or her vanity lacerated by taking a chance on happiness.

* * *

She is afraid of marriage, afraid of love, afraid of her own emotions; and, in heart, she is far more afraid of MEN than her mother was.

She will flirt, she will pet, she will PLAY at love, but she holds on tight to her heart and head. And, when she cautiously goes into marriage, she wants all sorts of modern guarantees and safety devices such as "companionate marriage" and written promises to part, at the first sign of dissension, to make it a "sure thing."

* * *

That's the funny thing about modern lovers. Old-fashioned lovers used to vow to cling to each other forever and ever. Modern lovers promise faithfully NOT to cling to each other one moment after the thrills are over. They step to the altar with their fingers crossed and one eye on the divorce lawyer. They have no sporting spirit!

* * *

I wonder WHY. Why take chances on things that don't matter—risk your life for a thrill or an adventure or a medal or a "record"—and refuse to take a chance on the one thing in life worth gambling for?

* * *

OF COURSE, marriage is a gamble! It is the longest shot on earth. You never know how a husband is going to turn out; you never know how long love will last; you never know how you, yourself, will react to matrimony. And, granted that you could know these things you never know what exigencies and burdens and problems the years will bring. It's all a gamble!

* * *

But so is life—and so is everything else in the world worth having. You take a chance when you go into business or into a profession or on the stage. You may be a flop—or a glittering success. You may fail ignominiously or conquer gloriously. But you are willing to take the risk. It's worth it!

* * *

Why not be sporting about love and marriage? Why demand or expect a "SURE THING" in the greatest and most glorious gamble on earth? People who go into marriage with a lot of reservations are love-pikers. And pikers never win anything—much!

Listen, World! Inspiring

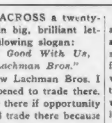
By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Business Is Good"

WRITTEN ACROSS a twenty-foot billboard in big, brilliant letters was the following slogan:

"Business Is Good With Us, Lachman Bros."

I do not know Lachman Bros. I have never happened to trade there. But I will trade there if opportunity presents. I will trade there because confidence like that attracts me and inspires trust.



Elsie Robinson

Ever consider confident people? Ever notice how people flock around them? Probably you have. And if you are human, maybe it made you mad.

That big bluffs," you've snarled to yourself. You know that things aren't as rosy as they pretend. They've got troubles just like anyone else, but they like to put on an act . . . like to pretend that nothing gets their goat. And people fall for it, the poor saps. Wonder why? Why do blowhards like that get such a big hand and honest people, who frankly admit that things look bad, get passed by?"

You've said that—haven't you? I've said that. What's the answer. Why do people admire and bet on the man with the confident grin and pass by the honest gloom? They do. In business or private life, it's always the same—the Beaming Booster gets them.

Is it because they are too shallow to reason . . . that they're distracted by any loud noise, any joyful front? No—it's deeper than that.

People admire strength, follow and trust strength—or the appearance of strength—because they need strength. In all our hearts there is fear and bewilderment. Life is filled with danger and distress. We know that we can conquer these things if we have sufficient courage! So we lean on those who have.

Do we really think that they have conquered life? Do we think that they are never frightened or bewildered, themselves? No, we know perfectly well that they haven't—and are. But we know that they have built armor for themselves. Some may call that armor "bluff"—may say it's "just putting on an act." That doesn't matter. The name doesn't change the quality of the performance. Bluff—noble, constructive bluff—is bravery. "Putting on an act" is the very essence of courage.

Brave people are brave, not because they have no grief, fear, no risk, but because they stand steady and serene in the face of grief and risk 'n takes a great soul and nerve to bluff in the face of reality. And the soul that can do it . . . the soul that can write, in challenging letters against a stormy sky—"Business is good with us," gets our vote. And business will be good with that man. It will be good because he has the courage to imagine good luck, the strength to affirm it.

Why do people follow the beaming booster? That's why. Because he has the goods . . . the goods they need.

Why are glooms never popular? Why are cautious people never good leaders? Why do we despise the blester, even when he's telling the truth? Because we already have enough misery in ourselves—we don't need any more.

Want popularity — power — success? There's your recipe.

New York Day by Day

Writers Who Had Lucky Breaks

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Writers, as well as actors, are often happy victims of the fabled lucky break. The other week an aspiring novice, after working five days, completed seven pages of a magazine article and suddenly stuck smack in the middle of a sentence.

He tried vainly to carry on but could not crack the spell of sterility. Finally he snatched the page from the machine with a mental vow to quit the game forever. On the verge of tearing up the manuscript, he, instead, placed it in an envelope and mailed it to his literary agent.

With the article he sent what he intended to be his literary swan song. It was a despairing line: "The very best I could do!" In a few days he received an urgent message to call on his agent at once. He went determined to resist any plea to "try it just once more." He was definitely through.

The agent was in a furore of excitement. He had forwarded the article to a weekly magazine and the editor had phoned his enthusiasm. The agent explained the editor liked especially the brevity—"the abrupt ending. That unfinished sentence!" The writer sat dazed.

And the agent gabbled on: "He wants you to write five more in the same tempo at once." There are many instances of such miracles. Anita Loos wrote "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" to amuse herself during a tedious convalescence. It was carelessly tossed in an old desk.

* * *

One day she gave it to a friend to read and afterward to tear up. Instead he rushed to an editor—and the world knows the astonishing result. Will Rogers was a good comedian but the one thing he couldn't do was write. "I can't," he drawled "even spell."

For such reasons no one should tell another he cannot write. Had many topnotchers today heeded the advice of critics they would be punching time clocks in planing mills and spoke factories. Persistency wins in writing as well as in other endeavor.

London, too, is giving Hollywood a theatrical raspberry in a comedy called "Nippy." But Hollywood is used to jeers. The producers hooted as "ex-button hole makers" lounge in the patios of million dollar castles and try to bear it. Dear, dear!

A threadbare gesture on the stage these days is for a performer suddenly to resort to something grotesque, like a tough aside, when things become too pretentious. In one of the revues a plumed lady in a grand stairway entrance moves majestically to the bottom step, hoists her long skirt, suddenly spits through her teeth and waddles off with a Chaplin walk and an Eddie Foy grin. It's grand.

On a West 58th street studio is a sign: "Crooning in Six Lessons." Somehow we never imagined it required such effort. We thought all you needed were rusty pipes and a megaphone.

An odd remunerative sideline is carried on by a young haberdashery clerk. He can tie a black or white bow tie for evenings with a flair few achieve. Rich bachelors prefer him to valets, send for him in their cars on auspicious occasions, and he arranges their ties for $2 a visit.

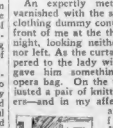
An expertly meticulous dandy, varnished with the spurious look of clothing dummy contentment, sat in front of me at the theater the other night looking neither to the right nor left. As the curtain fell he whispered to the lady with him and she gave him something out of her opera bag. On the way out he adjusted a pair of knitted wrist warmers—and in my affections immediately became a full blooded Knight of Pythias or something.



From the London Bystander: "McIntyre sniffs the winds of lif. with dilated nostrils." Sounds doggy!

A moment-ago caller was a gentleman whose calling card announced him as Ort Orpen. He's a book agent and got in slickly by declaring he had been sent by a publisher. His visit was no annoyance what-ever, but I wish he hadn't come. I can't quit yapping his name.
